Denney Plans To Block Lincoln Sale Of Lottery Tickets

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City Council Chairman Max Denney says he isn't a betting man, and if he has his way Omaha's Big Green lottery won't be exported to Lincoln.

Denney told fellow lawmakers Monday he plans to introduce legislation prohibiting the sale of Big Green and any other lottery tickets in the Capital City.

Denney said he believes that "lotteries of this kind are wrong," because "it is usually the people who can't afford it who get involved trying to make a quick buck."

Although Denney said his proposal would attempt to ban all lotteries, his most immediate goal is blocking the sale of Big Green tickets in Lincoln.

Big Green Director Sam Schwartzkopf recently said he would like to sell tickets in other Nebraska cities. Those tickets can be sold anywhere in the state unless outlawed by local ordinance.

"People want it," Schwartzkopf was quoted as saying.

Attorney Contacted

City Atty. Charles Humble told the council that Schwartzkopf, former Lincoln mayor, has contacted him about selling tickets in Lincoln.

"He was kind of testing the waters," Humble said.

Humble told his former boss that "it would be folly" to bring the game to Lincoln until a lawsuit has been decided.

The two-month-old lottery has been battling several court tests. Last summer a lawsuit filed by an Omaha attorney forced extensive restructuring of the lottery. The latest suit, filed by Douglas County Atty. Donald Knowles and Nebraska Atty. Gen Paul Douglas, contends the lottery has several potential constitutional flaws. Judgment on that case is expected in January.

Denney said he would await the outcome of that trial before deciding whether he needs to introduce his ordinance.

Big Green, a brainchild of Omaha city officials and business interests, is being run by the City Betterment Corp., a nonprofit group. A percentage of Big Green's proceeds is earmarked for city improvement projects.

Denney, who was a frequent political adversary of Schwartzkopf when he was mayor, said he opposes the use of a lottery to support local governmental projects.

"It's wrong," he asserted. "If we can't use tax monies to finance local government, then we'd better cut back."

On another matter, Denney said it's time to straighten out the city's liquor license mess.

'No Rhyme Nor Reason'

Denney said "there's no rhyme nor reason" to the City Council's present license quota policy — a policy Denney has supported in the past.

As a result of a recent flap surrounding three applications for one liquor license, Denney said he will introduce legislation seeking to tie the number of licenses in town to population.

Several times in the past two years council members Sue Bailey and John Robinson have tried to change the council's license policy. Both times they failed.

Denney said he probably will pattern his ordinance after Robinson's, which would allow one license for every 1,150 residents.

"I don't have any magic figure," Denney admitted, but contended that a plan linking licenses to a population figure "would at least give us some logic" for the numbers system.

Ceiling Of 135

Currently, the city has set a ceiling of 135 licenses An additional four licenses have been awarded to Pershing Auditorium, the Municipal Airport and the two city golf courses. The State Liquor Control Commission has concurred with the council's policy in past decisions.

Denney said he has changed his position on the matter because he hasn't found a better way to handle the situation.

A recent dispute over a liquor license also prodded him into action, Denney reported.

Allowed To Lapse

The Town and Country Motel, the Misty Lounge and Gryphon, Inc. of Denver all wanted a license belonging to the former French Gourmet restaurant. Through a mix-up by the restaurant's owners, the license was allowed to expire. Two weeks ago the council denied the Town and Country's application, while deadlocking on the other two.

Councilman Bob Jeambey cleared up the matter Monday when he succeeded in persuading his colleagues to declare the license still belonging to the French Gourmet's owners. The license then will be transferred to Gryphon, Inc., as originally planned.

Denney said that case "makes it obvious that our present system is not a good one."

IN FIVE-ALARM FIRE . . . elderly evacuee's eyes reflect fear.

90 Residents Evacuated Just Before Hotel Burns

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Fire fighters kicked in doors and hustled 90 elderly residents out of the 68-year-old Congress Hotel early Monday, completing the evacuation minutes before the building was engulfed in smoke and flames and destroyed.

The general-alarm fire in the four-story hotel about three blocks from the Mormon Tabernacle also gutted about a dozen other businesses on the hotel's ground floor.

"It wasn't two minutes after we got the last person out before you couldn't get back into the hallways," said fire fighter Bob Mayhew. Many of the people stood shivering on the sidewalk in underwear or pajamas, and some kept trying to get back inside for belongings.

Four people were hospitalized, including one fireman and an elderly man reported in critical condition from smoke inhalation.

Fire Chief Leon DeKorver said the blaze broke out in the apparently unoccupied kitchen of a basement Veterans of Foreign Wars club and spread upward just after midnight. It burned until sunrise.

There was no official damage estimate. The building was assessed at $450,000, but value of the businesses was not immediately available.

More than 150 firemen fought the fire that destroyed the four-story downtown hotel, a typewriter shop, a health food store, a finance company and several other businesses.

Battalion Chief David Barrett said more than 20 firemen were involved in the evacuation, which he said took less than a half hour.

Mayhew had keys to the rooms but said some were locked from the inside and had to be kicked in.

"That was one of the hardest rescues I've ever been on. They kept running back on me," he said. One elderly resident returned to his room three times, once to get some change off of a dresser, he said.

"I finally had to pack him down two flights of stairs," Mayhew said.

He said he spent some time just waiting for people to get dressed.

"Until the smoke got pretty thick in the halls, we didn't know how bad the emergency was either," he said.

Fire Causes Evacuation Of 1,300

NEW YORK (AP) — Fire broke out in a cooling tower atop a Fifth Avenue office building in midtown Monday afternoon forcing the evacuation of more than 1,300 people, authorities reported.

No one was injured and damage was confined mostly to the roof, officers said.

The blaze sent flames and heavy smoke shooting from the roof of the 17-story Research Institute Building located at Fifth Avenue and 48th St., near St. Patrick's Cathedral and Rockefeller Center.

Tax Cut Faces Veto . . . Ford Wants His Way With Bill

Washington (UPI) — President Ford will veto any tax cut bill that does not also impose a limit on federal spending and believes his veto would be sustained, the White House said Monday.

Press secretary Ron Nessen also said Ford might call Congress into a special session or prevent it from adjourning later this month if necessary to try to force enactment of a spending ceiling along with a permanent extension of the personal tax cut that is scheduled to expire Jan. 1.

Ford outlined his plans at a mid-afternoon meeting with top economic advisers and Nessen said they assured the President that if the tax cut were to expire for "a short period of time, it will not have any material effect on the economy."

Nessen said Ford "truly believes" in his proposal for a $28 billion tax cut with an equal reduction in federal spending — to set a $395 billion ceiling on spending during the fiscal year starting next Oct. 1 — and that recent polls indicate a majority of Americans support Ford's position.

Ford Wants His Way

Accordingly, he said Ford told Treasury Secretary William E. Simon at Monday's meeting to emphasize in Senate testimony Tuesday that "the President will veto any extension of a tax reduction unless it has a ceiling on spending."

The House late last week approved a broad tax revision package that would extend last spring's tax reductions — including a $12 billion personal income tax cut — but the legislation would not set a limit on spending.

Nessen noted that there has been talk in the Senate of a temporary tax cut extension, for perhaps three or four months, to allow time to resolve the spending issue without letting the tax reductions expire. But he said Ford would veto any temporary measures too, whatever their time frame.

Asked if Ford thought his threatened veto could be upheld in Congress, Nessen recalled that the House refused by a vote of only 213 to 203 to allow a vote on Ford's spending ceiling and that the President was confident of enough support to win if he cast a veto to block the bill's enactment. The final bill passed the House 257 to 168.

"It can be easily sustained," Nessen said.

Go See Parliamentarian

Nessen stopped short of saying Ford definitely would move to call Congress back from a Christmas recess or try to keep it in session to get his way. But he said the President had told Max Friedersdorf, his chief congressional liaison aide, to contact the congressional parliamentarian.

Ford said he wanted Freidersdorf "to get him the particulars if it were necessary to call them (members of Congress) back or keep them in session," Nessen told reporters.

Democratic leaders had hoped that Ford would accept an extension of three to six months of current lower tax withholding rates, preventing the tax bill of both individuals and businesses from rising Jan. 1.

Budget Unseen Yet

Democrats are determined not to deal with a spending ceiling on a budget they have not even seen. They also say Ford's plans are poor economics because the tax cuts would boost economic activity before the November election and the spending ceiling would then slam on the brakes after the election.

The Senate Finance Committee plans one day of hearings Tuesday on the House-passed 674-page tax revision bill, with Simon and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., as the only witnesses. It then plans to write its own version of the bill Wednesday.

Already, it is a foregone conclusion that the committee will separate the bill into two parts, saving the "reform" sections until next year and giving priority treatment to those sections extending 1975 tax cuts for individuals and businesses.

Unless some tax cuts bills becomes law soon, almost everyone's withholding taxes will raise by a few dollars a week Jan. 1. Already there is confusion in some businesses which need several weeks lead time to feed withholding rates into their computers.

A post-Christmas session of Congress may be necessary if Congress does not send the tax bill to Ford in time for a veto override vote prior to adjournment for the year, expected around Dec. 19.

Marvel Serves Notice Of 'Subsistence' Budget

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State agencies will need to fight for every dollar above a subsistence budget level for the coming fiscal year.

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee chairman, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, said Monday he has directed the legislative fiscal staff to prepare a "bare-bones" budget proposal for state government operations in 1976-77.

The committee will build from that "subsistence level of funding," beginning with hearings for seven major spending agencies next week.

Its initial recommendations will result from those hearings, using the staff figures as "a starting point" for the preparation of the 1976-77 appropriations bills.

The bill or bills would be introduced on the first or second day of the regular legislative session which begins next month, Marvel said.

Agencies Get Hearing

State agencies will then be provided an opportunity to attempt to persuade the committee that its initial recommendations should be increased.

During those hearings, to be scheduled in January, "each agency would be expected to fully justify any funds requested in excess of the amounts shown in the appropriations bill under consideration," Marvel said.

The guidelines under which the staff will prepare its subsistence budget are "not intended to represent the philosophy of this committee or the Legislature as a whole," he said.

No Commitment Implied

But they are designed to serve notice to all that "an appropriation for the current year does not imply a commitment to provide the same level or greater level of funds for future periods."

Under the "bare-bones" budget approach, operating expenses would generally be increased by 6% for the coming year.

Food, medical supplies and drugs will be "treated separately," Marvel said, and utility costs will be adjusted to reflect local conditions.

In general, proposed new or expanded programs will be eliminated. In most cases, replacement of lost federal funds will be ignored.

The subsistence level budget computations await a committee decision on state employe salary increases and insurance benefits for 1976-77. Salary policy will be discussed by the committee Tuesday.

New Format

Marvel's outline represents a new format for reaching legislative budget decisions, in effect dispensing with fiscal staff funding recommendations, at least for now.

If the committee follows his schedule, the staff will present its subsistence budget dollar figures next week.

At that time, committee members will discuss specific policy issues at hearings for the Department of Public Institutions, the Department of Public Welfare, the Department of Correctional Services, the University of Nebraska, the four state colleges, the Department of Administrative Services and the Game and Parks Commission.

The hearings are scheduled for next Monday through Thursday, with Friday set aside for decision-making.

Briefings Begin

In preparation for those hearings, committee members met Monday for staff briefings which will continue Tuesday.

State government is "at a very crucial point," Marvel said.

Inflation has "created significant problems" for taxpayers, he said. And they want the prospect of increased taxation to be "closely scrutinized," he said.

During Monday's briefings, the committee served notice that it will ask Correctional Services Director Joe Vitak why most of the 1975-76 funding earmarked for medical and adult service program improvements has gone to pay past bills.

Public Institutions Director Jack Cleavenger will be asked how his department plans to implement the consent settlement in the Beatrice State Home lawsuit which requires the transfer of hundreds of residents to community programs for the mentally retarded.

Band Contributions Mount

A Hastings firm had an original idea on how to contribute to the University of Nebraska Marching Band, which is seeking $42,000 to pay its way to the Fiesta Bowl.

It decided to give $25 for each letter of its name.

A check for $1,050 in the name of Hastings Equity Grain Bin Manufacturing Company was donated by the firm's president, Ken Einsel, to the NU Foundation.

As of Monday afternoon contributions totaled $15,033, including the following pledges: Ak-Sar-Ben, $1,000; The Omaha World-Herald, $1,000; Fleischer Mfg. Co., $1,000; Motor Carrier Association, $250. A Lincoln firm asking to remain anonymous pledged $1,500.

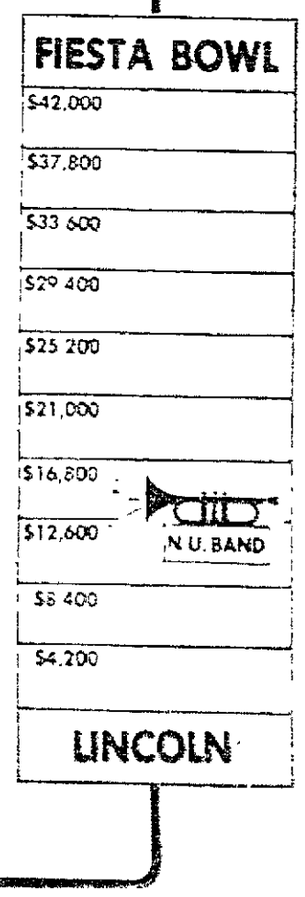

Donations of $500 have been received from the Journal-Star Printing Co. and the Wake Charitable Foundation, of Seward.

All contributions must be received by Friday, the deadline for signing the charter flight contract with United Airlines.

Donations may be sent to University of Nebraska Foundation — Band Fund, Lincoln, Neb. 68503.

Tax Cut Faces Veto . . . Ford Wants His Way With Bill

Washington (UPI) — President Ford will veto any tax cut bill that does not also impose a limit on federal spending and believes his veto would be sustained, the White House said Monday.

Press secretary Ron Nessen also said Ford might call Congress into a special session or prevent it from adjourning later this month if necessary to try to force enactment of a spending ceiling along with a permanent extension of the personal tax cut that is scheduled to expire Jan. 1.

Ford outlined his plans at a mid-afternoon meeting with top economic advisers and Nessen said they assured the President that if the tax cut were to expire for "a short period of time, it will not have any material effect on the economy."

Marvel Serves Notice Of 'Subsistence' Budget

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State agencies will need to fight for every dollar above a subsistence budget level for the coming fiscal year.

The Legislature's Appropriations Committee chairman, Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, said Monday he has directed the legislative fiscal staff to prepare a "bare-bones" budget proposal for state government operations in 1976-77.

The committee will build from that "subsistence level of funding," beginning with hearings for seven major spending agencies next week.

Its initial recommendations will result from those hearings, using the staff figures as "a starting point" for the preparation of the 1976-77 appropriations bills.

The bill or bills would be introduced on the first or second day of the regular legislative session which begins next month, Marvel said.

Agencies Get Hearing

State agencies will then be provided an opportunity to attempt to persuade the committee that its initial recommendations should be increased.

During those hearings, to be scheduled in January, "each agency would be expected to fully justify any funds requested in excess of the amounts shown in the appropriations bill under consideration," Marvel said.

The guidelines under which the staff will prepare its subsistence budget are "not intended to represent the philosophy of this committee or the Legislature as a whole," he said.

No Commitment Implied

But they are designed to serve notice to all that "an appropriation for the current year does not imply a commitment to provide the same level or greater level of funds for future periods."

Under the "bare-bones" budget approach, operating expenses would generally be increased by 6% for the coming year.

Food, medical supplies and drugs will be "treated separately," Marvel said, and utility costs will be adjusted to reflect local conditions.

In general, proposed new or expanded programs will be eliminated. In most cases, replacement of lost federal funds will be ignored.

The subsistence level budget computations await a committee decision on state employe salary increases and insurance benefits for 1976-77. Salary policy will be discussed by the committee Tuesday.

New Format

Marvel's outline represents a new format for reaching legislative budget decisions, in effect dispensing with fiscal staff funding recommendations, at least for now.

If the committee follows his schedule, the staff will present its subsistence budget dollar figures next week.

At that time, committee members will discuss specific policy issues at hearings for the Department of Public Institutions, the Department of Public Welfare, the Department of Correctional Services, the University of Nebraska, the four state colleges, the Department of Administrative Services and the Game and Parks Commission.

The hearings are scheduled for next Monday through Thursday, with Friday set aside for decision-making.

Briefings Begin

In preparation for those hearings, committee members met Monday for staff briefings which will continue Tuesday.

State government is "at a very crucial point," Marvel said.

Inflation has "created significant problems" for taxpayers, he said. And they want the prospect of increased taxation to be "closely scrutinized," he said.

During Monday's briefings, the committee served notice that it will ask Correctional Services Director Joe Vitak why most of the 1975-76 funding earmarked for medical and adult service program improvements has gone to pay past bills.

Public Institutions Director Jack Cleavenger will be asked how his department plans to implement the consent settlement in the Beatrice State Home lawsuit which requires the transfer of hundreds of residents to community programs for the mentally retarded.

Band Contributions Mount

A Hastings firm had an original idea on how to contribute to the University of Nebraska Marching Band, which is seeking $42,000 to pay its way to the Fiesta Bowl.

It decided to give $25 for each letter of its name.

A check for $1,050 in the name of Hastings Equity Grain Bin Manufacturing Company was donated by the firm's president, Ken Einsel, to the NU Foundation.

As of Monday afternoon contributions totaled $15,033, including the following pledges: Ak-Sar-Ben, $1,000; The Omaha World-Herald, $1,000; Fleischer Mfg. Co., $1,000; Motor Carrier Association, $250. A Lincoln firm asking to remain anonymous pledged $1,500.

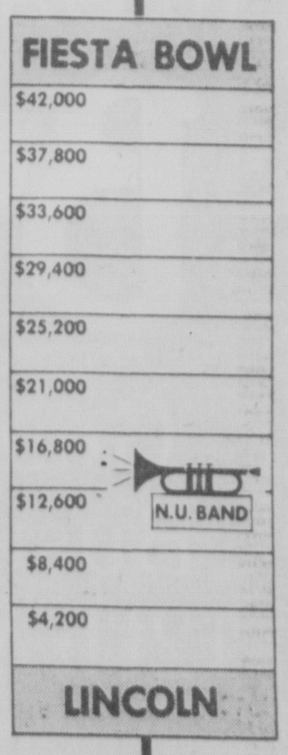

Donations of $500 have been received from the Journal-Star Printing Co. and the Wake Charitable Foundation, of Seward.

All contributions must be received by Friday, the deadline for signing the charter flight contract with United Airlines.

Donations may be sent to University of Nebraska Foundation — Band Fund, Lincoln, Neb. 68503.

Stevens For Sex Equality But Not Sure About ERA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court nominee John Paul Stevens told the Senate Judiciary Committee on Monday he believes in equality of the sexes but isn't sure he supports the Equal Rights Amendment.

Stevens also said he assumes the death penalty would be a deterrent to crime but does not know whether it actually is.

The prospective Supreme Court justice also commented that he would favor an affirmative action program to redress discrimination against women "if the violations jusified that kind of relief."

Stevens, a federal appeals court judge from Chicago, commented on the capital punishment issue under persistent questioning by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

If Stevens is confirmed as a member of the high court, he will presumably participate in a case in which the court is being asked to determine the constitutionality of the death penalty.

Noting that the issue is before the court, Stevens told Kennedy he did not believe he should discuss the constitutional question involved.

Asked about the possible deterrent effect of the penalty, he said, "I assume if one contemplates that one will be punished by having his life terminated that would have some deterrent effect."

Kennedy then asked him flatly whether the death penalty is in fact a deterrent.

"I don't know," Stevens replied.

He went on to say that he did not think he should discuss his views on the death penalty in general.

When Kennedy noted that some opponents of capital punishment say it is meted out disproportionately to poor and black persons, Stevens said he believed that "we must always be concerned with impartial administration of the law," whether in capital cases or in others.

Kennedy noted that two women's groups have asked to testify on the nomination. In a letter to the committee, the National Women's Political Caucus said Stevens' rulings in sex cases had raised "questions as to whether he would ... be able to provide equal justice for women."

"I think women should have exactly the same rights and economic opportunities under the law as men but do not believe they should win every case they file," Stevens replied.

He said he had "not really thought through" the ERA question.

"Aside from its symbolic value," he said, "It is not entirely clear to me how much it would accomplish beyond the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment."

That clause guarantees equal protection of the laws to all citizens. Kennedy said he thought the courts had been reluctant to apply it in women's rights cases, but Stevens disagreed with this assessment.

In cases involving women, Stevens has been criticized by some for opinions in which he dissented from a decision striking down a rule against married airline stewardesses and from a finding of sex discrimination in the reclassification of an employe's job while she was absent or on sick leave.

Stevens said he had favored the woman plaintiff in two other sex discrimination cases and had taken an intermediate position in another one.

He said this appeared to give him "about a 50-50" record, but he did not think that was the way judicial decisions should be judged. Instead, he said the test should be whether the decisions were "free of prejudice against either sex."

U.S. Vetoes Condemnation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States vetoed a Security Council resolution Monday night condemning last week's air attacks by Israel on Palestinian refugee camps in Lebanon.

Thirteen members of the 15-nation council supported the resolution. Costa Rica abstained.

The council began meeting last week after Egypt and Lebanon demanded that it consider last Tuesday's Israeli raids on the camps, in which Lebanese police said more than 100 Palestinians died.

Egypt also demanded that the Palestine Liberation Organization, the umbrella group for Palestinian guerrillas, be invited to participate in the debate and the council so voted. Although the United States voted against PLO participation, the question was considered procedural and the negative ballot did not constitute a veto.

Israel refused to take part in the debate because of the PLO's presence.

U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan cast the veto after the Security Council narrowly rebuffed his attempt to add to the resolution a condemnation of all acts of violence in the Middle East and an appeal for all parties to refrain from action that might endanger Mideast peace talks.

The United States said in advance that it deplored the Israeli raids, but also opposed a "one-sided resolution" — meaning a condemnation of Israel without mention of Palestinian guerrilla attacks on Israeli targets.

The vetoed resolution was sponsored by Guyana, Iraq, Mauritania, Cameroon and Tanzania. It declared that the Israeli air attacks were "premeditative in nature" and demanded that Israel "desist forthwith from all military attacks against Lebanon."

Moynihan told the council, "The United States strongly deplores the Israeli action but we also believe the ... loss of innocent lives from incursions of Israel from Lebanon and other countries should also be condemned."

He said that without this the resolution was unbalanced and as a principal mediator in the Middle East the United States could not support it.

Pike Rejects Compromise In Kissinger Contempt Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rejecting a compromise offer from President Ford, Intelligence Committee Chairman Otis G. Pike filed contempt action in the House on Monday against Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

The New York Democrat said he will ask for a House contempt vote "in a couple of days" unless his committee decides at a meeting Tuesday that he should not.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said later he plans to try to head off the showdown vote, although he conceded he has not decided how and does not know if the committee will go along.

"I think we're close enough to work something out," Aspin said. "... If we (the full House) vote, that's blown it. Then we can't negotiate."

Pike told all 435 House members in a "Dear Colleague" letter that contempt action against Kissinger would not "cause the earth to tremble nor the sun to stop in its tracks.

"No one is seeking to place Mr. Kissinger in jail," Pike wrote fellow members, "and the worst that can happen to him is that he might have to provide the documents subpoenaed to Congress."

Ford's compromise offer was to identify to the House committee all U.S. covert intelligence operations abroad since 1961 that were requested by the State Department, rather than by intelligence agencies.

But Pike said that does not comply with the committee's subpoena for all State Department requests for information on all covert operations whether carried out or not.

Pike said the State Department originally told his committee it requested five covert operations during the 14 years but said the department has now found 25 requests for covert operations.

Dropping two other contempt citations against Kissinger, Pike filed minutes after the House opened for business Moday the one for Kissinger's refusal to turn over the State Department covert operation requests.

It charges Kissinger with "contumacious conduct," and if approved by the House would direct Speaker Carl Albert to turn the case over to the local U.S. attorney for prosecution.

Albert refused to either back Pike or oppose him but indicated he would not stand in the way of a House contempt vote if Pike asks for one.

High Court To Consider Housing Impact Statements

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to decide whether federal housing authorities must publicly assess the environmental effects of perhaps thousands of resort and suburban housing projects

The court's decision later this term could have a major impact on the development of resort property near scenic waterways and woodlands and also would affect conventional housing developments near such major cities as New York, Chicago and Washington.

The justices will decide whether the Department of Housing and Urban Development must prepare environmental impact statements about real estate developments to be advertised and marketed in interstate commerce.

Many resort developers attempt to reach potential buyers in several states. Developers of subdivisions in metropolitan areas straddling the state boundaries also have a potential multistate market.

The housing case arose when the Scenic Rivers Association of Oklahoma and the Illinois River Conservation Council challenged the Flint Ridge Development Co.'s plans to build resort housing in the Illinois River basin in eastern Oklahoma.

Federal law requires real estate developers to disclose financial information and details of their proposed housing projects in statements filed with HUD. The law covers all projects marketed in interstate commerce.

In other action, the court:

— Agreed to decide whether prison officials must provide information obtained from informers to inmates protesting a transfer to another institution.

— Refused to review a decision subjecting a Colorado newspaper to damages for libel because of statements published in an editorial and in letters from readers.

— Declined to review a decision that the Los Angeles Herald Examiner is not liable for actions of a financial columnist who wrote about a company in which he owned stock.

— Refused to hear arguments from several Indian tribes claiming they deserve more money in compensation for land taken from them.

— Refused to interfere with the perjury conviction of Dwight L. Chapin, one-time appointments secretary to former President Richard M. Nixon. Chapin was convicted and sentenced to 10 to 30 months in prison for lying to the grand jury investigating political dirty tricks in Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign.

Gag Order Sought For Patty's Lawyers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Prosecutors in the Patricia Hearst case asked Monday that a gag order be issued to prevent the newspaper heiress' attorneys from commenting publicly on the case.

The prosecutors charged that Miss Hearst's lawyers were generating publicity, in advance of her bank robbery trial, designed to "influence potential jurors" to view her sympathetically.

The prosecutors asked U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter to issue an order prohibiting public comment by the attorneys and other principals in the trial. The government accused defense lawyers of waging a "publicity campaign."

The defense attorneys, F. Lee Bailey and Al Johnson, were trying "to evoke a sympathetic public image" for Miss Hearst by "stressing her mental condition," the prosecutors said in a motion requesting the order.

The requested order was aimed at both the prosecution and the defense, enforcement officers and expert witnesses.

Judge Dismisses Charges Against Bernadine Nichols

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Federal firearms charges against one of four American Indians on trial at Wichita were dismissed Monday by U.S. District Judge Frank Theis.

Theis dismissed all charges against Bernadine Nichols, 21, of Pine Ridge, S.D., on grounds the government had failed to provide sufficient evidence against her.

The woman and three other persons were charged with interstate transportation of illegal firearms and explosives after a car exploded and burned Sept. 10 on the Kansas Turnpike north of Wellington, Kan.

The federal judge overruled similar motions to dismiss charges against Robert Eugene Robideau, 28. Pine Ridge; Keith DeMarrias, 22, Waubay, S.D.; and Norman Charles, 18, Rosebud, S.D.

Burglars Take List Of Wallace Backers

Jacksonville, Fla. (UPI) — Someone broke into the Florida headquarters of Democratic presidential hopeful George Wallace over the weekend and stole a list of his state campaign contributors, Wallace officials said Monday.

Fitzhugh Powell, a spokesman for the Wallace headquarters, called it "a mini-Watergate" and said whoever ransacked the three-office suite on the eighth floor of the Blackstone Building "knew exactly what he was doing."

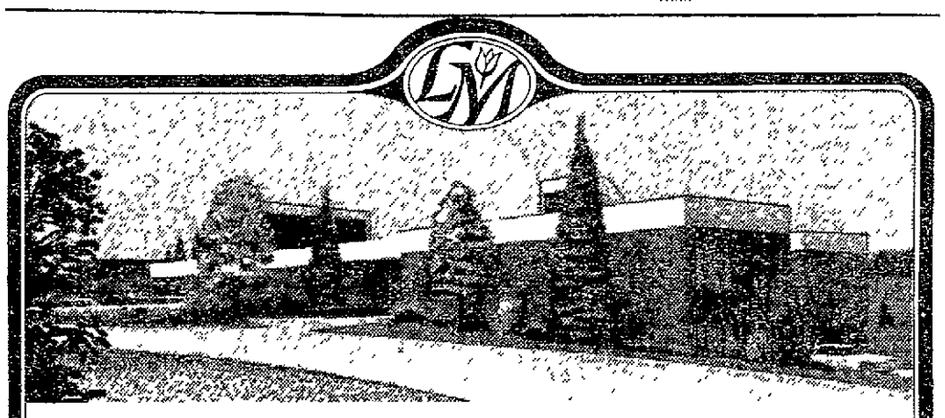

Besides the computer printout of campaign contributors, Powell said other items taken were letterhead envelopes and stationery, selected index cards with the names and addresses of Wallace's key workers in Florida, and about $200 from the office's petty cash fund.

Asked how many names may have been on the printout, Powell said. "We ain't never counted them."

Judge Dismisses Charges Against Bernadine Nichols

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Federal firearms charges against one of four American Indians on trial at Wichita were dismissed Monday by U.S. District Judge Frank Theis.

Theis dismissed all charges against Bernadine Nichols, 21, of Pine Ridge, S.D., on grounds the government had failed to provide sufficient evidence against her.

The woman and three other persons were charged with interstate transportation of illegal firearms and explosives after a car exploded and burned Sept. 10 on the Kansas Turnpike north of Wellington, Kan.

The federal judge overruled similar motions to dismiss charges against Robert Eugene Robideau, 28, Pine Ridge; Keith DeMarrias, 22, Waubay, S.D.; and Norman Charles, 18, Rosebud, S.D.

Burglars Take List Of Wallace Backers

Jacksonville, Fla. (UPI) — Someone broke into the Florida headquarters of Democratic presidential hopeful George Wallace over the weekend and stole a list of his state campaign contributors, Wallace officials said Monday.

Fitzhugh Powell, a spokesman for the Wallace headquarters, called it "a mini-Watergate" and said whoever ransacked the three-office suite on the eighth floor of the Blackstone Building "knew exactly what he was doing."

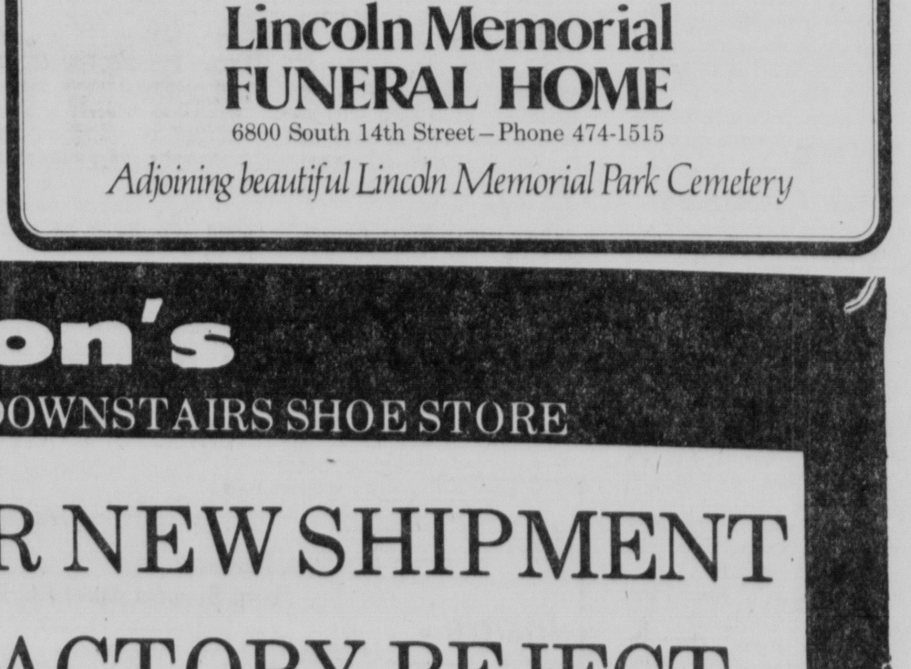

Besides the computer printout of campaign contributors, Powell said other items taken were letterhead envelopes and stationery, selected index cards with the names and addresses of Wallace's key workers in Florida, and about $200 from the office's petty cash fund.

Asked how many names may have been on the printout, Powell said, "We ain't never counted them."

Jewish Squatters Out

Jerusalem (AP) — The Israeli cabinet, after sharp debate, directed the Defense Ministry to move against some 500 Jewish squatters seeking to establish a settlement in the Jordanian West Bank.

Economy & Convenience

Can a funeral be dignified, convenient and inexpensive all at the same time? At Lincoln Memorial Funeral Home the answer is "yes". We believe that the beauty and dignity of a funeral should never be measured by its cost. And, we take special care in outlining all costs and options so that a service can be designed to your exact desires. And yes, a funeral can be convenient too. Lincoln Memorial Funeral Home is only minutes away from anywhere in Lincoln, yet it seems miles away from urban noise and confusion. Our location, adjacent to Lincoln Memorial Park, can eliminate tedious processions. These are only a few of the thoughtful features, including a crematory, which make Lincoln Memorial Funeral Home Nebraska's most complete funeral facility.

We invite your inquiry.

The Evidence Pardons No One

The debate over the abuse of power by police and intelligence agencies continues to rage. The revelations of past abuse continue to pour forth and the theories as to the extent of abuse and who authorized the acts present themselves.

Elsewhere on this page today, three columnists attack the general problem from different aspects.

"The real question we should be asking today," says William Safire, "is this: Why didn't the public know about the dirty tricks of the FBI and the CIA long before this?"

We don't believe that is the "real question" springing from the unnerving and image-shattering disclosures that have produced the convulsive events in our recent history.

That we know is the important thing, not when we knew.

Saving Richard Nixon's hide and keeping his reputation safe for the history books, as Safire would do, is not the primary concern of the age.

It is now public knowledge that abuses of power and political trickstering by the secret agencies have been going on for 40 years or so. It is suggested, with considerable evidence to support the suggestions, that some of the abuses under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson were just as bad and in some cases worse than what transpired during the Nixon reign and that the agencies were not perverters of the Constitution on their own, but were merely the humble servants of the likes of FDR, JFK and LBJ as well as the disgraced former president now in exile. Although there is evidence to support the argument that the agencies only followed the lead of the chief executive in many cases, it is still accepted as fact that the leadership of this nation for decades was hostage to J. Edgar Hoover, who ignored the Constitution on his own and not because somebody told him it was okay — but that is a different story.

The question is, now that Americans are confronted with a mass of evidence pointing to decades of dirty tricks on the part of agencies which are supposed to protect them, what do they do with it?

The evidence is not there, in our opinion, for use in rehabilitating the reputation of Richard Nixon, as those who have always argued that "everybody else did it" would have it.

Nixon's primary crime was that he lied and lied and lied to the people. When he got caught with his hand in the cookie jar he tried to look the camera in the eye and said haltingly and quaveringly that indeed, he did not have his hand in the cookie jar. He is in disrepute now for that more than anything else and whatever FDR, JFK or anybody else did cannot excuse him for it in the eyes of the people.

Nor can the dead presidents be forgiven what we now know.

The evidence is there, the mass of it, not to be used to apologize for one and all, not to say that one was no worse than the other because they all did it — but to remind us of what a corrupting force power is and to illustrate for those who assume power that there are both right and wrong ways of doing things.

Planning — Means Or End?

The automobile, apparently, continues to dominate the work of those citizens trying to formulate a new city plan for Lincoln. Entering into the discussion at the last meeting of the City-County Planning Commission was what amounts to a fundamental definition of planning.

Trying to ascertain the future use of the automobile prompted two commission members to speculate that the group may be trying to look too far ahead. Lou Shackelford and Thelma Miller both advanced the notion that current planning difficulties might be related to too much crystal balling.

That raises, in our opinion, the question of fundamentals referred to above. That question has to do with the proper role of planning as either an end in itself or a means.

Perhaps it is both at different times but we have the feeling that there are those in the planning group who would make it far more of an end than a means. That, in our opinion would be a mistake.

The purpose of planning as we have always understood it is to look into the future as intelligently as possible and seek to make the best of what is going to happen. That means trying to deal with what happens, not necessarily trying to determine what happens.

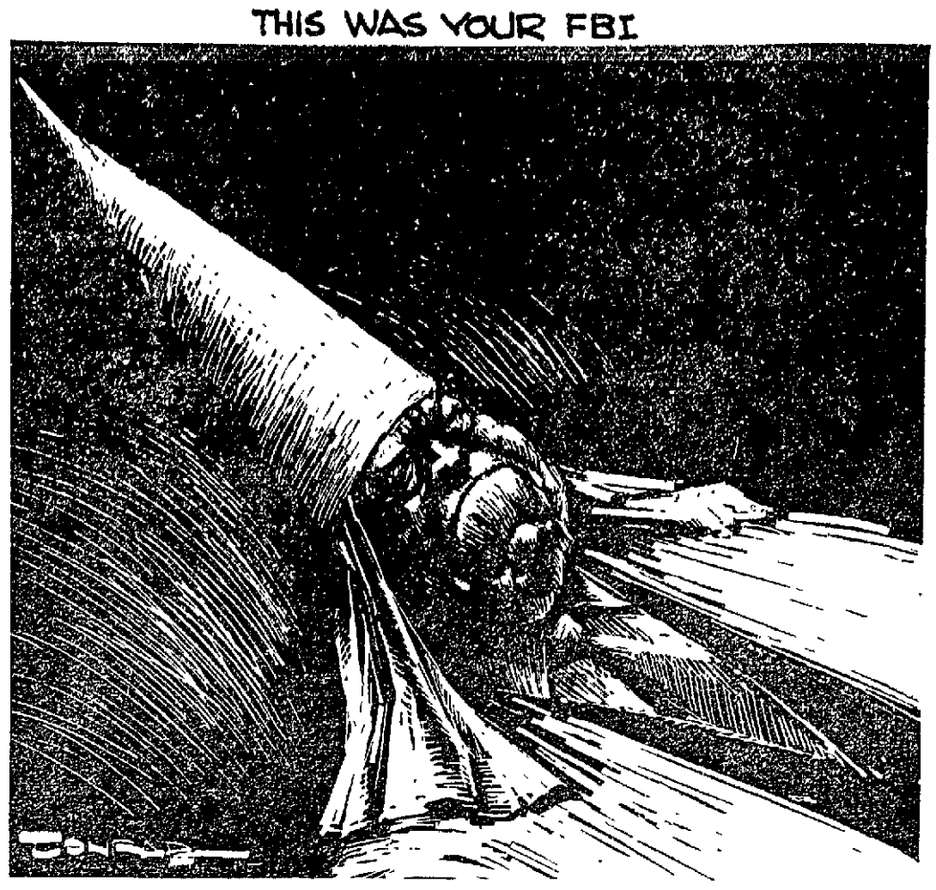

If there are those in the planning process who do not understand or appreciate the distinction, that would explain some of the current problems of trying to define the city's goals and objectives. The automobile is a perfect case in point.

Is it the job of the planners to dictate what the future use of the automobile will be or is their job to determine what that use will be and try to make the best of it? The latter is their correct job.

Another case in point is the question of growth. Is it the job of planners to set specific growth limits or to deal with the growth that can be predicted? Their job, again, is the latter. The fact of growth should be determined by the natural course of events, not by government edict. The way in which we grow is a proper planning concern.

Schackelford and Mrs. Miller have touched upon a basic consideration that deserves more attention in the planning process than it has received to date. Planning groups would be a lot better off and find their task far less difficult if they more clearly understood their authority and their responsibility. They are not to determine the future, but rather, to deal with it.

THIS WAS YOUR FBI

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Orchestrating Outrage

"He misused the Federal Bureau of Investigation . . . to conduct or continue electronic surveillance or other investigations for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office . . ."

— From Article 11, Section 2, of the impeachment of Richard Nixon.

WASHINGTON — We are all now permitted to recognize as truth one central point that Nixon's defenders have been making for two years: That the use of the FBI for political purposes in the Nixon administration was mild compared with the misuse of that agency in the Johnson and Kennedy years.

MIT Prof. Noam Chomsky, that giant of linguistics who joined or led just about every radical antiwar protest during the 60's, has this to say in his introduction to "Cointelpro — The FBI's Secret War on Political Freedom," published last week by Pathfinder Press:

"Illegal FBI operations (under Kennedy and Johnson) . . . while incomparably more serious than anything charged in the congressional articles of impeachment or other denunciations of Nixon, aroused scant interest and little concern, specifically, in the organs of American liberalism that were so agitated over the latest tax trickery or tape erasure.

"Ergo" concludes Chomsky, "Nixon's defenders do have a case."

Nicholas Von Hoffman, a modern Peter Porcupine whose Nixon-hating credentials have always been in good order, writes:

"In the months since his departure, his defense looks better and better. Half a dozen congressional committees have brought forth columes of information all adducing that the break-ins the tapping, snooping and harassment have been routine government activities for a generation at least."

☆ ☆ ☆

But what of the frequently-related charge that Nixon's abuses of power far exceeded the occasional transgressions of his two predecessors? My colleague, Tom Wicker, who is not often accused of being a Nixon apologist, disposed of that by writing: "There is no great difference in wiretapping the Democratic National Committee and the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party." (Editor's note: see column below).

And so it appears that revisionism is already doing its work.

History will show the Nixon administration not as the one that invented abuse of power, but the one that gloriously if unwittingly served the cause of individual liberty by the clumsy way it tried to continue the abuses of Kennedy and Johnson.

The real question we should be asking today is this: Why didn't the public know about the dirty tricks of the FBI and the CIA long before this?

The secrets being "revealed" now, accompanied by synthetic gasps of horror and an effort to make J. Edgar Hoover the sole scapegoat, were not secrets at all: They were known to Democratic senators and their staffs, and to some timorous Republicans as well, for two long years.

Why was this vital information not vouchsafed to the public?

Why was it not leaked to, or dug out by, investigative reporters who are otherwise busy being immortalized by our most glamorous movie stars?

Because the public, if possessed of the whole truth, might not have acted as the public opinion manipulators wanted them to. If the whole truth were let out, Nixon might have escaped. That explains the two-year delay in testimony tucked away by the Senate Watergate Committee, much of which is still to come.

And so the greatest cover-up of all took place: The suppression of the truth about Democratic precedents to Watergate, on the grounds that it might ameliorate the hatred being focused on Nixon — on the assumption that the public was too stupid to take action if it were permitted to know the whole story.

The reason for the deliberate suppression of evidence in 1974, for the lackadaisical reportage then of what we see now, was the fear that a false claim of "everybody did it" might make it impossible to hound Nixon out of office.

Everybody did not do it; the Justice Department under Eisenhower, for example, shows up far better than under Roosevelt, Kennedy, Johnson or Nixon. But even assuming the fear of anti-Nixon partisans to be valid, did that give the orchestrators of outrage the right to suppress evidence? To manage the news and fan the hysteria? To prevent perspective?

As each new abuse of power finally dribbles out, we can ask ourselves: "Why now? Why not two years ago?"

ANTHONY LEWIS

With Unclean Hands

BOSTON — "The first requisite of civilization," Freud said, is "Justice — that is, the assurance that a law once made will not be broken in favor of an individual." Or against one, he might have added. The abuses of power in the world since Freud wrote that in 1930 have made clear how much our safety depends on applying the rules equally, to those we like and dislike, those in favor and out.

The point seems obvious enough, but it has to be learned over and over. Recent American history is soiled by examples of right-wing authorities twisting the Construction in order to get at persons they deemed dangerous. And there are some on the left who argue for civil liberties, but evidently would bend the rules to get at those they dislike.

These thoughts are evoked by a piece in the current issue of the New York Review of Books. It is an article so silly as to warrant no attention in itself. What is troubling is that the New York Review, a distinguished intellectual journal particularly sensitive to the abuse of official power, should have published it.

The piece is an attack on the work of the Watergate special prosecution force and on its recent report. The author, Kirkpatrick Sale, says the special prosecutors' performance was so "shoddy" that "one wonders if a deliberately restrictive policy might not have been at work."

What were the sins of the special prosecutors? For one, they "grandly" refused to use "electronic surveillance." That is, they did not have bugs planted in the homes of the former Nixon assistants being investigated and did not tap their telephones.

Another fault was that the prosecutors did not bring enough criminal conspiracy cases. Their report said that they eschewed prosecutions for conspiracy when there was "little or no evidence that the plan had actually been implemented." A feeble excuse, says Sale.

Then the prosecutors' results were so meager. For example, they did not find any culprits in "the clear crime" of erasing 18½ minutes of a White House tape. Ah, if life were only as clear as Sale believes it to be — or if bad guys could only be convicted for being in the vicinity of a crime, without the necessity of evidence actually connecting them to it.

The prosecutors' report is denounced for failing to lay out evidence concerning persons who were not prosecuted. This omission, says Sale, was "the ultimate cover-up." He scorns the view that it would have been an abuse of prosecutorial power to name persons without the protections of a trial where charges would have to be proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

The article quotes a statement by Archibald Cox in favor of fuller factual reports, made in Senate hearings in May, 1973, before he took office. The context then was very different. There was not yet a glimmer of an impeachment proceeding, with all the evidence that it brought to light. Even then, Cox showed concern about damaging individuals in a report. If he had remained special prosecutor, I think he would have limited the report in the same way as his successors. After all, he established the careful rules of procedure, to assure fairness, that so outrage Sale.

If not through the report, Sale argues, the prosecutors could have brought out more facts through the "well established" procedure of a grand jury presentment without indictments. But there is no general authority for federal grand jurys to make presentments, which are frowned upon by civil libertarians. Even the Watergate grand jury's right to send evidence to Congress outside of an indictment was argued in terms of the special circumstances of impeachment.

At what may be the high point of his fustian, Sale compares the prosecutors' report with "its infamous predecessor, the Warren Report." Life for him is one giant conspiracy, including Earl Warren, Richard Nixon, and the young lawyers of the special prosecution force.

Of course there were disappointments in the work of the special prosecutor. But how many expected, in the beginning, that it would lead to the unmasking and disgrace of a president and the conviction of his principal assistants?

And was it wrong that the prosecutors showed care for defendants' rights? Should they have copied the Nixon pattern of evesdropping and conspiracy prosecutions? Would we want the precedent of a prosecutor acting like a fact-finding commission?

When the Senate assassination report came out, Spiro Agnew said the CIA should not give up the option of murder. "It's typical of Americans," he said, "to expect themselves to abide by the rules while others don't." In short, we should copy the totalitarian world in believing that the end justifies the means. Spiro Agnew, meet Kirkpatrick Sale.

TOM WICKER

Power And Corruption

NEW YORK — No wonder the latest Gallup Poll shows a sharp decline in public esteem for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency — from 84 per cent "highly favorable" to the FBI in 1965, for example, to only 37 per cent today. And only 14 per cent of a sample of 1,515 adults were any longer "highly favorable" to the CIA. These figures clearly reflect the long, dismal series of disclosures that both agencies have abused their powers, been misused by their political masters, threatened in various ways the constitutional rights of American citizens they were supposedly protecting, and participated in such reprehensible schemes as murder plots against foreign leaders and character assassination plots against Americans.

The latest of these unlovely disclosures is that the FBI has been supplying secret dossiers, conducting illicit bugs and taps, and carrying on other forms of political surveillance for every president at least back to Franklin Roosevelt.

That merely confirms what most critics of the security agencies have believed all along — that they were not so much evading or thwarting political control as succumbing to it.

Several things need to be said about this — the first of which is that, as apologists for Richard Nixon have insisted, a certain double standard of accountability has been at work. Whatever Nixon's misdeeds, it is now undeniable that he was by no means the first president to order wiretaps, punitive tax investigations, political surveillance of his "enemies," and the like. His critics should be careful, also, about too glibly suggesting that Nixon was a worse offender than his predecessors. There is no great difference in wiretapping the Democratic National Committee and the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party.

In one sense, it might even be to Nixon's credit that he used his private "plumbers" in 1972 rather than perverting the FBI as Lyndon Johnson appears to have done in 1964.

Presidents can hardly be impeached in retrospect, and that Nixon was not doing much that other presidents had not done — save his deliberate participation in the post-Watergate cover-up — is not a reason to regard his forced resignation as unfair or unwarranted. Times changed, and placed Nixon in a different public atmosphere, in the midst of which more became known about the seamier side of his administration than had been known about any before.

That truth will not spare those of us who condemned Nixon from the charge of his partisans that we were looking the other way when earlier presidents were trampling over the Bill of Rights. Nor should it. But a more important point is implicit in that charge, although it is not usually conceded by those who make it.

It is that to a great extent such abuses of power as we are learning about are inherent in the existence of this kind of power. That is not to apologize for efforts to drive Martin Luther King to suicide, or to poison Patrice Lumumba, or to wiretap reporters to learn the sources of leaks, as unfortunate aberrations or unavoidable evils — regrettable, but just a part of necessary intelligence and security work. Most of the repellent events recently disclosed had nothing to do with real, rational intelligence or security concerns. Instead, they represented self-serving political acts, the obsessive pursuits of men corrupted by power, the capricious exercise of that power, by those who had it, simply because they did have it.

Thus, whatever real problems of communist subversion from within and without may have threatened the United States since the 1930s, they could hardly have been greater threats to constitutional rights and individual liberty than those that came to be posed by the great security agencies, with their power to operate both in secrecy and in the name of national security, their unlimited budgets, their freedom from supervision — above all, their subservience to political masters who were enabled by the mere existence of such agencies to flout the Constitution and the law for their own political purposes or obsessions.

No one in Congress or the executive branch has even begun to face — let alone answer — the consequent philosophical and institutional questions: can secret police agencies ever be made compatible with political and intellectual liberty? By what methods of control and accountability can they be made so? Control by whom, accountability to whom?

Overpass Needs Attention

Lincoln, Neb.

As a concerned citizen and a West O businessman, I think it time to bring the deplorable condition of the Harris Overpass to public attention. All Lincoln citizens and especially our elected and appointed officials should be aware of this problem. West O is still one of the most used doorways to our Capital City.

At a recent meeting, one of our public works officials stated that federal funds may be forthcoming for the necessary repair job. I concur. Federal financing would be welcome, but emergency measures must be used. If not, Harris Overpass could be closed by the spring of '76. We people of the western area of the city pay taxes to the same extent that others do. Please, do not overlook our necessities. Harris Overpass was built with federal funds. Surely a quick layer of asphalt to protect the surface until more permanent repairs can be financed and accomplished would be a sound investment. This type of asphalt resurfacing has recently been completed on the I-80 Platte River bridge and the Waverly Overpass.

The West O entrance to the city is now being subjected to much more use than in the past. One of the nation's largest freight lines is now using this route for its eastbound and westbound freight. A few months of this heavier traffic will expose the top layer of steel to salt, water and air. Quick deterioration will result, for when the steel goes, the bridge goes. Immediate action is necessary.

End Run By Hruska

Chicago, Ill.

The editorial in the Nov. 7 Star, "Time for a Closer Look," validates reference to the maxim: "History repeats itself," and to the rest of the maxim, but do we learn from it?

The reason for my query is the parallel questioned in the editorial. The question was whether the defeat of the Mid-State Reclamation District by central Nebraskans logically validates, in the minds of Nebraska's congressional delegation, the shift of Mid-State planning money to the North Loup and O'Neill projects.

The point of the matter is this: It is basically a shift not only of the construction money but also a shift of what I call a dam site. It is not the first time that such a shift has been made by Senator Hruska. The first time was the shift of proposed Dam Site No. 10 south of Lincoln approximately to the Branched Oak dam site. Senator Hruska told a group of us land-owners in the Branched Oak area on Aug. 8, 1965, in person in his Washington office, we who were protesting the Branched Oak project, that "there might be two dams." Two dams! That statement was really an "end run," as everyone now knows. But do we learn from history?

I hope voters in the North Loup and O'Neill areas will decide for themselves whether they want an "end run" by Senator Hruska in 1975 or whenever.

Potential Overlooked

Lincoln, Neb.

Downtown Lincoln's industrial and housing development hopes to the west and north have taken another setback.

Swiss-based United Lely Corporation recently purchased 534 acres of previously zoned land three miles northeast of Lincoln for an assembly plant and industrial complex.

Four major companies have now committed themselves to northeast locations. I.B.M., United Lely Corporation, Dorsey Laboratories and Hy-Gain own nearly 1,600 acres to back up their intentions. Goodyear and the Burlington Northern shops round out a formidable array of employment opportunity in the northeast area.

Residential growth will be generated and it seems highly probable that another shopping and business hub will spring up nearby.

Outsiders often see great potential that local people overlook.

With reference to Senator Ernest Chambers' article about NU in the "Fiasco Bowl" — we're sure we speak for thousands of conservative, sensible fans all over the state who would enjoy seeing Senator Chambers move his big mouth (and other equally obnoxious non-talents) to the state of Oklahoma, although we're sure they wouldn't appreciate it, either.

His comment, "Let football be merely a game," seems to apply to everyone — except Oklahoma. Incidentally, his first prediction (Texas A&M to be whipped by Texas) is already wrong, as are most of his predictions.

We wish ALL Big Eight teams success in their upcoming bowl games.

Turning To The Right Path

Milford, Neb.

What is wrong with America? We are turning away from God and the Bible! In place of God, we are turning to luck, astrology and horoscopes, etc. These things are warned against in the Bible. But still an ever increasing number of Americans are following and believing in such things.

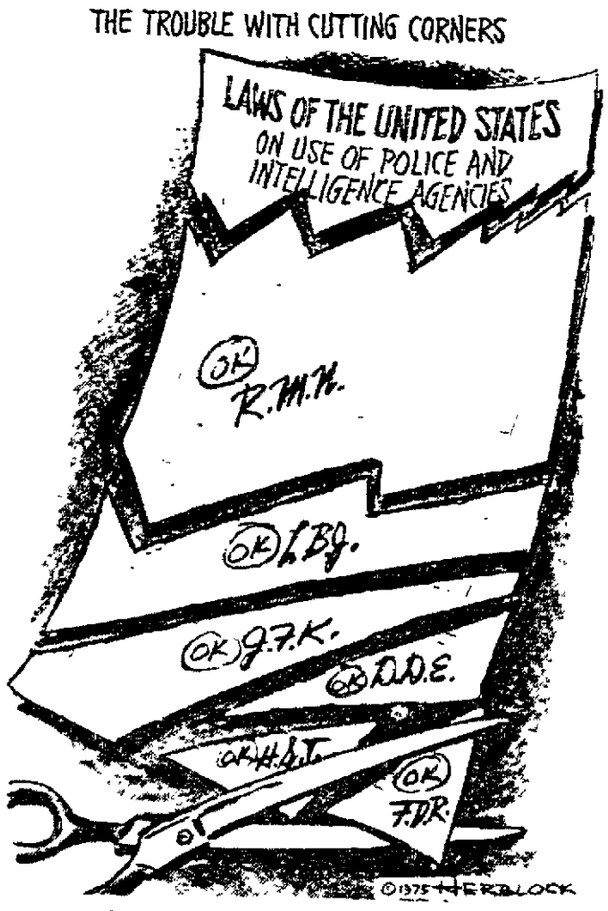

Witchcraft and the powers associated with it are being sought after by thousands of Americans. These are closely related to astrology.

The Star gave a full page on Dec. 3 to "The Secret of Having Good Luck." It is by this means that thousands more people are deceived.

Americans need to trust in God, as it says on our money, and turn away from those other things or as a nation we are doomed to fall. Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a curse to any people.

We don't believe that is the "real question" springing from the unnerving and image-shattering disclosures that have produced the convulsive events in our recent history.

That we know is the important thing, not when we knew.

Saving Richard Nixon's hide and keeping his reputation safe for the history books, as Safire would do, is not the primary concern of the age.

It is now public knowledge that abuses of power and political trickstering by the secret agencies have been going on for 40 years or so. It is suggested, with considerable evidence to support the suggestions, that some of the abuses under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson were just as bad and in some cases worse than what transpired during the Nixon reign and that the agencies were not perverters of the Constitution on their own, but were merely the humble servants of the likes of FDR, JFK and LBJ as well as the disgraced former president now in exile. Although there is evidence to support the argument that the agencies only followed the lead of the chief executive in many cases, it is still accepted as fact that the leadership of this nation for decades was hostage to J. Edgar Hoover, who ignored the Constitution on his own and not because somebody told him it was okay — but that is a different story.

The question is, now that Americans are confronted with a mass of evidence pointing to decades of dirty tricks on the part of agencies which are supposed to protect them, what do they do with it?

The evidence is not there, in our opinion, for use in rehabilitating the reputation of Richard Nixon, as those who have always argued that "everybody else did it" would have it.

Nixon's primary crime was that he lied and lied and lied to the people. When he got caught with his hand in the cookie jar he tried to look the camera in the eye and said haltingly and quaveringly that indeed, he did not have his hand in the cookie jar. He is in disrepute now for that more than anything else and whatever FDR, JFK or anybody else did cannot excuse him for it in the eyes of the people.

Nor can the dead presidents be forgiven what we now know.

The evidence is there, the mass of it, not to be used to apologize for one and all, not to say that one was no worse than the other because they all did it — but to remind us of what a corrupting force power is and to illustrate for those who assume power that there are both right and wrong ways of doing things.

Planning — Means Or End?

The automobile, apparently, continues to dominate the work of those citizens trying to formulate a new city plan for Lincoln. Entering into the discussion at the last meeting of the City-County Planning Commission was what amounts to a fundamental definition of planning.

Trying to ascertain the future use of the automobile prompted two commission members to speculate that the group may be trying to look too far ahead. Lou Shackelford and Thelma Miller both advanced the notion that current planning difficulties might be related to too much crystal balling.

That raises, in our opinion, the question of fundamentals referred to above. That question has to do with the proper role of planning as either an end in itself or a means.

Perhaps it is both at different times but we have the feeling that there are those in the planning group who would make it far more of an end than a means. That, in our opinion would be a mistake.

The purpose of planning as we have always understood it is to look into the future as intelligently as possible and seek to make the best of what is going to happen. That means trying to deal with what happens, not necessarily trying to determine what happens.

If there are those in the planning process who do not understand or appreciate the distinction, that would explain some of the current problems of trying to define the city's goals and objectives. The automobile is a perfect case in point.

Is it the job of the planners to dictate what the future use of the automobile will be or is their job to determine what that use will be and try to make the best of it? The latter is their correct job.

Another case in point is the question of growth. Is it the job of planners to set specific growth limits or to deal with the growth that can be predicted? Their job, again, is the latter. The fact of growth should be determined by the natural course of events, not by government edict. The way in which we grow is a proper planning concern.

Schackelford and Mrs. Miller have touched upon a basic consideration that deserves more attention in the planning process than it has received to date. Planning groups would be a lot better off and find their task far less difficult if they more clearly understood their authority and their responsibility. They are not to determine the future, but rather, to deal with it.

Orchestrating Outrage

"He misused the Federal Bureau of Investigation . . . to conduct or continue electronic surveillance or other investigations for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office . . ."

— From Article 11, Section 2, of the impeachment of Richard Nixon.

WASHINGTON — We are all now permitted to recognize as truth one central point that Nixon's defenders have been making for two years: That the use of the FBI for political purposes in the Nixon administration was mild compared with the misuse of that agency in the Johnson and Kennedy years.

MIT Prof. Noam Chomsky, that giant of linguistics who joined or led just about every radical antiwar protest during the 60's, has this to say in his introduction to "Cointelpro — The FBI's Secret War on Political Freedom," published last week by Pathfinder Press:

"Illegal FBI operations (under Kennedy and Johnson) . . . while incomparably more serious than anything charged in the congressional articles of impeachment or other denunciations of Nixon, aroused scant interest and little concern, specifically, in the organs of American liberalism that were so agitated over the latest tax trickery or tape erasure.

"Ergo" concludes Chomsky, "Nixon's defenders do have a case."

Nicholas Von Hoffman, a modern Peter Porcupine whose Nixon-hating credentials have always been in good order, writes:

"In the months since his departure, his defense looks better and better. Half a dozen congressional committees have brought forth columes of information all adducing that the break-ins the tapping, snooping and harassment have been routine government activities for a generation at least."

☆ ☆ ☆

But what of the frequently-related charge that Nixon's abuses of power far exceeded the occasional transgressions of his two predecessors? My colleague, Tom Wicker, who is not often accused of being a Nixon apologist, disposed of that by writing: "There is no great difference in wiretapping the Democratic National Committee and the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party." (Editor's note: see column below).

And so it appears that revisionism is already doing its work.

History will show the Nixon administration not as the one that invented abuse of power, but the one that gloriously if unwittingly served the cause of individual liberty by the clumsy way it tried to continue the abuses of Kennedy and Johnson.

The real question we should be asking today is this: Why didn't the public know about the dirty tricks of the FBI and the CIA long before this?

The secrets being "revealed" now, accompanied by synthetic gasps of horror and an effort to make J. Edgar Hoover the sole scapegoat, were not secrets at all: They were known to Democratic senators and their staffs, and to some timorous Republicans as well, for two long years.

Why was this vital information not vouchsafed to the public?

Why was it not leaked to, or dug out by, investigative reporters who are otherwise busy being immortalized by our most glamorous movie stars?

Because the public, if possessed of the whole truth, might not have acted as the public opinion manipulators wanted them to. If the whole truth were let out, Nixon might have escaped. That explains the two-year delay in testimony tucked away by the Senate Watergate Committee, much of which is still to come.

And so the greatest cover-up of all took place: The suppression of the truth about Democratic precedents to Watergate, on the grounds that it might ameliorate the hatred being focused on Nixon — on the assumption that the public was too stupid to take action if it were permitted to know the whole story.

The reason for the deliberate suppression of evidence in 1974, for the lackadaisical reportage then of what we see now, was the fear that a false claim of "everybody did it" might make it impossible to hound Nixon out of office.

Everybody did not do it; the Justice Department under Eisenhower, for example, shows up far better than under Roosevelt, Kennedy, Johnson or Nixon. But even assuming the fear of anti-Nixon partisans to be valid, did that give the orchestrators of outrage the right to suppress evidence? To manage the news and fan the hysteria? To prevent perspective?

As each new abuse of power finally dribbles out, we can ask ourselves: "Why now? Why not two years ago?"

ANTHONY LEWIS

With Unclean Hands

BOSTON — "The first requistite of civilization," Freud said, is "Justice — that is, the assurance that a law once made will not be broken in favor of an individual." Or against one, he might have added. The abuses of power in the world since Freud wrote that in 1930 have made clear how much our safety depends on applying the rules equally, to those we like and dislike, those in favor and out.

The point seems obvious enough, but it has to be learned over and over. Recent American history is soiled by examples of right-wing authorities twisting the Construction in order to get at persons they deemed dangerous. And there are some on the left who argue for civil liberties, but evidently would bend the rules to get at those they dislike.

These thoughts are evoked by a piece in the current issue of the New York Review of Books. It is an article so silly as to warrant no attention in itself. What is troubling is that the New York Review, a distinguished intellectual journal particularly sensitive to the abuse of official power, should have published it.

The piece is an attack on the work of the Watergate special prosecution force and on its recent report. The author, Kirkpatrick Sale, says the special prosecutors' performance was so "shoddy" that "one wonders if a deliberately restrictive policy might not have been at work."

What were the sins of the special prosecutors? For one, they "grandly" refused to use "electronic surveillance." That is, they did not have bugs planted in the homes of the former Nixon assistants being investigated and did not tap their telephones.

Another fault was that the prosecutors did not bring enough criminal conspiracy cases. Their report said that they eschewed prosecutions for conspiracy when there was "little or no evidence that the plan had actually been implemented." A feeble excuse, says Sale.

Then the prosecutors' results were so meager. For example, they did not find any culprits in "the clear crime" of erasing 18½ minutes of a White House tape. Ah, if life were only as clear as Sale believes it to be — or if bad guys could only be convicted for being in the vicinity of a crime, without the necessity of evidence actually connecting them to it.

The prosecutors' report is denounced for failing to lay out evidence concerning persons who were not prosecuted. This omission, says Sale, was "the ultimate cover-up." He scorns the view that it would have been an abuse of prosecutorial power to name persons without the protections of a trial where charges would have to be proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

The article quotes a statement by Archibald Cox in favor of fuller factual reports, made in Senate hearings in May , 1973, before he took office. The context then was very different. There was not yet a glimmer of an impeachment proceeding, with all the evidence that it brought to light. Even then, Cox showed concern about damaging individuals in a report. If he had remained special prosecutor, I think he would have limited the report in the same way as his successors. After all, he established the careful rules of procedure, to assure fairness, that so outrage Sale.

If not through the report, Sale argues, the prosecutors could have brought out more facts through the "well established" procedure of a grand jury presentment without indictments. But there is no general authority for federal grand jurys to make presentments, which are frowned upon by civil libertarians. Even the Watergate grand jury's right to send evidence to Congress outside of an indictment was argued in terms of the special circumstances of impeachment.

At what may be the high point of his fustian, Sale compares the prosecutors' report with "its infamous predecessor, the Warren Report." Life for him is one giant conspiracy, including Earl Warren, Richard Nixon, and the young lawyers of the special prosecution force.

Of course there were disappointments in the work of the special prosecutor. But how many expected, in the beginning, that it would lead to the unmasking and disgrace of a president and the conviction of his principal assistants?

And was it wrong that the prosecutors showed care for defendants' rights? Should they have copied the Nixon pattern of evesdropping and conspiracy prosecutions? Would we want the precedent of a prosecutor acting like a fact-finding commission?

When the Senate assassination report came out, Spiro Agnew said the CIA should not give up the option of murder. "It's typical of Americans," he said, "to expect themselves to abide by the rules while others don't." In short, we should copy the totalitarian world in believing that the end justifies the means. Spiro Agnew, meet Kirkpatrick Sale.

Power And Corruption

NEW YORK — No wonder the latest Gallup Poll shows a sharp decline in public esteem for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency — from 84 per cent "highly favorable" to the FBI in 1965, for example, to only 37 per cent today. And only 14 per cent of a sample of 1,515 adults were any longer "highly favorable" to the CIA. These figures clearly reflect the long, dismal series of disclosures that both agencies have abused their powers, been misused by their political masters, threatened in various ways the constitutional rights of American citizens they were supposedly protecting, and participated in such reprehensible schemes as murder plots against foreign leaders and character assassination plots against Americans.

The latest of these unlovely disclosures is that the FBI has been supplying secret dossiers, conducting illicit bugs and taps, and carrying on other forms of political surveillance for every president at least back to Franklin Roosevelt.

That merely confirms what most critics of the security agencies have believed all along — that they were not so much evading or thwarting political control as succumbing to it.

Several things need to be said about this — the first of which is that, as apologists for Richard Nixon have insisted, a certain double standard of accountability has been at work. Whatever Nixon's misdeeds, it is now undeniable that he was by no means the first president to order wiretaps, punitive tax investigations, political surveillance of his "enemies," and the like. His critics should be careful, also, about too glibly suggesting that Nixon was a worse offender than his predecessors. There is no great difference in wiretapping the Democratic National Committee and the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party.

In one sense, it might even be to Nixon's credit that he used his private "plumbers" in 1972 rather than perverting the FBI as Lyndon Johnson appears to have done in 1964.

Presidents can hardly be impeached in retrospect, and that Nixon was not doing much that other presidents had not done — save his deliberate participation in the post-Watergate cover-up — is not a reason to regard his forced resignation as unfair or unwarranted. Times changed, and placed Nixon in a different public atmosphere, in the midst of which more became known about the seamier side of his administration than had been known about any before.

That truth will not spare those of us who condemned Nixon from the charge of his partisans that we were looking the other way when earlier presidents were trampling over the Bill of Rights. Nor should it. But a more important point is implicit in that charge, although it is not usually conceded by those who make it.

It is that to a great extent such abuses of power as we are learning about are inherent in the existence of this kind of power. That is not to apologize for efforts to drive Martin Luther King to suicide, or to poison Patrice Lumumba, or to wiretap reporters to learn the sources of leaks, as unfortunate aberrations or unavoidable evils — regrettable, but just a part of necessary intelligence and security work. Most of the repellent events recently disclosed had nothing to do with real, rational intelligence or security concerns. Instead, they represented self-serving political acts, the obsessive pursuits of men corrupted by power, the capricious exercise of that power, by those who had it, simply because they did have it.

Thus, whatever real problems of communist subversion from within and without may have threatened the United States since the 1930s, they could hardly have been greater threats to constitutional rights and individual liberty than those that came to be posed by the great security agencies, with their power to operate both in secrecy and in the name of national security, their unlimited budgets, their freedom from supervision — above all, their subservience to political masters who were enabled by the mere existence of such agencies to flout the Constitution and the law for their own political purposes or obsessions.

No one in Congress or the executive branch has even begun to face — let alone answer — the consequent philosophical and institutional questions: can secret police agencies ever be made compatible with political and intellectual liberty? By what methods of control and accountability can they be made so? Control by whom, accountability to whom?

Overpass Needs Attention

Lincoln, Neb.

As a concerned citizen and a West O businessman, I think it time to bring the deplorable condition of the Harris Overpass to public attention. All Lincoln citizens and especially our elected and appointed officials should be aware of this problem. West O is still one of the most used doorways to our Capital City.

At a recent meeting, one of our public works officials stated that federal funds may be forthcoming for the necessary repair job. I concur. Federal financing would be welcome, but emergency measures must be used. If not, Harris Overpass could be closed by the spring of '76. We people of the western area of the city pay taxes to the same extent that others do. Please, do not overlook our necessities. Harris Overpass was built with federal funds. Surely a quick layer of asphalt to protect the surface until more permanent repairs can be financed and accomplished would be a sound investment. This type of asphalt resurfacing has recently been completed on the I-80 Platte River bridge and the Waverly Overpass.

The West O entrance to the city is now being subjected to much more use than in the past. One of the nation's largest freight lines is now using this route for its eastbound and westbound freight. A few months of this heavier traffic will expose the top layer of steel to salt, water and air. Quick deterioration will result, for when the steel goes, the bridge goes. Immediate action is necessary.

End Run By Hruska

Chicago, Ill.

The editorial in the Nov. 7 Star, "Time for a Closer Look," validates reference to the maxim: "History repeats itself," and to the rest of the maxim, but do we learn from it?

The reason for my query is the parallel questioned in the editorial. The question was whether the defeat of the Mid-State Reclamation District by central Nebraskans logically validates, in the minds of Nebraska's congressional delegation, the shift of Mid-State planning money to the North Loup and O'Neill projects.

The point of the matter is this: It is basically a shift not only of the construction money but also a shift of what I call a dam site. It is not the first time that such a shift has been made by Senator Hruska. The first time was the shift of proposed Dam Site No. 10 south of Lincoln approximately to the Branched Oak dam site. Senator Hruska told a group of us land-owners in the Branched Oak area on Aug. 8, 1965, in person in his Washington office, we who were protesting the Branched Oak project, that "there might be two dams." Two dams! That statement was really an "end run," as everyone now knows. But do we learn from history?

I hope voters in the North Loup and O'Neill areas will decide for themselves whether they want an "end run" by Senator Hruska in 1975 or whenever.

Potential Overlooked

Lincoln, Neb.

Downtown Lincoln's industrial and housing development hopes to the west and north have taken another setback.

Swiss-based United Lely Corporation recently purchased 534 acres of previously zoned land three miles northeast of Lincoln for an assembly plant and industrial complex.

Four major companies have now committed themselves to northeast locations. I.B.M., United Lely Corporation, Dorsey Laboratories and Hy-Gain own nearly 1,600 acres to back up their intentions. Goodyear and the Burlington Northern shops round out a formidable array of employment opportunity in the northeast area.

Residential growth will be generated and it seems highly probable that another shopping and business hub will spring up nearby.

Outsiders often see great potential that local people overlook.

Turning To The Right Path

Milford, Neb.

What is wrong with America? We are turning away from God and the Bible! In place of God, we are turning to luck, astrology and horoscopes, etc. These things are warned against in the Bible. But still an ever increasing number of Americans are following and believing in such things.

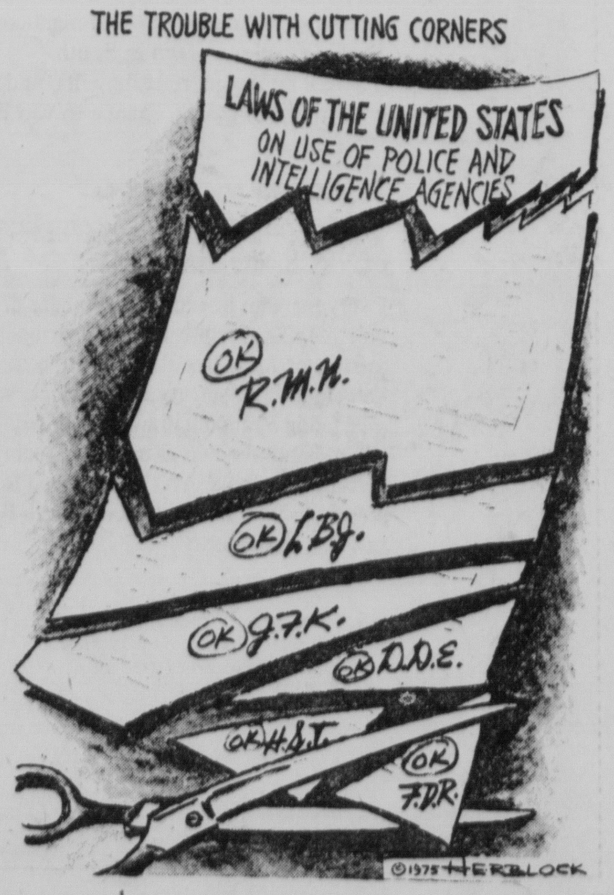

Witchcraft and the powers associated with it are being sought after by thousands of Americans. These are closely related to astrology.

The Star gave a full page on Dec. 3 to "The Secret of Having Good Luck." It is by this means that thousands more people are deceived.

Americans need to trust in God, as it says on our money, and turn away from those other things or as a nation we are doomed to fall. Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a curse to any people.

THE TROUBLE WITH CUTTING CORNERS

Penny-A-Pound Steer Had Cattle Scabies

By United Press International

An outbreak of cattle scabies confirmed in Kearney County was brought into Nebraska from Colorado by a man who purchased a steer for a penny a pound, A U.S. Agriculture Department official said Monday.

Dr. D. D. Philson, district veterinarian for Nebraska, said the man bought the steer from his employer at a Colorado feedlot, taking the animal to Kearney County when he changed jobs in October.

The 800-pound hereford, which Philson said had been badly infected with scabies "for a long time, possibly months," was put in with three calves and then taken to D and M Market at Campbell, Neb., to be slaughtered for a party.

The market is operated by Delton Kempke, who, Philson said, "was public-spirited enough that when he saw the hide on the animal he contacted the brand inspector and the veterinarian to determine whether it was an infectious disease.

"If we had this kind of support from the general public on a daily basis," Philson said, "our problems would be much, much less. The cattle scabies potentially could have infected a large herd, and what Mr. Kempe did was excellent and the spending of a tremendous amount of money was avoided."

Scabies is caused by tiny, parasitic mites that puncture the skin of cattle and feed on body fluids released from the wounds. Heavy infestations cause large, crusty scabs to form. The mites are spread by contact between animals.

The Agriculture Department said six cases of cattle scabies in four states, including Nebraska, were confirmed last month. The mites do not affect the wholesomeness of the meat, the department said.

The Kearney County calves that came in contact with the infected steer from Colorado were quarantined and sprayed with a USDA-approved pesticide.

Philson said the calves were placed under a high pressure pesticide spray that kills the live mites. The animals underwent a second "shower" 10 to 14 days later, Philson said, and "we got the problem solved."

He said the first spray does not kill all the eggs, which would hatch in six to eight days. The second treatment is to kill the nely formed mites before they are sexually mature enough to start laying eggs again.

Principal Is Fined For Fire Violation

Omaha (AP) — For the first time in the memory of local fire officials, a school administrator has been fined for violations of fire regulations in his school.

Mark Mullins, principal of George Norris Junior High School, pleaded guilty to the charges brought by fire inspectors, and paid the $10 fine and $8 court costs out of his own pocket.

According to the complaint, which was filed in Municipal Court, Mullins permitted fire doors "throughout the premises to be wedged open while the building was being occupied."

Battalion Fire Chief Willard Johnson said Mullins had been asked to correct the violations over a period of from four to five months, but didn't.

Mullins was the second principal to appear in court for violations of fire regulations, according to Johnson. In the other case, the charges were dismissed after the alleged violations were corrected, said Johnson.

Firemen To Fight Regulations

Ralston (AP) — Meeting here this weekend, approximately 50 fire chiefs from eastern Nebraska were told of the ambulance regulations proposed by the Nebraska Health Dept. by North Bend Fire Chief Dean Lux, president of their state association.

Criticizing "federal government bureaucrats and the local bureaucrats who do their dirty work," Lux said the chiefs will fight the proposed regulations when they come before the State Board of Ambulance Advisers Dec. 17.

That 12-member board was established by LB418 during the last session of the Legislature after years of disputes over rescue squad standards.

Lack of state ambulance regulations and a state motorcycle helmet law had been cited in threats by the Federal Highway Administration to withhold $7 million in highway safety funds from the state in 1974 and 1975.

The Ambulance Board, whose membership includes six volunteer firemen, has the last word on standards.

Lux said some of the proposed regulations on design, construction, equipment, sanitation and training for attendants are ridiculous.

If the standards are imposed, Lux said, most fire departments will be forced out of the rescue squad business and local governments will have to pick up the tabs.

Lux said volunteer firemen resent "being dictated to by bureaucrats who don't know anything about the practical side of rescue service."

According to Ralston Fire Chief Cari Sulivan, the proposed regulations don't take into account differing conditions across the state.

"Here in Ralston we hardly ever need a four-wheel-drive rescue unit. But out in the Sandhills, they need one all the time. Then again, small departments in the western part of the state can't afford all the equipment we have. These regulations don't recognize the difference."

Another issue is the Health Dept.'s proposal that ambulance attendants be required to have 81 hours of Emergency Medical Technician-Ambulance Training (EMT). Lux said many firemen are voluntarily taking the EMT course, but he added, "we don't like having it stuffed down our throats."

Auditing Firm Chosen By Mid-State Directors

Grand Island (AP) — The Mid-State Reclamation District board of directors met here Monday and appointed a Grand Island firm to audit the Mid-State books for closing.

Last month, voters in Hall, Buffalo and Merrick Counties defeated a continuation of the project.

The task of auditing the books for shutdown was given to Oren, Countryman & Associates of Grand Island.

Don Shriner, Mid-State general manager, said the auditing firm was being approved simultaneously by state officials in Lincoln.

Once the audit is completed and submitted, the state water resources director will make a declaration to close the Mid-State doors within 60 days, according to Shriner.

Shriner said the board will probably hold its last meeting Feb. 2.

Members of the board and staff also took time to reflect on the reasons for the project's defeat at the polls.

Most laid the blame on environmentalists.

"Environmenalists want to knock off three or four major projects to show Congress their political clout, so that they can then get the real legislation they're shooting for to return us to the 1800s," said Shriner.

Volunteer Weathermen's Award Cites Nebraskan

Omaha (AP) — The Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, parent agency of the National Weather Service, Monday announced establishment of the Edward H. Stoll Award after a Nebraskan.

The Stoll Award is a new certificate of recognition for volunteer weather observers, named in honor of a Nebraskan who has written down more than 25,000 daily observations, covering 70 years, at his weather station near Elwood in Gosper County.

NOAA Administrator Dr. Robert M. White said it was the first ever established in the name of a contemporary observer.

He said it was a "privilege for NOAA to honor Stoll, who for more than 70 years has contributed to mankind's fund of knowledge."

Stoll, now 89, began his official weather observations before anyone in the present day weather service was born.

The Edward W. Stoll Award is a length of service certificate to be given to volunteers who have completed weather observations for at least 50 years.

An award ceremony was planned for Dec. 10 at Elwood High School. Members of Congress, federal, state and local officials have been invited.

Charles G. Knudsen, director of the central region head quarters of the National Weather Service, is scheduled to be there for awards' presentations to the nation's senior weather observer.

Omaha (AP) — For the first time in the memory of local fire officials, a school administrator has been fined for violations of fire regulations in his school.

Mark Mullins, principal of George Norris Junior High School, pleaded guilty to the charges brought by fire inspectors, and paid the $10 fine and $8 court costs out of his own pocket.

According to the complaint, which was filed in Municipal Court, Mullins permitted fire doors "throughout the premises to be wedged open while the building was being occupied."

Battalion Fire Chief Willard Johnson said Mullins had been asked to correct the violations over a period of from four to five months, but didn't.

Mullins was the second principal to appear in court for violations of fire regulations, according to Johnson. In the other case, the charges were dismissed after the alleged violations were corrected, said Johnson.

Firemen To Fight Regulations

Ralston (AP) — Meeting here this weekend, approximately 50 fire chiefs from eastern Nebraska were told of the ambulance regulations proposed by the Nebraska Health Dept. by North Bend Fire Chief Dean Lux, president of their state association.

Criticizing "federal government bureaucrats and the local bureaucrats who do their dirty work," Lux said the chiefs will fight the proposed regulations when they come before the State Board of Ambulance Advisers Dec. 17.

That 12-member board was established by LB418 during the last session of the Legislature after years of disputes over rescue squad standards.

Lack of state ambulance regulations and a state motorcycle helmet law had been cited in threats by the Federal Highway Administration to withhold $7 million in highway safety funds from the state in 1974 and 1975.

The Ambulance Board, whose membership includes six volunteer firemen, has the last word on standards.

Lux said some of the proposed regulations on design, construction, equipment, sanitation and training for attendants are ridiculous.

If the standards are imposed, Lux said, most fire departments will be forced out of the rescue squad business and local governments will have to pick up the tabs.

Lux said volunteer firemen resent "being dictated to by bureaucrats who don't know anything about the practical side of rescue service."

According to Ralston Fire Chief Carl Sulivan, the proposed regulations don't take into account differing conditions across the state.

"Here in Ralston we hardly ever need a four-wheel-drive rescue unit. But out in the Sandhills, they need one all the time. Then again, small departments in the western part of the state can't afford all the equipment we have. These regulations don't recognize the difference."

Another issue is the Health Dept.'s proposal that ambulance attendants be required to have 81 hours of Emergency Medical Technician-Ambulance Training (EMT). Lux said many firemen are voluntarily taking the EMT course, but he added, "we don't like having it stuffed down our throats."

Auditing Firm Chosen By Mid-State Directors

Grand Island (AP) — The Mid-State Reclamation District board of directors met here Monday and appointed a Grand Island firm to audit the Mid-State books for closing.

Last month, voters in Hall, Buffalo and Merrick Counties defeated a continuation of the project.

The task of auditing the books for shutdown was given to Oren, Countryman & Associates of Grand Island.

Don Shriner, Mid-State general manager, said the auditing firm was being approved simultaneously by state officials in Lincoln.

Once the audit is completed and submitted, the state water resources director will make a declaration to close the Mid-State doors within 60 days, according to Shriner.

Shriner said the board will probably hold its last meeting Feb. 2.

Members of the board and staff also took time to reflect on the reasons for the project's defeat at the polls.

Most laid the blame on environmentalists.

"Environmenalists want to knock off three or four major projects to show Congress their political clout, so that they can then get the real legislation they're shooting for to return us to the 1800s," said Shriner.

Volunteer Weathermen's Award Cites Nebraskan

Omaha (AP) — The Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, parent agency of the National Weather Service, Monday announced establishment of the Edward H. Stoll Award after a Nebraskan.

The Stoll Award is a new certificate of recognition for volunteer weather observers, named in honor of a Nebraskan who has written down more than 25,000 daily observations, covering 70 years, at his weather station near Elwood in Gosper County.

NOAA Administrator Dr. Robert M. White said it was the first ever established in the name of a contemporary observer.

He said it was a "privilege for NOAA to honor Stoll, who for more than 70 years has contributed to mankind's fund of knowledge."

Stoll, now 89, began his official weather observations before anyone in the present day weather service was born.

The Edward W. Stoll Award is a length of service certificate to be given to volunteers who have completed weather observations for at least 50 years.

An award ceremony was planned for Dec. 10 at Elwood High School. Members of Congress, federal, state and local officials have been invited.

Charles G. Knudsen, director of the central region head quarters of the National Weather Service, is scheduled to be there for awards' presentations to the nation's senior weather observer.

McCollister Sees Necessity Of Self-Discipline In U.S.

Washington (UPI) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., said Monday the "crisis point" concerning the need for "self-discipline and political will" in the United States was "fast approaching."

"A stiffening of political will is desperately needed," McCollister said. "We need self-discipline.

"Our people must realize that there is a single set of economic rules that covers both their family budgets and the larger economic decisions made by their government," McCollister said. "If we don't start facing up to the hard decisions now, it will be a great deal more difficult a few more years down the road."

The 2nd District lawmaker and U.S. Senate candidate said estimates are the United States needs $4.5 trillion over the next decade to "modernize our factories, develop energy resouces and satisfy government environmental and job safety requirements."

"That's three times as much in the next 10 years as ever before," McCollister added.

"The Socialist and Communist countries have made great economic strides, overcoming the inherent inefficiences of their systems, by enforcing a discipline on their people," McCollister said. "They have sacrificed current consumption in order to make massive investments in their economy.

"Our country has done just the opposite," he added. "At every turn we emphasize consumption and deemphasize savings and investment.

"A majority in Congress is pandering to the public appetite for self-indulgent consumption."

McCollister said the "success of our constitutional system rests entirely on the collective will of the individual citizens of our country.

"No group of people has ever held in its hands such awesome responsibilitites for its own future," McCollister said. "The success of our system doesn't depend on the strength and wisdom of a king, but on the energy and dedication of individual citizens like you and me."

Thone Backs Bicentennial Safety Year

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Charles Thone of Lincoln has joined with Rep. William H. Harsha, R-Ohio, in co-sponsoring a resolution that would designate 1976 as "National Bicentennial Highway Safety Year."

Thone said the resolution proposes that federal, state and local governments join with industry, the news media, advertising profession and millions of Americans in promoting a highway safety crusade during 1976.

Thone noted that about 50,000 persons lose their lives on the nation's highways each year, and added that if 50,000 Americans were being killed in a war each year, "we would be deeply concerned."

"We're apathetic about murder on the highway," said the Republican lawmaker.

Thone said an all-out, nationwide safety campaign could reduce the annual highway death toll by as much as 20%.

Omaha Hotel Eyed As Landmark

Omaha (AP) — Landmarks Inc., a private citizens group dedicated to preserving historic and architecturally significant buildings, is investigating the vacant Fontenelle Hotel as a possible project.

Gary Bowen, Omaha architect and chairman of a Landmarks subcommittee called The Rescue Squad, said he and two other architect members hope to inspect the building this week.

"We'll be looking for possible structural failures," Bowen said. Landmarks wants to make sure the building is worth saving before becoming involved in any crusade, he said.

Landmarks members will decide whether the Fontenelle building meets requirements of historical significance or usefulness after the architects make their inspection.

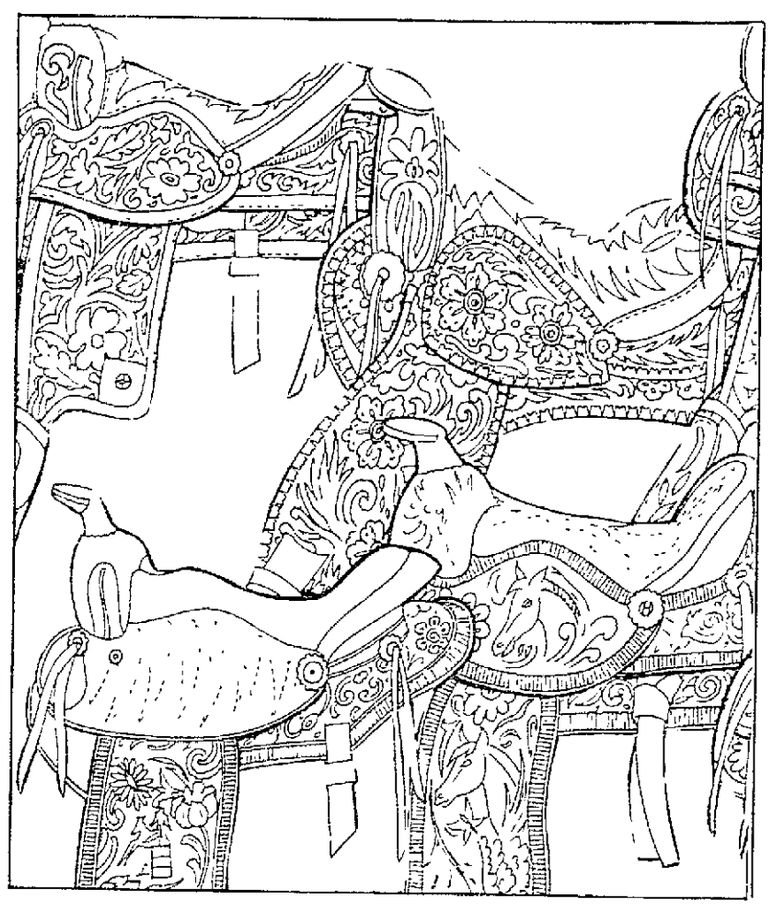

Bowen said the group met last week to discuss the Fontenelle after reading reports that the City Permits and Inspection Department planned to start condemnation proceedings on the building.

A public hearing will be conducted Thursday in the city-county building. Bowen said representatives of Landmarks will attend to give their stand on condemnation plans.

"We've heard reports of some deterioration of the hotel," Bowen said. "But structurally I would assume the building is capable of lasting at least another 50 years. But we just want to make sure."

Justices Postpone Gag Order Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court on Monday refused for the time being to block enforcement of a state court order restricting news coverage of some pretrial actions in a Nebraska murder case.

Justices William J. Brennan, Potter Stewart, and Thurgood Marshall objected to the decision and said they would have granted news organizations' petition for a stay.

The majority, however, simply postponed final action on that and other aspects of the case which has revived the long-standing debate over the constitutional guarantees of a free press and a fair trial.

The court said it was deferring a final decision on the application for a stay of the Nebraska Supreme Court order pending further developments in the case.

The justices also said they will decide whether to grant a full hearing on the matter after receiving legal briefs due from the state attorney general and other state officials on Tuesday.

The dispute involves the murder trial of Erwin Charles Simants, charged with slaying six members of a Sutherland, Neb., family on Oct. 18.

The trial judge, Hugh Stuart of North Platte, issued a so-called gag order prohibiting the publication of any confessions, the circumstances of Simants' arrest and many dtails of the crime.

Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun lifted some parts of the order, but upheld the bulk of the restrictions in preliminary action. He ruled on a request by the Nebraska Press Association that the restrictions be overruled.

Then on Dec. 1, the state Supreme Court upheld the ban on reporting any confessions, the circumstances of the arrest and other "information strongly implicative of the accused."

The state court also ruled that pretrial proceedings in future criminal cases may be partly or entirely closed to the public and the press despite a state law and a state constitutional provision requiring open judicial proceedings.

The news organizations asked the Supreme Court for an emergency hearing and an immediate stay of the state court decision.

The justices responded by calling for reply briefs from state officials by Tuesday.

In a related action on Monday, the justices denied the news organizations' plea for an order vacating the restrictive parts of Blackmun's stay order.

The court said Blackmun's order "is no longer effective" because of the ruling by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Simants' trial is scheduled to begin in January, but the debate over news coverage arose during pretrial proceedings.

Dream Of Sandoz Center Starting To Take Shape

By LIANE GUENTHER
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Five years ago, the Mari Sandoz Center for the Study of Man was a "big dream" in the minds of a number of her devoted fans in western Nebraska.

Monday that dream started taking form — in paper and cardboard — as faculty and students of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Architecture shared their plans and designs for the proposed center.

Chadron State College, in conjunction with the Mari Sandoz Heritage Society, is spearheading an effort to establish a living memorial to Mari Sandoz on that college's campus, within 75 miles of her birthplace and grave.

Judy McDonald, chairman of the Sandoz Society, explained that the committee's goal is to perpetuate the memory and work of the Nebraska author who died in 1966.

Twenty-six third-year students of professors Bill Borner and Keith Sawyers were given eight weeks to produce an idea and model for the proposed center.

Seven students were present Monday to explain their designs. They included Dan Worth of Oakland, Dennis Raynor of Lincoln, Liz Dutton of Omaha, Rich Kuhl of Lincoln, Kim Klawson of Lincoln, Jerry Rath of Harvard and John Reinnitz of Lincoln.

After seeing the students' ideas Dr. Ed Nelson, Chadron State president, said, "this was a tremendous opportunity to get so many concepts

Instead of solving the committee's questions on a site or design, Dr. Nelson said the students "put many more questions and great ideas into our minds."

Members of the society decided to borrow several of the designs to display in various towns in western Nebraska to generate more interest in the project.

At a society meeting in late January, a building committee will be established to select either one plan or aspects of several designs to be incorporated into the center.

The building committee will also be responsible for deciding, "What next?" Miss McDonald said, whether to solicit money from private donors or to approach the state for an appropriation.

As it is, the committee has set no schedule for completion of the project.

"We said within 50 years," Miss McDonald said, "and that was only five years ago. This thing has boomeranged much faster and further than we thought it would."

The committee is currently looking toward a $1 million structure, with about 25,000 square feet of space for displays, research, storage, an auditorium and classroom.

Sandoz herself wanted a resource center in western Nebraska so people wouldn't have to leave that area, Miss McDonald said.

The Sandoz Society's "big dream" is to fulfill her wish.

Court Refuses To Hear Indians' Tax Question

Washington (AP) — Three Indian tribes Monday lost their bid for Supreme Court review of Nebraska's attempt to tax their income for work on federally recognized Indian reservations.

The justices refused to review a federal appeals court decision upholding the state's right to collect income taxes from Omaha, Santee Sioux and Winnebago tribes on income earned within the reservations.

The action could affect more than 100,000 Indians living on reservations in a dozen other states as well as Nebraska.

Attorneys with the Native American Rights Fund, representing the three tribes, argued that the state has no right to tax income earned entirely within the reservation by Indians living on the reservation.

They contended that such a tax is illegal because Congress has not expressly authorized it.

But the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis ruled that the tax was permissible under a 1953 federal statute which gave 13 states jurisdiction over Indian tribes within their boundaries in civil and criminal matters.

On Nov. 3, the court agreed to review a decision of the Minnesota Supreme Court upholding collection of property tax on personal property of Indians on their reservations.

On the same day, the U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco ruled that local ordinances are not affected by the 1953 act.

The Native American Rights Funds lawyers said that in view of this development the Minnesota case could be decided without determining the effect of the federal act on state tax laws. They asked the court to hear both cases in order to be sure that this question is settled.

Type In Error; Perez Directs Community Unit

A typesetter's error turned the word "community" into "communist" in a story in Saturday morning's Star.

John Perez should have been identified as director of community service relations for the U.S. Justice Department in Kansas City.

Perez was reported as saying two men from his department have been in Lincoln to try to assist with tensions existing since the shooting death of Sherdell Lewis by Deputy Sheriff Rod Loos.

The dispute involves the murder trial of Erwin Charles Simants, charged with slaying six members of a Sutherland, Neb., family on Oct. 18.

The trial judge, Hugh Stuart of North Platte, issued a so-called gag order prohibiting the publication of any confessions, the circumstances of Simants' arrest and many dtails of the crime.

Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun lifted some parts of the order, but upheld the bulk of the restrictions in preliminary action. He ruled on a request by the Nebraska Press Association that the restrictions be overruled.

Then on Dec. 1, the state Supreme Court upheld the ban on reporting any confessions, the circumstances of the arrest and other "information strongly implicative of the accused."

The state court also ruled that pretrial proceedings in future criminal cases may be partly or entirely closed to the public and the press despite a state law and a state constitutional provision requiring open judicial proceedings.

The news organizations asked the Supreme Court for an emergency hearing and an immediate stay of the state court decision.

The justices responded by calling for reply briefs from state officials by Tuesday.

In a related action on Monday, the justices denied the news organizations' plea for an order vacating the restrictive parts of Blackmun's stay order.

The court said Blackmun's order "is no longer effective" because of the ruling by the Nebraska Supreme Court.

Simants' trial is scheduled to begin in January, but the debate over news coverage arose during pretrial proceedings.

Court Refuses To Hear Indians' Tax Question

Washington (AP) — Three Indian tribes Monday lost their bid for Supreme Court review of Nebraska's attempt to tax their income for work on federally recognized Indian reservations.

The justices refused to review a federal appeals court decision upholding the state's right to collect income taxes from Omaha, Santee Sioux and Winnebago tribes on income earned within the reservations.

The action could affect more than 100,000 Indians living on reservations in a dozen other states as well as Nebraska.

Attorneys with the Native American Rights Fund, representing the three tribes, argued that the state has no right to tax income earned entirely within the reservation by Indians living on the reservation.

They contended that such a tax is illegal because Congress has not expressly authorized it.

But the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis ruled that the tax was permissible under a 1953 federal statute which gave 13 states jurisdiction over Indian tribes within their boundaries in civil and criminal matters.

On Nov. 3, the court agreed to review a decision of the Minnesota Supreme Court upholding collection of property tax on personal property of Indians on their reservations.

On the same day, the U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco ruled that local ordinances are not affected by the 1953 act.

The Native American Rights Funds lawyers said that in view of this development the Minnesota case could be decided without determining the effect of the federal act on state tax laws. They asked the court to hear both cases in order to be sure that this question is settled.

Type In Error; Perez Directs Community Unit

A typesetter's error turned the word "community" into "communist" in a story in Saturday morning's Star.

John Perez should have been identified as director of community service relations for the U.S. Justice Department in Kansas City.

Perez was reported as saying two men from his department have been in Lincoln to try to assist with tensions existing since the shooting death of Sherdell Lewis by Deputy Sheriff Rod Loos.

Dream Of Sandoz Center Starting To Take Shape

By LIANE GUENTHER
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Five years ago, the Mari Sandoz Center for the Study of Man was a "big dream" in the minds of a number of her devoted fans in western Nebraska.

Monday that dream started taking form — in paper and cardboard — as faculty and students of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln School of Architecture shared their plans and designs for the proposed center.

Chadron State College, in conjunction with the Mari Sandoz Heritage Society, is spearheading an effort to establish a living memorial to Mari Sandoz on that college's campus, within 75 miles of her birthplace and grave.

Judy McDonald, chairman of the Sandoz Society, explained that the committee's goal is to perpetuate the memory and work of the Nebraska author who died in 1966.

Twenty-six third-year students of professors Bill Borner and Keith Sawyers were given eight weeks to produce an idea and model for the proposed center.

Seven students were present Monday to explain their designs. They included Dan Worth of Oakland, Dennis Raynor of Lincoln, Liz Dutton of Omaha, Rich Kuhl of Lincoln, Kim Klawson of Lincoln, Jerry Rath of Harvard and John Reinnitz of Lincoln.

After seeing the students' ideas, Dr. Ed Nelson, Chadron State president, said, "this was a tremendous opportunity to get so many concepts . . ."

Instead of solving the committee's questions on a site or design, Dr. Nelson said the students "put many more questions and great ideas into our minds."

Members of the society decided to borrow several of the designs to display in various towns in western Nebraska to generate more interest in the project.

At a society meeting in late January, a building committee will be established to select either one plan or aspects of several designs to be incorporated into the center.

The building committee will also be responsible for deciding, "What next?" Miss McDonald said . . . whether to solicit money from private donors or to approach the state for an appropriation.

As it is, the committee has set no schedule for completion of the project.

"We said within 50 years," Miss McDonald said, "and that was only five years ago. This thing has boomeranged much faster and further than we thought it would."

The committee is currently looking toward a $1 million structure, with about 25,000 square feet of space for displays, research, storage, an auditorium and classroom.

"Sandoz herself wanted a resource center in western Nebraska so people wouldn't have to leave that area," Miss McDonald said.

The Sandoz Society's "big dream" is to fulfill her wish.

Farm-Labor Interests Said 'Often In Conflict'

Dakota City — Repeated efforts by political activists to build a political coalition of farmers and labor union members will continue to fail, the director of the Washington office of the American Farm Bureau Federation said here Monday night.

Roger Fleming, secretary-treasurer of the federation, addressed the banquet session of the annual meeting of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation.

"Farmers and labor union members have some objectives in common — such as high employment and widely distributed real income," Fleming said, "but their economic interests often are in conflict. The propaganda that their interests are the same is ludicrous.

"The inherent weakness in any farmer-labor coalition was demonstrated this year when president George Meany of the AFL-CIO, aided and abetted by Secretary of Labor Dunlop, persuaded President Ford to embargo U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union . . ."

The Farm Bureau officer told the Nebraskans the bicentennial year is "a most appropriate occasion to review the mainsprings of the success of the American private competitive enterprise system.

"The foundation of our unparalleled progress," he said, "is the freedom, initiative, and opportunity of the individual . . ."

In his address to the convention Monday afternoon, retiring state president John Klinker of Millard noted the hours the Farm Bureau officers spend working on issues before the Nebraska Legislature.

Klinker praised involvement of the Farm Bureau in programs connected with the installation of the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the establishment of the vice chancellor (for agriculture) in 1973.

He lauded bureau participation in activities which led to the budgeting of $8 million for the Veterinary Science Department at the institute in 1974 and the $10 million appropriation for the plant science complex this year.

While commenting on national farm activities, Klinker said, "We are now using American produce as a bargaining tool in diplomatic maneuvering.

"We have set a precedent which can lead to, and as some commentators are now predicting, a loss of future export markets to us, (and) the dividing up of export markets among exporting countries . . ."

Klinker said the moratorium on grain shipments "severely disrupted the market, lost to us millions of tons of commodities in the export market and further deteriorated America's position as a dependable supplier in the world market."

He said the government, the American people and perhaps those in the entire world must soon realize that America "is the only country with the capability and capacity to provide the materials for a cold and hungry world."

Election Planned By Farm Bureau

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Dakota City — Representatives from all 87 counties in Nebraska having a local Farm Bureau are expected to register as delegates for the state's largest general farm organization convention, which began here Monday.

The Farm Bureau will elect a new president to succeed retiring John Klinker of Millard, who will not be a candidate due to health problems.

The heir apparent to the presidency is Wendell Gangwish of Wood River, who is state vice president, as was Klinker before his election three years ago.

The nomination committee is expected to offer other candidates and nominations may be presented from the convention floor.

The convention delegates are expected to vote on a long list of state resolutions and on recommendations to the national Farm Bureau convention. The state resolutions committee has been working on the list of resolutions to be presented to the convention since last Wednesday.

Committee members say there are three items that will probably produce considerable convention discussion. These include the coal-slurry pipeline proposed for construction across the state, the question of export embargos of agricultural products and the threat that the state effort to reduce property taxes will be ended.

Parental concern about what is being taught to their children in school, controversies over how school children's grades are reported to their parents, concern over the quality of supervision of children on trips away from the school and the issue of school busing in rural areas are all being discussed

Delegates who have a farm near cities are concerned about the urban regulations interfering with their farming operations.

One woman, discussing the problem, complained of being charged with watering her lawn on the wrong day of the week by a group of city neighbors. Higher city taxes, electrical inspections, building inspections and problems relating to pollution from livestock all add to the stress when a farm borders a city.

The women attending the convention are interested in the traditional women's area of children's welfare, homemaking, school and church activities, but they are also well versed in tax law, the intricacies of farm recordkeeping and political problems on the local, state and national levels.

Women candidates for office are sometimes reluctant to take an aggressive position as an orgaizational leader, but are also reluctant to sit back and accept programs for women that are selected by men.

A woman who has been urged to run as a Farm Bureau district director said, "I think it is time the organization gave both men and women a wider choice in the roles they play in the development of Farm Bureau policies. I am not sure I want to be a leader, but I am no longer satisfied to be just a follower. I am a Farm Bureau member, not a Farm Bureau member's wife."

Poverty Called 'Acid That Drips On Pride'

With an exhortation to fight and win the war against poverty and a slide show highlighting clients and efforts of the past, the Lincoln Action Program celebrated its 10th anniversary Monday night.

"Poverty is an acid that drips on pride until all pride is worn away, a chisel that chips at honor until all honor is gone," the keynote speaker, W. Dean Goldsby, told the crowd of around 200.

Goldsby, the chairman of action programs for community services in Washington, D.C., said the founding fathers meant for all men to enjoy life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness 200 years ago when they signed the Declaration of Independence.

"Meaning it and doing it are two different things," said Goldsby, noting that slavery was permitted until the 1960's.

After the Civil War, another kind of slavery was used, he said, economic slavery.

"It took the Depression of the 1930s for people to realize that just because a person wanted a job, didn't mean he could always get one," Goldsby said.

It took the '60s and the work of Martin Luther King, Cesar Chavez, the American Indian Movement and campus unrest to get people to pay attention to the problems of discrimination and poverty in this county, Goldsby said.

Poverty is being tired and dirty, quitting junior high school to go to work and looking to a bleak future for your children, he said.

Poverty workers in this country are few, don't have the programs, the help or the funds they need, he said, but they must not fail.

"This is the time for action — we shall win the war on poverty," Goldsby said.

The speaker was preceded by a short slide presentation entitled "The Way We Were," which showed people who have been involved in LAP in the last 10 years.

Farm Exposition Slated Next Month

Columbus — The ninth annual Northeast/Central Nebraska Farm Exposition is scheduled for Jan. 13 and 14 in Columbus. Last year's event attracted over 9,000 persons. Speakers scheduled include John Addink, University of Nebraska Extension irrigation specialist; John Witkowski, NU Extension entomologist; Ed Penas, district Extension agronomist; Paul Fischbach, Extension irrigation specialist; Dean Axthelm, Extension water resource specialist; and Phil Henderson, Extension economist.

Jensby Honored For Volunteer Service

Nelson — Lawrence Jensby of Nelson has been cited by the Mid-Nebraska Mental Retardation Services as an outstanding volunteer. He volunteered many hours to help in landscaping and preparing the front lawn of the Nelson adult residence, where 11 adults are housed.

Boys Town To Mark Anniversary

Boys Town (UPI) — Boys Town will celebrate its 58th anniversary Friday during an anniversary liturgy at the Dowd Memorial Chapel on the Boys Town campus. The Rev. Robert P. Hupp, Boys Town director, said anniversary observance will be an opportunity to "reflect on the tremendous good that the home has exerted on nearly 14,000 boys, and to offer thanks for the vision of Father Edward Flanagan, the founder, and to all who have helped make the home a world famous landmark."

Conservation Effort In Evidence

Kearney (UPI) — An energy conservation effort at Kearney State College is paying off, according to Dr. Marvin Glasser, spokesman for the Energy Conservation Task Force formed earlier this year at the college. He said electricity usage declined 13% during October and 16% during November, resulting in a savings of $2,000 each month. Glasser said conservation steps taken included a conscious effort to turn off lights not in use and reduction of classroom temperatures. He said another contributing factor was the mild weather so far this winter.

Early Blizzard Costly

Norfolk — Total cost for removing ice and snow from Norfolk streets following the November blizzard could amount to more than $18,000, according to Earl Smith, street commissioner. For all of last year, the manpower and machinery costs for snow removal were between $14,000 and $15,000.

Newman Grove Ed Board Faces Suit Over 'Jaws'

Plans call for a suit to be filed against the Newman Grove Board of Education for removal of the book "Jaws" from the high school library in that Madison County community, according to a spokesman for the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union.

Mrs. Barbara Gaither of Lincoln, executive director of the NCLU, Monday said George D. Watson Jr., a Lincoln attorney, was preparing to file the suit in U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

At their Dec. 1 meeting, members of the Newman Grove Board of Education voted to order the book removed from the high school library and burned.

Mrs. Gaither said the suit would be filed against the school board on behalf of Newman Grove parents whose children want to read the book.

The suit will allege the board members tampered with the First Amendment rights of free speech, she explained.

"It took a pretty nervy school board to try this," Mrs. Gaither said. "We were appalled to see it actually happening."

She said Watson was conferring with attorneys in the national office of the American Civil Liberties Union in New York to prepare the suit.

The prinicpal of Newman Grove High School, Robert Campbell, said the board's decision was a "first" in his experience as a school administrator.

Asked to comment on the decision, he said "My comments are not material. Their (board's) point of view is what counts. I understand they objected to some of the language."

Campbell said the board action "came as a surprise to the administration and did a good job of publicizing the book."

Members of the school board were either reluctant to discuss the action, or not available for comment.

Fremont Teen Charged In 2 Armed Robberies

Fremont (AP) — Dodge County Atty. F. A. Gossett III, Monday filed adult felony charges against a Fremont teen-ager in connection with two incidents late last week.

Charged with armed robbery and shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim, was Ronald E. Brown, 15.

The charges stem from a holdup at a Fremont motel last Thursday evening in which the bandit got away with about $98, and an attempted robbery at a pizza place here early Friday morning. Shots were fired during the latter, but no one was injured, and no money was taken.

Police arrested Brown shortly after the attempted robbery at the pizza parlor.

$550,000 Sought In Road Death

A suit seeking $550,000 in connection with a July 8, 1974, accident involving two semi tractor-trailer trucks was filed Monday in U.S. District Court.

The suit was filed by the admistor of the estate of Dale L. Damon, who was killed in the accident against John L. Gaffney, driver of the other truck; Prickett and Son, the company for which Gaffney worked, and Employer's Insurance of Wausau.

The suit contends that Gaffney was negligent in failing to stop for a stop sign when on an exit ramp from Interstate 80 onto U.S. 183. The suit contends that Damon's truck struck Gaffney's, then went into a ditch and burned.

Firemen Douse Gooch Mill Fire

A fire at the Gooch Mill, 6th and South Sts., caused an undetermined amount of damage late Monday night.

Fire officials report the fire started in a third-floor flour grinder and spread up a dust chute to an eighth-floor dust collector. The fire on the eighth floor raged for about half an hour before being extinguished.

Mill officials will not have an estimate of the damage until sometime Tuesday.

No one was reported injured in the blaze.

"It took the Depression of the 1930s for people to realize that just because a person wanted a job, didn't mean he could always get one," Goldsby said.

It took the '60s and the work of Martin Luther King, Cesar Chavez, the American Indian Movement and campus unrest to get people to pay attention to the problems of discrimination and poverty in this county, Goldsby said.

Poverty is being tired and dirty, quitting junior high school to go to work and looking to a bleak future for your children, he said.

Poverty workers in this country are few, don't have the programs, the help or the funds they need, he said, but they must not fail.

"This is the time for action — we shall win the war on poverty," Goldsby said.

The speaker was preceded by a short slide presentation entitled "The Way We Were," which showed people who have been involved in LAP in the last 10 years.

Farm Exposition Slated Next Month

Columbus — The ninth annual Northeast/Central Nebraska Farm Exposition is scheduled for Jan. 13 and 14 in Columbus. Last year's event attracted over 9,000 persons. Speakers scheduled include John Addink, University of Nebraska Extension irrigation specialist; John Witkowski, NU Extension entomologist; Ed Penas, district Extension agronomist; Paul Fischbach, Extension irrigation specialist; Dean Axthelm, Extension water resource specialist; and Phil Henderson, Extension economist.

Jensby Honored For Volunteer Service

Nelson — Lawrence Jensby of Nelson has been cited by the Mid-Nebraska Mental Retardation Services as an outstanding volunteer. He volunteered many hours to help in landscaping and preparing the front lawn of the Nelson adult residence, where 11 adults are housed.

Boys Town To Mark Anniversary

Boys Town (UPI) — Boys Town will celebrate its 58th anniversary Friday during an anniversary liturgy at the Dowd Memorial Chapel on the Boys Town campus. The Rev. Robert P. Hupp, Boys Town director, said anniversary observance will be an opportunity to "reflect on the tremendous good that the home has exerted on nearly 14,000 boys, and to offer thanks for the vision of Father Edward Flanagan, the founder, and to all who have helped make the home a world famous landmark."

Conservation Effort In Evidence

Kearney (UPI) — An energy conservation effort at Kearney State College is paying off, according to Dr. Marvin Glasser, spokesman for the Energy Conservation Task Force formed earlier this year at the ocllege. He said electricity usage declined 13% during October and 16% during November, resulting in a savings of $2,000 each month. Glasser said conservation steps taken included a conscious effort to turn off lights not in use and reduction of classroom temperatures. He said another contributing factor was the mild weather so far this winter.

Early Blizzard Costly

Norfolk — Total cost for removing ice and snow from Norfolk streets following the November blizzard could amount to more than $18,000, according to Earl Smith, street commissioner. For all of last year, the manpower and machinery costs for snow removal were between $14,000 and $15,000.

Newman Grove Ed Board Faces Suit Over 'Jaws'

Plans call for a suit to be filed against the Newman Grove Board of Education for removal of the book "Jaws" from the high school library in that Madison County community, according to a spokesman for the Nebraska Civil Liberties Union.

Mrs. Barbara Gaither of Lincoln, executive director of the NCLU, Monday said George D. Watson Jr., a Lincoln attorney, was preparing to file the suit in U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

At their Dec. 1 meeting, members of the Newman Grove Board of Education voted to order the book removed from the high school library and burned.

Mrs. Gaither said the suit would be filed against the school board on behalf of Newman Grove parents whose children want to read the book.

The suit will allege the board members tampered with the First Amendment rights of free speech, she explained.

"It took a pretty nervy school board to try this," Mrs. Gaither said. "We were appalled to see it actually happening."

She said Watson was conferring with attorneys in the national office of the American Civil Liberties Union in New York to prepare the suit.

The prinicpal of Newman Grove High School, Robert Campbell, said the board's decision was a "first" in his experience as a school administrator.

Asked to comment on the decision, he said "My comments are not material. Their (board's) point of view is what counts. I understand they objected to some of the language."

Campbell said the board action "came as a surprise to the administration and did a good job of publicizing the book."

Members of the school board were either reluctant to discuss the action, or not available for comment.

Fremont Teen Charged In 2 Armed Robberies

Fremont (AP) — Dodge County Atty. F. A. Gossett III, Monday filed adult felony charges against a Fremont teen-ager in connection with two incidents late last week.

Charged with armed robbery and shooting with intent to kill, wound or maim, was Ronald E. Brown, 15.

The charges stem from a holdup at a Fremont motel last Thursday evening in which the bandit got away with about $98, and an attempted robbery at a pizza plaee here early Friday morning. Shots were fired during the latter, but no one was injured, and no money was taken.

Police arrested Brown shortly after the attempted robbery at the pizza parlor.

$550,000 Sought In Road Death

A suit seeking $550,000 in connection with a July 8, 1974, accident involving two semi tractor-trailer trucks was filed Monday in U.S. District Court.

The suit was filed by the admistor of the estate of Dale L. Damon, who was killed in the accident against John L. Gaffney, driver of the other truck; Prickett and Son, the company for which Gaffney worked, and Employer's Insurance of Wausau.

The suit contends that Gaffney was negligent in failing to stop for a stop sign when on an exit ramp from Interstate 80 onto U.S. 183. The suit contends that Damon's truck struck Gaffney's, then went into a ditch and burned.

Firemen Douse Gooch Mill Fire

A fire at the Gooch Mill, 6th and South Sts., caused an undetermined amount of damage late Monday night.

Fire officials report the fire started in a third-floor flour grinder and spread up a dust chute to an eighth-floor dust collector. The fire on the eighth floor raged for about half an hour before being extinguished.

Mill officials will not have an estimate of the damage until sometime Tuesday.

No one was reported injured in the blaze.

Kentuckian: U.S. Culture Strangled By 'Progress'

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

"Destructive progress" has a stranglehold on American culture that can only be broken by a "gradual change in the sense of where it is possible to go,' a Kentucky poet-farmer-professor said Monday

"The first casualties of the exploitative revolution are character and community — culture in its broadest and richest sense," Wendell Berry said

Opponents of exploitation are "pitifully small and weak in this country now" but can be powerful "if they bring about a change in the minds of just a few people — not a lot of people but a profound change in a few," he said.

Berry, author of several books of poetry and an English teacher at the University of Kentucky, spoke at the "Alternatives for Small Communities: Some Unconventional Approaches" conference in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

"The first and greatest American revolution — which has never been superceded — was the coming of people who did not look on this land as a homeland (as the Indians did)," Berry said.

Fur traders developed an "exploitation mentality" that thrives today, he said

"And they (exploiters) didn't just stop with the subjugation of the Indian They went on to impose the same penalty on the small farms ... and the workmanship of the independent citizen"

Berry said America is divided into exploiters (such as Kentucky strip miners) stressing profits, productivity and efficiency, and "nurturers" (such as farmers) seeking independence and harmony with their environment

Salesmanship has replaced craftsmanship such that "air is about the only thing we can get by ourselves — and that is severely taxed by pollution," he said

Berry said farmers, conservationists and environmentalists are "designated victims" of "agencies of government which use their own tax money against them."

For example, government policies "encourage abuse, by overuse, of farmlands," he said. "Lands that ought to be left in grass are being plowed for row crops"

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz's attempts to increase production have only increased land prices and the number of farmers being driven away, Berry said.

If continued, such policies will lead to "complete delivery of American agriculture into the hands of corporations" while "causing more starvation than they can remedy," he said.

The conference continues Tuesday with sessions on energy, economics and land management

Maintenance Of Good Health Is HMO's Principal Purpose

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: "What is HMO? And how can I find out about such programs near where I reside?"

ANSWER: HMO stands for Health Maintenance Organization. As the name implies, an HMO is an organization whose principal purpose is to keep its members in good health. Once you are accepted for membership, you pay a certain sum of money every year, and the organization provides for your health-care needs.

Write to your state insurance department, attention HMO section administrator or director. Ask for the names and addresses of HMOs within a reasonable distance of where you reside. They can tell you whether or not the HMO is licensed under state law.

Before you sign up with any HMO, try and find a member who will tell you how satisfactory the organization has been in meeting his or her health needs.

QUESTION: "I watched President Ford on Meet the Press recently. He talked about being only as old as you feel, and he said he is in his early 60s and feels as healthy and as sharp as he ever did. How old was President Eisenhower when he ran for his second term?"

ANSWER: President Eisenhower was born in 1890, so he was 66 when he ran for re-election.

☆ ☆ ☆

QUESTION: "You write a lot of good stuff about being safe in your home and locking your car when you drive at night, etc. I have a "thing" about kitchen safety. Maybe it's because I almost lost a finger once when I tried to catch a knife I dropped, but I think you should write about how people can avoid knife accidents."

ANSWER: You have a good idea, there. Here are a few do's and don'ts about working with knives.

Do keep your knives sharp.

Keep them in view when you have them out to use. Don't leave a knife on the counter with something on top of it so you cannot see it.

Never drop a knife into a sink full of soapy, cloudy water where you will have to grope to find it. Instead, when you use a knife, wash it, dry it, and put it away as soon as you finish the work you took it out to do.

If you drop a knife, step back and let it fall to the floor. The worst it can do then is mar your floor. As our correspondent has attested, trying to catch a falling knife is sheer folly and can result in a sheared finger.

Kitchen experts agree that good knives do not belong in the dishwasher. They should be individually cleaned after each use and restored to their safe storage spot.

A good knife should not be stored unsheathed in a drawer with other utensils; it will be knicked and scratched, and you can too easily cut your hand on the knife when you reach into the drawer to take out one of the other utensils.

Wall-hunt knife cases with glass fronts are attractive, safe storage places for knives. A strong bar magnet hung on the wall keeps knives in view and out of harm's way.

When you are working with a sharp knife, take your time. The sharp knife will do its job, but don't rush yourself.

There's a pretty general rule for the kitchen that I like: Pace yourself so that you can work steadily and smoothly without hurrying. Everyone should always have good lighting when working with sharp utensils. This rule is of particular importance to senior citizens.

Pakistani Leader Warns Opposing Political Parties

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto warned opposition political parties Sunday "if they are bent upon making a show of strength, they should not complain if the government hits back to maintain peace and protect democratic institutions."

Bhutto was commenting after a decision Thursday by eight opposition political parties to stage protest rallies Dec. 19 demanding that Bhutto relinquish office, establish an all-party national government and order general elections.

"The government will not be browbeaten by threats from the opposition," Bhutto told newsmen in Sargodha, 150 miles south of Islamabad. "On the one hand, they hurl threats and adopt a violent course of action and on the other they expect the government to stand still. They cannot have it both ways."

Maintenance Of Good Health Is HMO's Principal Purpose

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: "What is HMO? And how can I find out about such programs near where I reside?"

ANSWER: HMO stands for Health Maintenance Organization. As the name implies, an HMO is an organization whose principal purpose is to keep its members in good health. Once you are accepted for membership, you pay a certain sum of money every year, and the organization provides for your health-care needs.

Write to your state insurance department, attention HMO section administrator or director. Ask for the names and addresses of HMOs within a reasonable distance of where you reside. They can tell you whether or not the HMO is licensed under state law.

Before you sign up with any HMO, try and find a member who will tell you how satisfactory the organization has been in meeting his or her health needs.

QUESTION: "I watched President Ford on Meet the Press recently. He talked about being only as old as you feel, and he said he is in his early 60s and feels as healthy and as sharp as he ever did. How old was President Eisenhower when he ran for his second term?"

ANSWER: President Eisenhower was born in 1890, so he was 66 when he ran for re-election.

☆ ☆ ☆

QUESTION: "You write a lot of good stuff about being safe in your home and locking your car when you drive at night, etc. I have a "thing" about kitchen safety. Maybe it's because I almost lost a finger once when I tried to catch a knife I dropped, but I think you should write about how people can avoid knife accidents."

ANSWER: You have a good idea, there. Here are a few do's and don'ts about working with knives.

Do keep your knives sharp.

Keep them in view when you have them out to use. Don't leave a knife on the counter with something on top of it so you cannot see it.

Never drop a knife into a sink full of soapy, cloudy water where you will have to grope to find it. Instead, when you use a knife, wash it, dry it, and put it away as soon as you finish the work you took it out to do.

If you drop a knife, step back and let it fall to the floor. The worst it can do then is mar your floor. As our correspondent has attested, trying to catch a falling knife is sheer folly and can result in a sheared finger.

Kitchen experts agree that good knives do not belong in the dishwasher. They should be individually cleaned after each use and restored to their safe storage spot.

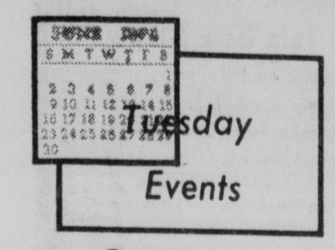

A good knife should not be stored unsheathed in a drawer with other utensils; it will be knicked and scratched, and you can too easily cut your hand on the knife when you reach into the drawer to take out one of the other utensils.

Wall-hunt knife cases with glass fronts are attractive, safe storage places for knives. A strong bar magnet hung on the wall keeps knives in view and out of harm's way.

When you are working with a sharp knife, take your time. The sharp knife will do its job, but don't rush yourself.

There's a pretty general rule for the kitchen that I like: Pace yourself so that you can work steadily and smoothly without hurrying. Everyone should always have good lighting when working with sharp utensils. This rule is of particular importance to senior citizens.

B-1 Bomber Builders Face Resistance

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Momentum is building for efforts to shoot down Air Force plans to build a fleet of bigger, faster B-1 bombers, a coordinator of those efforts said Monday

Terry Provance said in 1974 there were 96 representatives and 29 senators opposed to building 244 of the B 1 bombers on which $2 1 billion has already been spent for research and development

Today the numbers have increased to 145 representatives and 35 senators opposed to the fleet construction which would total about $92 billion over the 30-year life span on the bombers, Provance said

The vote on taking the final step of starting full-scale production of the bombers will probably come up this summer he said

Efforts to block construction of the planes began in 1973 with two national organizations the American Friends Service Committee and Clergy and Laity Concerned Provance said

Now 35 national groups have joined the campaign, he said, including citizen action groups such as Common Cause and Environmental Action, labor groups such as Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers and religious organizations such as the Jesuit Conference

Provance attacked the B-1 on grounds that it serves no military purpose, that it is harmful to the environment and that more jobs could be created if the same amount of money were pumped into programs designed to meet social needs

As early as the 1960s, Provance said, former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara called bombers obsolete for use in nuclear warfare

The only place the B-1 bombers would be useful, Provance contended would be to attack undefended Third World countries in 'future Vietnams Even in Vietnam the B-52 s were shown to be obsolete when the cities were armed with anti aircraft rockets he said citing an 11-day stretch in which 15 of the planes were downed

The greatest danger the proposed B 1 presents to the environment, Provance said, is possibly affecting the ozone layer in the atmosphere which filters cancer-causing ultraviolet radiation from sunlight

Under Air Force plans the B-1 bomber fleet will spend 99,000 hours flying in the stratosphere each year, emitting nitrogen oxides that might deplete the ozone layer at the rate of 4% each year, according to Provance

The fleet would also use about 25 billion gallons of fuel in 25 years, according to Environmental Protection Agency figures, he said Seven billion gallons could fuel all urban mass transit in the nation at present levels for 10 years according to 'Stop the B-1" literature

Provance noted that the new bombers would be based at Offutt Air Force base, meaning that sonic booms would be heard across the state as the planes flew

He said that production of the fleet cannot be justified economically Putting the same amount into an industry such as housing would create more jobs and benefit the citizens more, he contended

Nebraska would be one of the 43 states which would be paying more in taxes than they would be getting back in contracts awarded in the state, Provance said So far the state has contributed $19 5 million to research for the bomber, he said, and received two contracts totaling $420,000

The three corporations — Rockwell International, General Electric and Boeing — that would garner the lion's share of the contracts for production of the bombers, have been attempting to dampen opposition by awarding contracts to states with moderate or liberal senators, Provance charged

All five of Nebraska's representatives in Congress support production of the bomber The Air Force says the plane would fly at more than twice the speed of sound (the B 52 cannot exceed the speed of sound) and carry twice the payload of the B-52 for short distances For longer trips the weight of the fuel would decrease the weight of the payload carried

Action Delayed On Retarded Fees

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Worried about potential law suits, the Region V Human Services Governing Board voted Monday to postpone action on implementing a fee schedule for services to mentally retarded clients in community-based programs

The fee schedule is based on a 1969 state law which says clients in community based programs should be assessed fees on the same basis as residents of the Beatrice State Home

Thus far the fee schedule has not been applied to community-based programs

However, in September the Department of Public Institutions (DPI) told directors of regional mental retardation programs that they should begin implementing the fee schedule

The major questions that arose during Monday s board meeting concerned alleged 'inequities" in the fee schedule, and the issue of who is responsible (and thus liable) for implementation

In response to the latter question DPI representative Dean Watmore said a state attorney general s opinion indicates "the individual regions are responsible for implementation

Region V mental retardation director Lyn Martin took issue with Watmore s statement, saying that the attorney general s opinion on the matter is inconclusive

If the Region V board implements the program, it will be held responsible even though board members had no input into the schedule or the regulations governing its administration, Ms Martin said

The question about responsibility arose because board members fear 'inequities' of the schedule may result in law suits

According to the schedule, a mentally-retarded adult will be charged a yearly fee of 36% of his or her net taxable income A family which has one or more children in a community-based program will be assessed a fee of 18 c of its net taxable income

Ms Martin expressed apprehension that this disparity in charges would amount to discrimination

"There is the very distinct possibility that this board will incur a lawsuit ' if it moves to implement the fee schedule, Ms Martin said

Ms Martin and others present at the meeting noted that Beatrice State Home residents receive services (including board and room, medical and dental care) for their fees which go beyond services offered in community-based programs

A person in a community-based program who pays the same fee as a Beatrice State Home resident will not be provided the same services Ms Martin said

'If this is inequitable, the statute (mandating the fee schedule) is wrong," Watmore said

The three corporations — Rockwell International, General Electric and Boeing — that would garner the lion's share of the contracts for production of the bombers, have been attempting to dampen opposition by awarding contracts to states with moderate or liberal senators, Provance charged.

All five of Nebraska's representatives in Congress support production of the bomber. The Air Force says the plane would fly at more than twice the speed of sound (the B-52 cannot exceed the speed of sound) and carry twice the payload of the B-52 for short distances. For longer trips the weight of the fuel would decrease the weight of the payload carried.

Action Delayed On Retarded Fees

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Worried about potential law suits, the Region V Human Services Governing Board voted Monday to postpone action on implementing a fee schedule for services to mentally retarded clients in community-based programs.

The fee schedule is based on a 1969 state law which says clients in community-based programs should be assessed fees on the same basis as residents of the Beatrice State Home.

Thus far, the fee schedule has not been applied to community-based programs.

However, in September, the Department of Public Institutions (DPI) told directors of regional mental retardation programs that they should begin implementing the fee schedule.

The major questions that arose during Monday's board meeting concerned alleged "inequities" in the fee schedule; and the issue of who is responsible (and thus liable) for implementation.

In response to the latter question, DPI representative Dean Watmore said a state attorney general's opinion indicates "the individual regions" are responsible for implementation.

Region V mental retardation director Lyn Martin took issue with Watmore's statement, saying that the attorney general's opinion on the matter is inconclusive.

If the Region V board implements the program, it will be held responsible, even though board members had no input into the schedule or the regulations governing its administration, Ms. Martin said.

The question about responsibility arose because board members fear "inequities" of the schedule may result in law suits.

According to the schedule, a mentally-retarded adult will be charged a yearly fee of 36% of his or her net taxable income. A family which has one or more children in a community-based program will be assessed a fee of 18% of its net taxable income.

Ms. Martin expressed apprehension that this disparity in charges would amount to discrimination.

"There is the very distinct possibility that this board will incur a lawsuit" if it moves to implement the fee schedule, Ms. Martin said.

Ms. Martin and others present at the meeting noted that Beatrice State Home residents receive services (including board and room, medical and dental care) for their fees which go beyond services offered in community-based programs.

A person in a community-based program who pays the same fee as a Beatrice State Home resident will not be provided the same services, Ms. Martin said.

"If this is inequitable, the statute (mandating the fee schedule) is wrong," Watmore said.

Rural Ceresco Youth Wounded

Ten-year-old William E. Cooley, of Rt. 2, Ceresco, was treated for an accidental gunshot wound to his upper right leg Sunday and released.

According to sheriff's reports the boy was shot by his companion, Kendall Johnson, with a .22-caliber rifle with which they were playing in the Cooley garage.

Service Separate

San Juan, P.R. (UPI) — A separate public bus service for tourists has been inaugurated to serve the shoreline hotel strip of the city. The buses, painted white, will follow a special tourist route, stopping in front of the principal hotels of the Condado and Isla Verde sections.

San Francisco — I never got his name. He went all around the country with a butter knife. He said he was looking for the perfect steak.

"A steak you can cut with a butter knife," he said.

You'd think a lot of restaurants would just throw him out. But no. He had managed to get interviewed and had a fold of newspaper clippings.

"Searches For Perfect Steak."

I almost caught up with him at Reno where he had tested a $7 imported (from New York) filet mignon at the Riverside.

Mert Wertheimer told me: "I borrowed his butter knife and sent it out to the kitchen and told the chef to hone it up a little sharper."

Mert was an odds player.

The man with the butter knife toured the U.S. living on free steaks.

A rainy day in The City That Knows How — as a popular mayor remarked. On rainy days you need the doorman's help to get a taxi.

On dry days you tip the hotel doorman a quarter. On rainy days take a new dollar bill from your pocket and snap it.

"Taxi? Yes sir!"

Either that or carry an umbrella. It's a tipsy world we live in.

☆ ☆ ☆

There was a fellow in Boston named Farrington who decided to whip the tipping situation. Stout fellow! Brave chap!

He carried printed cards: "You have just served a member of Tippers Anonymous. Your service was excellent/ good/ fair/poor."

Farrington then checked the quality of service and paid an appropriate tip. Fifteen percent for excellent. And so down the line. For a "poor" check, he gave a nickel to underline his opinion.

There are no courageous tippers. But there are sneaky tippers. A sneaky type waits until the waiter has gone to the kitchen. He leaves 10% and streaks for the door.

If the waiter won't go to the kitchen, I give him 15%. If he stands over me sweeping crumbs in my lap, I make it 20. If he says: "More coffee?" I just hand over my wallet.

In that case you give him a dollar bill and run.

French Arrest Polish Worker

PARIS (AP) — A Polish engineer working in France has been arrested for allegedly trying to recruit persons to work for the Polish secret service, authorities announced.

The man was identified as Gerzy Brzowski, 45, from Warsaw, but no other details were given.

The arrest was ordered by the examining magistrate of the state security court, which deals with cases of espionage and other issues of national security.

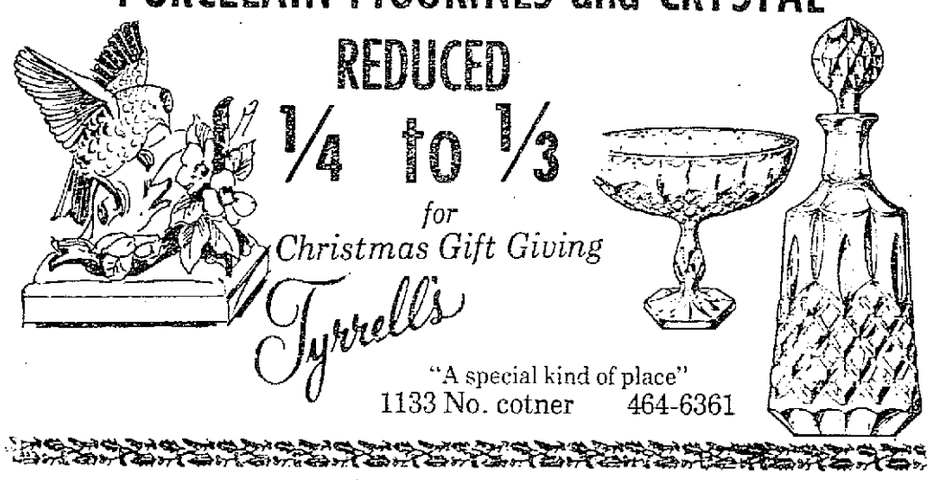

Polish Embassy officials were not available for comment.

Stores Can Refuse Returned Goods

All Sales Final! No Cash Refunds! Exchanges For Credit Only!

These signs may be staring into the faces of unhappy Christmas gift recipients as they attempt to exchange gifts on Dec. 26.

And what may shock them more is that the policies indicated by these signs are the legitimate right of a merchant.

The Uniform Commercial Code provides for no immediate right of prompt cash payment upon return of goods except if the goods are nonconforming or defective.

Up to Merchant

So a merchant may establish by contract a practice which he deems reasonable and appropriate as long as no misrepresentation occurs or as long as the product is not defective at time of purchase.

Many people purchase a Christmas gift with the impression that if it doesn't fit or isn't liked by the recipient that it can be taken back after Christmas.

This is no longer a general rule, according to Jerry Fennell, assistant attorney general in charge of Nebraska's Consumer Protection Division.

No Matter What

Fennel notes that some merchants have established by custom a policy of allowing cash refunds for merchandise no matter what the reason

Some merchandisers have been following such a procedure for many years, and most of the larger ones still do; however, some businesses — particularly small businesses — have adopted a policy whereby merchandise can be returned only for credit on the purchase of additional merchandise and others have flatly refused to make any refund at all.

Merchants who give only a credit refund or who refuse any refund argue that a number of the products which they sell can have temporary beneficial use and then be returned.

"Such use cannot be detected at first glance, and they feel it is unfair for the consumer to gain the benefit of this purchase and yet be allowed to obtain a cash refund later," Fennell said.

According to the Cornhusker Better Business Bureau, the stores have made it possible for some people to abuse the privilege of returning merchandise.

Cost Up For All

When people return items without good reason they increase the cost of all items in the store to all customers and cause some stores to adopt less generous policies than they might otherwise.

Consumers should be aware of a store's policy on returns before making purchases for Christmas gifts which might have to be exchanged.

Most refund or exchange policies require that the goods be returned within a specified time period and be in new condition.

Some Agreement

If an item is being purchased well in advance as a gift, there should be some understanding between buyer and seller that that gift may be returned after a certain date if for any reason it is not satisfactory to the recipient.

In some cases, the store will require a sales slip or some other evidence that the article was actually bought there and not at some other store.

Fennell applauds merchants who have purchased advertising or who post signs in their stores clearly stating the policy of the store on returned merchandise.

Merchant Should Say

Although there is no law governing this, Fennell says he feels the merchant should make the customer aware of story policy at the time goods are purchased.

Often a problem occurs when sales personnel aren't aware of the company's policy and assure a customer that the merchandise may be returned if it isn't satisfactory, Fennell said.

However, this prerogative of a merchant to set a policy on returned merchandise does not extend to defective goods.

There are many federal regulations governing the return of defective merchandise for cash refund, so if consumers have difficulty in making such returns, they should notify the Consumer Protection Division.

Division Is Under Attorney General

The Nebraska Consumer Protection Division is part of the office of the attorney general of Nebraska. Persons wishing to contact the division can do so through the attorney general's office at the State Capitol.

Bureau Supplies Buyer's Checklist

Before making a purchase at any store, stop and consider the following Better Business Bureau checklist:

—What is the store's policy covering returns?

—May I exchange the item for another like it?

—May I return the item and buy something else?

—Will the store give me my money back?

—Is this a final sale item?

—If the purchase is made under written contract, how are the normal return privileges affected?

Consumers Union Offers 10 Tips

New York (UPI) — For pocketbooks squeezed by holiday spending, Consumers Union has 10 tips to help save money They are:

—Before adding antifreeze, motorists can check whether they need it with a floating-ball antifreeze tester.

—Water with a little dishwashing detergent and some ammonia or vinegar will clean most windows as well as a commercial glass cleaner.

—For margarine try a regional or store brand in stocks rather than tub or liquid name brands.

—Car owners can save $25 to $100 by doing minor auto tuneups with tools costing about $50.

—Homemade pot pies provide more nutrition per dollar than commercial ones but will take up to three hours to prepare.

—The standard, inside-frosted light bulb gives more light per dollar than the long-life, soft-white or soft-white-plus types.

—Windshield washer fluid is likely to cost less at a discount drug or department store than at a gasoline station or automobile supply store.

—Coffee creamers cost less than milk, but have at least as many calories as more saturated fat.

—If buying a used car, pay a mechanic as much as $30 to inspect it. It's cheaper than getting a lemon.

—Gas-heated clothes dryers generally cost less to run than electric dryers and save about five to 10 minutes per cycle.

Although there is no law governing this, Fennell says he feels the merchant should make the customer aware of story policy at the time goods are purchased.

Often a problem occurs when sales personnel aren't aware of the company's policy and assure a customer that the merchandise may be returned if it isn't satisfactory, Fennell said.

However, this prerogative of a merchant to set a policy on returned merchandise does not extend to defective goods.

There are many federal regulations governing the return of defective merchandise for cash refund, so if consumers have difficulty in making such returns, they should notify the Consumer Protection Division.

Bureau Supplies Buyer's Checklist

Before making a purchase at any store, stop and consider the following Better Business Bureau checklist:

—What is the store's policy covering returns?

—May I exchange the item for another like it?

—May I return the item and buy something else?

—Will the store give me my money back?

—Is this a final sale item?

—If the purchase is made under written contract, how are the normal return privileges affected?

Consumers Union Offers 10 Tips

New York (UPI) — For pocketbooks squeezed by holiday spending, Consumers Union has 10 tips to help save money. They are:

—Before adding antifreeze, motorists can check whether they need it with a floating-ball antifreeze tester.

—Water with a little dishwashing detergent and some ammonia or vinegar will clean most windows as well as a commercial glass cleaner.

—For margarine try a regional or store brand in stocks rather than tub or liquid name brands.

—Car owners can save $25 to $100 by doing minor auto tuneups with tools costing about $50.

—Homemade pot pies provide more nutrition per dollar than commercial ones but will take up to three hours to prepare.

—The standard, inside-frosted light bulb gives more light per dollar than the long-life, soft-white or soft-white-plus types.

—Windshield washer fluid is likely to cost less at a discount drug or department store than at a gasoline station or automobile supply store.

—Coffee creamers cost less than milk, but have at least as many calories as more saturated fat.

—If buying a used car, pay a mechanic as much as $30 to inspect it. It's cheaper than getting a lemon.

—Gas-heated clothes dryers generally cost less to run than electric dryers and save about five to 10 minutes per cycle.

Government Lists Thrifty Appliances

(c) New York Times Service

New York — The General Services Administration has released the names and model numbers of appliances that it found to be the cheapest both in initial price and in energy costs over the life of the product.

Acting on this concept of "lifecycle costing" in these days of energy conservation, the agency purchased thousands of air-conditioners, water heaters, ranges and refrigerators for Federal use, primarily at military installations. The air-conditioners are estimated to use 21% less energy than models purchased in past years; the water heaters, 11%; the ranges, 7%, and the refrigerators, 15%. The savings to the government over the lifetime of the appliances is estimated at more than $1 million.

Consumers who might use the agency's purchases as a guide to their own buying should keep in mind that there may be appliances on the market with lower initial prices, but they use more energy and thus in the long run are more expensive.

Also, the agency evaluated only the products of manufacturers who bid on the governmental contracts. Thus, there may be products on the market that are cheaper in terms of the "lifecycle concept."

A GSA official said the agency determined the lifecycle costs of the appliances by testing prototypes or by fitting information supplies by the manufacturers into energy-usage formulas.

The General Services Administration made the following selections:

- Airconditioners — Fedders Models ACL 16 E 7 H, ACL 18E 7H, ASL 19E, 7H, and ASD 24E 7H; General Electric Models AG FE 90 9F, AGFS 81 3D.
- Electric Ranges — General Electric Model JASO 4; Sunray Models ASRE 22 AX 033, ASRC 24 CB 029, ASRC 26 GX OJK and ASRE 26 GX OJK.
- Gas Ranges — Crown Model 847-207KGOWT; Roper Model 1234-W; Sunray Models SSP 22 BD and SSP 29 DA..
- Refrigerators — General Electric Models TA 10DR-N, TB 12 SR-N, TB 14 SS-B, TB F 16 S, TB FF 19 D, TF F 22 D and TF F 24 D; Hotpoint Models CTF 14 E and CTF 18 C; Philco Model RT 17 B¾.
- Water Heaters — A. O. Smith Models PGC 40, PGC 50, PEC 52 and PEC 80.

Opening lead - ten of clubs.

Bridge is hard to play flawlessly, as almost all of us would promptly concede. However, the nature of the game is such that the great majority of mistakes go unpunished — and this is as it should be because most mistakes are minor and the good Lord is generally forgiving in such cases.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that a player must occasionally pay for even a minor mistake. That's exactly what happened in this deal where South failed to make a slam he should have made.

He won the club lead and played a low spade to the jack, which also won. But eventually he had to go down one when he lost a trump trick and a diamond.

South would have made the slam had he led the queen of spades instead of the deuce at trick two, planning to finesse. In the actual case, if West covers with the king, declarer takes the ace and, with East showing out, later finesses against West's ten. The only trick declarer loses is a diamond.

The queen is technically the right play, as it wins not only when West has the singleton or doubleton king but also when he has the tripleton king.

Ordinarily, playing the deuce to the jack would not be a fatal error, because it loses only in those hands where West has all three trumps (11 per cent of the time), as opposed to those hands where West has precisely the doubleton king (26 per cent of the time).

Assuming that South plans to finesse in spades, which is his proper play, the queen lead never costs him a trick. But the deuce lead will sometimes cost him a trick, and it is therefore better to start out by leading the queen.

Divorcee Sick, Tired Of Married Cheaters

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee of almost two years. I'm constantly meeting guys who swear they're not married, but later I find out that they are and they usually have children.

What is it with these dingalings, anyway? Don't they know they just might hurt innocent gals who might fall in love with them because they think they're available?

I want nothing to do with a married man. I wish these creeps would stay home with their wives and leave us single women alone!

I just got a phone call from some guy's wife who threatened me if I didn't leave her husband alone. Abby, so help me, I didn't know the man was married.

How about a few suggestions on how to spot these creeps?

HAD IT

DEAR HAD IT: A married man will not give you his home telephone number and address. He will be very short of friends to whom he can introduce you — and will almost always have no relatives for you to meet. He'll be unavailable for weekends and holidays, and when he's with you, he'll look at his watch a lot.

If a man tells you he's "going through a divorce," tell him you'll see him when his divorce is final. (Maybe!)

DEAR ABBY: What is a healthy, 34-year-old married man supposed to do when he has become physically handicapped but his sexual feelings continue to function the same as before? Because of my physical limitations, I am partially paralyzed. I am unable to walk or use my legs, but my sexual desires are in no way impaired.

I don't know anyone else I can ask, so please don't throw this letter into the wastebasket. You may print it if you think it will help others in my plight, but please don't use my name.

DEAR ABBY: Years ago I read somewhere that it was perfectly proper for a man to wear his officer's uniform instead of a tuxedo to all occasions where formal attire is required.

My husband was a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force (World War II) and ever since, he's been wearing his uniform to formal affairs

He has put on quite a lot of weight and has already had the trousers let out as much as possible, but I'm afraid the next time he wears them, something will give.

We are invited to a family wedding soon, and my husband has mentioned "getting the old uniform out" again, and that's my problem.

I don't want to hurt his feelings, but World War II was a long time ago, and I think it's time he put that uniform in mothballs and rented a tux.

So how do I tell him?

Claim Changes Police Recordkeeping

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The city's $139 payment to a Lincoln man who claimed he was falsely arrested and taken to the city jail was an uncommon occurrence, the City Council was told Monday.

Asst. City Atty. Jim Faimon told the lawmakers that Roger Robbins' case prompted some changes in the police department's recordkeeping procedures.

Faimon's comments came in response to several councilmen's inquiry into claims filed against the city by citizens seeking damages for injuries supposedly caused by the city.

Still On File

Faimon explained that in the false arrest case, a warrant was issued in August for Robbins's arrest. In September, Robbins paid the fine. However, the warrant still remained on file and when the police department issued a "pick-up list," Robbins was arrested Oct. 25, a Friday. When he told police that he had paid the fine, he was allowed to be released to his attorney, since he could not appear in court until the following Monday.

Faimon said it was "revealed that the police department's records were not factual" and Robbins was reimbursed for the attorney's fee.

"This is the only case we've ever had like this one," Faimon reported, noting that the recordkeeping system now has been changed because of that case.

Although the council approved the city attorney's report on the disposition of claims filed in October and November, usually a routine item, Councilmen Bob Sikyta and Max Denney commented on what they called "the high number" of accidents involving city streetsweepers. Three claims were filed during that two-month period. Faimon said all three would be paid.

Sikyta Concerned

Sikyta also voiced concern over the way the city processes claims. He said the procedure may keep people from being paid by their own insurance company.

"It seems like an awfully lot of these are turned down by the city," Sikyta said.

City Atty. Charles Humble reported that each claim is investigated either by the city, if the damages reported are not insured, or by the city's insurance company if they are.

In both cases, Humble said the city must be shown to have been negligent.

Humble reported that a review of the city's policy on claims will be undertaken as a part of Mayor Helen Boosalis's ordered review of the city's entire insurance program.

Pre-Application OKd

In other business, the City Council authorized the mayor to file a pre-application with the Department of Transportation. The city is seeking federal funds to help pay for the following:

- 13 full-sized coaches.
- 3 service cars.
- 14 two-way radios.
- 13 fare boxes.
- 1 pick-up truck.
- 360 bus stop signs.
- 110 bus shelters.
- bus garage extension, including land acquisition.

The purchase of that equipment was recommended in a recent consulting study on improving the Lincoln Transportation System.

The pre-application is only a request for funds. Several lawmakers poked fun at the governmental redtape requiring such a procedure, since another application will have to be made following this one.

Extension Allowed

The lawmakers also approved the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs's request for a time extension to open the detoxification center at Lincoln General Hospital grounds.

The council approved a $10,693 grant monthly until March.

The lawmakers also:

Wheat Growers Back Legal Effort

McCook (UPI) — A Nebraska Wheat Growers official said Monday over $12,000 has been raised toward taking a serious look at the advisability of a lawsuit over the Soviet wheat pact.

Bob Becker of the McCook office of the association issued the report on the Nebraska efforts.

In making that report, Becker said, "The Nebraska organization has been a leader in the fund raising." He noted similar efforts are underway in 10 other wheat states.

In response to the earlier decision to look into the possibility of a lawsuit, he said, "We're getting a lot of notes back with checks attached."

Apparently, Becker said, "they've got a lot of confidence in us and the Nebraska wheat growers are mad" about the pact.

Becker said the estimated cost of a lawsuit has been pegged at $1 million.

Ad Campaign Is Proposed To Sell Haymarket Block

City officials are gearing up to give the Haymarket Square block the "big sell" in hopes that an acceptable developer can be found the second time around.

On the advice of Mayor Helen Boosalis's administration, the City Council Monday dropped the March 1 deadline for receiving proposals on the city-owned block. Officials said more time is needed to find a developer.

The block is located on the northwestern fringe of the central business district, from 9th to 10th, Q to R. Last year city leaders rejected two bids to develop the block.

This time, Planning Director Doug Brogden told the council Monday that the city "should disseminate more information than we did before." Brogden's promotion package outlines several ways to advertise the land for sale or for lease.

Brogden first suggested, however, that the council order another appraisal of the block's worth. The original appraisal placed a $450,000 figure on the block.

The national advertising campaign outlined by Brogden could be conducted by the city or an advertising agency.

If the ad campaign were mounted by city staff, the cost to do the art work, prepare an information packet and advertise for seven weeks in national publications would be $15,500. Brogden said.

If the city engaged an advertising company to do the job, including seven weeks' worth of advertising, the cost would be $16,500.

If the city hired a local realtor to do the job, the cost estimates vary, depending on the company contacted. Three local firms submitted estimates ranging from $22,500 to $27,000.

If the city hired a national realtor to handle the promotion, the planning staff placed a $31,000 estimate on that account.

Brogden also reported that the city could work with the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce in approaching various developers directly. A $2,000 price tag was placed on that proposal.

City Atty. Charles Humble recommended the council and mayor consider a combination approach using "a skilled real estate person who has some contacts," rather than using "a hit and miss approach."

The council took no action on the promotion suggestions.

Council Approves Head Of Urban Development

The City Council Monday unanimously approved Mayor Helen Boosalis' appointment of George S. Chick to head up the city's Urban Development Department.

Chick, 42, is community development administrator in Highland Park, Mich.

Mrs. Boosalis said Chick will earn $26,082 yearly. The mayor told the lawmakers that Chick should be on the job around the first of January.

Chick was selected from a field of 45 applicants. He has a bachelor of arts degree in architectural engineering from the University of Detroit and has done graduate work in public administration at Wayne State University in Detroit.

The city's Urban Development Department, formerly called the Community Development Department, is primarily involved this year in administering programs aimed at redeveloping Lincoln neighborhoods.

Once Chick takes on the job, Mrs. Boosalis indicated the new director also will be given substantial responsibility in administering downtown redevelopment efforts.

In other appointments, the council approved the mayor's selection of Supt. of Schools John Prasch to the city's Community Development task force. Members of the school board told city officials recently that a representative of the school district should be involved in neighborhood planning efforts.

The council also approved the appointment of Beatty Brasch to the Human Rights Commission. Mrs. Brasch will fill the unexpired term of Carol Reilly, who resigned.

Claim Changes Police Recordkeeping

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The city's $139 payment to a Lincoln man who claimed he was falsely arrested and taken to the city jail was an uncommon occurrence, the City Council was told Monday.

Asst. City Atty. Jim Faimon told the lawmakers that Roger Robbins' case prompted some changes in the police department's recordkeeping procedures.

Faimon's comments came in response to several councilmen's inquiry into claims filed against the city by citizens seeking damages for injuries supposedly caused by the city.

Still On File

Faimon explained that in the false arrest case, a warrant was issued in August for Robbins's arrest. In September, Robbins paid the fine. However, the warrant still remained on file and when the police department issued a "pick-up list," Robbins was arrested Oct. 25, a Friday. When he told police that he had paid the fine, he was allowed to be released to his attorney, since he could not appear in court until the following Monday.

Faimon said it was "revealed that the police department's records were not factual" and Robbins was reimbursed for the attorney's fee.

"This is the only case we've ever had like this one," Faimon reported, noting that the recordkeeping system now has been changed because of that case.

Although the council approved the city attorney's report on the disposition of claims filed in October and November, usually a routine item, Councilmen Bob Sikyta and Max Denney commented on what they called "the high number" of accidents involving city streetsweepers. Three claims were filed during that two-month period. Faimon said all three would be paid.

Sikyta Concerned

Sikyta also voiced concern over the way the city processes claims. He said the procedure may keep people from being paid by their own insurance company.

"It seems like an awfully lot of these are turned down by the city," Sikyta said.

City Atty. Charles Humble reported that each claim is investigated either by the city, if the damages reported are not insured, or by the city's insurance company if they are.

In both cases, Humble said the city must be shown to have been negligent.

Humble reported that a review of the city's policy on claims will be undertaken as a part of Mayor Helen Boosalis's ordered review of the city's entire insurance program.

Pre-Application OKd

In other business, the City Council authorized the mayor to file a pre-application with the Department of Transportation. The city is seeking federal funds to help pay for the following:

— 13 full-sized coaches.
— 3 service cars.
— 14 two-way radios.
— 13 fare boxes.
— 1 pick-up truck.
— 360 bus stop signs.
— 110 bus shelters.
— bus garage extension, including land acquisition.

The purchase of that equipment was recommended in a recent consulting study on improving the Lincoln Transportation System.

The pre-application is only a request for funds. Several lawmakers poked fun at the governmental redtape requiring such a procedure, since another application will have to be made following this one.

Extension Allowed

The lawmakers also approved the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs's request for a time extension to open the detoxification center at Lincoln General Hospital grounds.

The council approved a $10,693 grant monthly until March.

The lawmakers also:

Wheat Growers Back Legal Effort

McCook (UPI) — A Nebraska Wheat Growers official said Monday over $12,000 has been raised toward taking a serious look at the advisability of a lawsuit over the Soviet wheat pact.

Bob Becker of the McCook office of the association issued the report on the Nebraska efforts.

In making that report, Becker said, "The Nebraska organization has been a leader in the fund raising." He noted similar efforts are underway in 10 other wheat states.

In response to the earlier decision to look into the possibility of a lawsuit, he said, "We're getting a lot of notes back with checks attached."

Apparently, Becker said, "they've got a lot of confidence in us and the Nebraska wheat growers are mad" about the pact.

Becker said the estimated cost of a lawsuit has been pegged at $1 million.

Ad Campaign Is Proposed To Sell Haymarket Block

City officials are gearing up to give the Haymarket Square block the "big sell" in hopes that an acceptable developer can be found the second time around.

On the advice of Mayor Helen Boosalis's administration, the City Council Monday dropped the March 1 deadline for receiving proposals on the city-owned block. Officials said more time is needed to find a developer.

The block is located on the northwestern fringe of the central business district, from 9th to 10th, Q to R. Last year city leaders rejected two bids to develop the block.

This time, Planning Director Doug Brogden told the council Monday that the city "should disseminate more information than we did before." Brogden's promotion package outlines several ways to advertise the land for sale or for lease.

Council Approves Head Of Urban Development

The City Council Monday unanimously approved Mayor Helen Boosalis' appointment of George S. Chick to head up the city's Urban Development Department.

Chick, 42, is community development administrator in Highland Park, Mich.

Mrs. Boosalis said Chick will earn $26,082 yearly. The mayor told the lawmakers that Chick should be on the job around the first of January.

Council Asks State Revise Special Ed Funding Method

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Special Education Advisory Council recommended Monday that the 1976 Legislature revise state aid funding procedures for LB403, the law requiring school districts to provide programs for the handicapped.

That recommendation and others approved by the council will go to the State Board of Education for endorsement or rejection.

LB403 payments currently are distributed quarterly for ongoing costs in the more expensive special education programs. In the arrears approach proposed, state reimbursement for 1976-77 costs would be based on actual costs this school year.

"That way, we'd have a lot more accurate figures," said Gary M. Sherman, special education section director for the state Education Department. The approach would also eliminate working with estimates.

That method caused migraines for the Education Department early this year, when payments were made illegally to school districts, and some without handicapped children received funds.

John D. Clark, special education section management consultant for program planning, said although an LB403 funding mechanism revision would have the "greatest impact" of all legislation the council proposed, the funding formula would remain the same.

School districts are reimbursed up to 90% of the costs for special education that exceed per-pupil costs for regular school programs.

The council recommended that all school districts operate under a uniform fiscal year, from Sept. 1 through Aug. 31. Sherman said the various classes of districts now operate on a variety of fiscal years and uniformity "would make administration much easier" at the state level.

Clark explained, for example, that whereas the Education Department now can only provide qualified finance data, firm answers could be supplied if districts' annual financial reports arrived simultaneously.

Sherman said the advisory council also recommended seeking law to allow special education programs to serve students up to age 21, instead of the current age 18 limit.

For children under 5, Clark said, the council identified a need for some kind of diagnosis of handicaps.

The council proposed reimbursement for the cost of initial diagnoses by professionals eligible to verify handicaps. Under LB403, diagnosis reimbursements are paid only after students are placed in programs.

The law also is "somewhat open-ended" regarding transportation of handicapped students to special education programs, Sherman said. While the Education Department is a flow-through funding agency, Clark said LB403 authorizes no rules and regulations governing transportation.

Thus the council proposed the Legislature award the department the authority to develop those rules.

Regarding LB403 appropriations, the council recommended rather than awarding a total lump sum, the Legislature fund separate categories such as school programs, transportation and residential programs, and set an amount available in each

Clark said that kind of funding method would effectively isolate each category; then, if one were oversubscribed and a supplemental appropriation were required, it would not be to the detriment of other funding categories

Sherman said the council believes the Education Department's special education staff of 12 professionals for state activites and six for federal is "minimal." The council proposed a review and possible expansion.

Some positions are vacant The staff visits, inspects and monitors districts' special education programs and spending, ensures LB403 compliance and provides technical assistance, among other jobs.

Mishaps Fatal To 2

By The Associated Press

A two-car collision near Columbus late Sunday killed one man and critically injured another, while a crash near Norfolk took the life of one person.

The deaths raised Nebraska's 1975 traffic death toll to 353.

Platte County authorities Monday identified the victim of the Columbus area accident as Maurice Christensen, 36, of Columbus.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Larry M. Kosch, 25, of Columbus, who was critically hurt

Officers said the car struck the rear of an auto driven by Loren Sandman, 33, of Columbus, which was stopped signaling to make a left turn off U.S. 81,

The State Patrol said the crash of a car and a semi truck a mile east of Norfolk at the junction of Routes 275 and 24 took the life of Elsie Lienemann, 78, of Randolph.

She was a passenger in a car driven by William H. Lienemann, 77, of Randolph when the auto was struck broadside by the semi driven by Ralph H. Mann, 35, of Omaha, the patrol said

Council Debates Disposal Of 8 Old Chairs

That veritable Christmas spirit, better known as Scrooge, visited the City Council Monday as the lawmakers mulled over how miserly they could be in disposing of their old vinyl chairs.

Ah, those chairs. Those high-backed, uncomfortable torturers which help make lengthy council meetings even more insufferable, or so the lawmakers say

The council ordered replacements last summer. And, when they got the long-awaited word Monday that the new ones will arrive in time for Christmas, they decided it was time to get rid of the old ones. Preferably, the council said, to sell those eight pesky devils in the council chambers and add the proceeds to the council's budget

Councilman Max Denney reported that Human Rights Officer Gerry Henderson wanted one of the rejects. Well, added Dick Baker, the parks department wants them all.

Just a minute, said Mayor Helen Boosalis, who — in keeping with the spirit of the season — said she has a little list Apparently, quite a few City Hall workers have volunteered to relieve the council of its burden.

And while Denney thought the council should pocket the sale money for its budget, Councilman Bob Sikyta thought it would be kind of silly to sell the chairs.

"We'd just be taking out of one pocket and putting in the other," Sikyta said.

Besides, Finance Director Jim Mallon reported, the money wouldn't go into the council's budget anyway. It would go into the general fund.

Sikyta, who led the lawmakers in a series of budgetary cuts last summer, suggested that the chairs should be awarded to whatever department could show it would save money by not ordering new chairs.

The council still have a few days to determine which city worker or department receives the Christmas present, Denney said, since the new chairs aren't scheduled to arrive for ten days. The chairs were loaded on a truck in Aurora, Ill., Monday, Denney said.

"What are they doing — going 25 miles an hour?" inquired an incredulous Steve Cook.

Don't worry, reassured Bob Jeambey

"They'll be here in time for Christmas, Jeambey said, just in time for the council to festoon the arrivals with a red bow.

The new chairs, carrying a $833 price tag each, are described as being "black poppy" high-backed chairs, with a chrome base

Ah, Merry Christmas, council.

Y May Be Selling Trees Without A City License

Councilman Dick Baker wasn't exactly humming "O Tannenbaum" Monday when he pointed out that the trusty YMCA may be selling Christmas trees without a license.

Baker asked Planning Director Doug Brogden what was going on at 61st and South, where the YMCA sells trees every year.

"They're set up and I think they're selling," Baker said.

Brogden acknowledged that the Y's application for a special permit hadn't come up for public hearing before the City Council yet At first, Brogden got his dates mixed up, reporting that the Y's request would be "here in two weeks." Ooops, make that next Monday.

"Most people are buying their trees this week," Baker said, inquiring why the application was so late this year.

Brogden couldn't quite figure it out, since both he and the planning commission had recommended approval last month.

"We've taken no action to expedite this and we've taken no action to slow it down, either," the planning director said.

"What?" cried the council collectively.

"Do you mean to say you admit things can be slowed down?" joked Councilman Bob Sikyta

Sikyta suggested that the case of the illegal Christmas trees could be resolved simply by removing the city's yellow sign advertising the request and hearing date.

"It'd be a lot easier", Sikyta said, since, "We approve the application every year."

LES Panel Selections Face Delay

The appointments of three Lincoln Electric System board members may be delayed until the City Council revamps how those board members are selected.

Councilman Max Denney said Monday he will introduce a proposal to change the appointment procedure so that LES board members are selected similarly to other city board and committee representatives.

In all cases but LES and Lincoln General Hospital, the mayor appoints members to city boards and the council confirms those appointments.

Under present city law, the mayor and council together name LES representatives. City officials report that the existing procedure is a holdover from the days when the mayor presided over council meetings. The mayor no longer does that.

The terms of LES board members Neal Tyner, Vince Goeres and Larry Connealy expire Dec. 14. Tyner, Goeres and Connealy would continue to serve on the LES administrative board until re-appointed or replaced.

Some councilmembers and Mayor Helen Boosalis have indicated they may appoint different people to the board because of recent controversies between LES and the city.

Denney said he also plans to seek changes in several other LES procedural matters. He wants the mayor to appoint the LES administrator, with council confirmation, instead of having a joint appointment.

Additionally, Denney said he will attempt to amend the existing law so that all LES contracts which require long-range financing will need City Council approval.

Other council members have indicated they favor those changes in LES appointment and operating procedures.

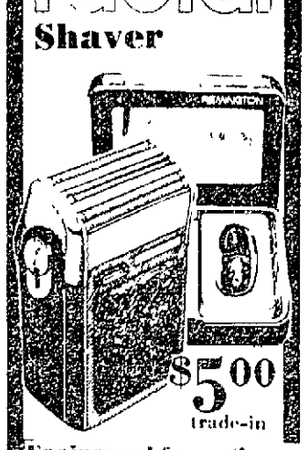

Denney indicated the council also may look into revising the appointment procedures to the Lincoln General Hospital Board. Both the hospital and LES boards are administrative, not advisory.

Council Asks State Revise Special Ed Funding Method

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Special Education Advisory Council recommended Monday that the 1976 Legislature revise state aid funding procedures for LB403, the law requiring school districts to provide programs for the handicapped.

That recommendation and others approved by the council will go to the State Board of Education for endorsement or rejection.

LB403 payments currently are distributed quarterly for ongoing costs in the more expensive special education programs. In the arrears approach proposed, state reimbursement for 1976-77 costs would be based on actual costs this school year.

"That way, we'd have a lot more accurate figures," said Gary M. Sherman, special education section director for the state Education Department. The approach would also eliminate working with estimates.

That method caused migraines for the Education Department early this year, when payments were made illegally to school districts, and some without handicapped children received funds.

John D. Clark, special education section management consultant for program planning, said although an LB403 funding mechanism revision would have the "greatest impact" of all legislation the council proposed, the funding formula would remain the same.

School districts are reimbursed up to 90% of the costs for special education that exceed per-pupil costs for regular school programs.

The council recommended that all school districts operate under a uniform fiscal year, from Sept. 1 through Aug. 31. Sherman said the various classes of districts now operate on a variety of fiscal years and uniformity "would make administration much easier" at the state level.

Clark explained, for example, that whereas the Education Department now can only provide qualified finance data, firm answers could be supplied if districts' annual financial reports arrived simultaneously.

Sherman said the advisory council also recommended seeking law to allow special education programs to serve students up to age 21, instead of the current age 18 limit.

For children under 5, Clark said, the council identified a need for some kind of diagnosis of handicaps.

The council proposed reimbursement for the cost of initial diagnoses by professionals eligible to verify handicaps. Under LB403, diagnosis reimbursements are paid only after students are placed in programs.

The law also is "somewhat open-ended" regarding transportation of handicapped students to special education programs, Sherman said. While the Education Department is a flow-through funding agency, Clark said LB403 authorizes no rules and regulations governing transportation.

Thus the council proposed the Legislature award the department the authority to develop those rules.

Regarding LB403 appropriations, the council recommended rather than awarding a total lump sum, the Legislature fund separate categories such as school programs, transportation and residential programs, and set an amount available in each.

Clark said that kind of funding method would effectively isolate each category; then, if one were oversubscribed and a supplemental appropriation were required, it would not be to the detriment of other funding categories.

Sherman said the council believes the Education Department's special education staff of 12 professionals for state activites and six for federal is "minimal." The council proposed a review and possible expansion.

Some positions are vacant. The staff visits, inspects and monitors districts' special education programs and spending, ensures LB403 compliance and provides technical assistance, among other jobs.

Mishaps Fatal To 2

By The Associated Press

A two-car collision near Columbus late Sunday killed one man and critically injured another, while a crash near Norfolk took the life of one person.

The deaths raised Nebraska's 1975 traffic death toll to 353.

Platte County authorities Monday identified the victim of the Columbus area accident as Maurice Christensen, 36, of Columbus.

He was a passenger in a car driven by Larry M. Kosch, 25, of Columbus, who was critically hurt.

Officers said the car struck the rear of an auto driven by Loren Sandman, 33, of Columbus, which was stopped signaling to make a left turn off U.S. 81.

The State Patrol said the crash of a car and a semi truck a mile east of Norfolk at the junction of Routes 275 and 24 took the life of Elsie Lienemann, 78, of Randolph.

She was a passenger in a car driven by William H. Lienemann, 77, of Randolph when the auto was struck broadside by the semi driven by Ralph H. Mann, 35, of Omaha, the patrol said.

Council Debates Disposal Of 8 Old Chairs

That veritable Christmas spirit, better known as Scrooge, visited the City Council Monday as the lawmakers mulled over how miserly they could be in disposing of their old vinyl chairs.

Ah, those chairs. Those high-backed, uncomfortable torturers which help make lengthy council meetings even more insufferable, or so the lawmakers say.

The council ordered replacements last summer. And, when they got the long-awaited word Monday that the new ones will arrive in time for Christmas, they decided it was time to get rid of the old ones. Preferably, the council said, to sell those eight pesky devils in the council chambers and add the proceeds to the council's budget.

Councilman Max Denney reported that Human Rights Officer Gerry Henderson wanted one of the rejects. Well, added Dick Baker, the parks department wants them all.

Just a minute, said Mayor Helen Boosalis, who — in keeping with the spirit of the season — said she has a little list. Apparently, quite a few City Hall workers have volunteered to relieve the council of its burden.

And while Denney thought the council should pocket the sale money for its budget, Councilman Bob Sikyta thought it would be kind of silly to sell the chairs.

"We'd just be taking out of one pocket and putting in the other," Sikyta said.

Besides, Finance Director Jim Mallon reported, the money wouldn't go into the council's budget anyway. It would go into the general fund.

Sikyta, who led the lawmakers in a series of budgetary cuts last summer, suggested that the chairs should be awarded to whatever department could show it would save money by not ordering new chairs.

The council still have a few days to determine which city worker or department receives the Christmas present, Denney said, since the new chairs aren't scheduled to arrive for ten days. The chairs were loaded on a truck in Aurora, Ill., Monday, Denney said.

"What are they doing — going 25 miles an hour?" inquired an incredulous Steve Cook.

Don't worry, reassured Bob Jeambey.

"They'll be here in time for Christmas, Jeambey said, just in time for the council to festoon the arrivals with a red bow.

The new chairs, carrying a $833 price tag each, are described as being "black poppy" high-backed chairs, with a chrome base.

Ah, Merry Christmas, council.

Y May Be Selling Trees Without A City License

Councilman Dick Baker wasn't exactly humming "O Tannenbaum" Monday when he pointed out that the trusty YMCA may be selling Christmas trees without a license.

Baker asked Planning Director Doug Brogden what was going on at 61st and South, where the YMCA sells trees every year.

"They're set up and I think they're selling," Baker said.

Brogden acknowledged that the Y's application for a special permit hadn't come up for public hearing before the City Council yet. At first, Brogden got his dates mixed up, reporting that the Y's request would be "here in two weeks." Ooops, make that next Monday.

"Most people are buying their trees this week," Baker said, inquiring why the application was so late this year.

Brogden couldn't quite figure it out, since both he and the planning commission had recommended approval last month.

"We've taken no action to expedite this and we've taken no action to slow it down, either," the planning director said.

"What?" cried the council collectively.

"Do you mean to say you admit things can be slowed down?" joked Councilman Bob Sikyta.

Sikyta suggested that the case of the illegal Christmas trees could be resolved simply by removing the city's yellow sign advertising the request and hearing date.

"It'd be a lot easier", Sikyta said, since, "We approve the application every year."

LES Panel Selections Face Delay

The appointments of three Lincoln Electric System board members may be delayed until the City Council revamps how those board members are selected.

Councilman Max Denney said Monday he will introduce a proposal to change the appointment procedure so that LES board members are selected similarly to other city board and committee representatives.

In all cases but LES and Lincoln General Hospital, the mayor appoints members to city boards and the council confirms those appointments.

Under present city law, the mayor and council together name LES representatives. City officials report that the existing procedure is a holdover from the days when the mayor presided over council meetings. The mayor no longer does that.

The terms of LES board members Neal Tyner, Vince Goeres and Larry Connealy expire Dec. 14. Tyner, Goeres and Connealy would continue to serve on the LES administrative board until re-appointed or replaced.

Some councilmembers and Mayor Helen Boosalis have indicated they may appoint different people to the board because of recent controversies between LES and the city.

Denney said he also plans to seek changes in several other LES procedural matters. He wants the mayor to appoint the LES administrator, with council confirmation, instead of having a joint appointment.

Additionally, Denney said he will attempt to amend the existing law so that all LES contracts which require long-range financing will need City Council approval.

Other council members have indicated they favor those changes in LES appointment and operating procedures.

Denney indicated the council also may look into revising the appointment procedures to the Lincoln General Hospital Board. Both the hospital and LES boards are administrative, not advisory.

NU's Gerard Eyes Olympics

STAFF PHOTO

LARRY GERARD . . . Shows training form.

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Everyone has dreamed of electrifying a capacity crowd with the winning touchdown or the last-second basket or performing feats of body control that prove one's ability beyond the average.

Nebraska gymnast Larry Gerard has been dreaming of going to the Olympics since he started gymnastics in ninth grade.

"I used to dream of doing routines and within the year I could do them," said Gerard. "And I've always dreamt of going to the Olympics and facing international competition."

Receives Invitation

Gerard may get his chance. The NU all-arounder was recently invited to attend an evaluation camp at Penn State, where seven gymnasts will be selected from 10 to 14 attending to compete against U.S.S.R., Canada and Romania in January and February.

The matches will have heavy influence in picking the U.S. Olympic team for the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

"He's got an awful good chance of making the Olympic team," said NU coach Francis Allen. "We know he has the talent and he's been working hard for this opportunity."

Gerard, a former Nebraska high school champion from Lincoln Southeast, qualified for the training camp by winning the all-around title at the prestigious Midwest Open two weeks ago, with a score of 104.4.

Allen explained that in order to qualify for the training camp, Gerard needed to score a 106 or better. But since the scoring system had changed, and the fact that Bill Meade, Southern Illinois coach, had supported Gerard's cause, he got the invitation.

Meade, who is also chairman of the U.S. Olympic Gymnastics Committee, had been watching Gerard since he was a senior in high school. "So Larry was invited despite his score," said Allen.

Easy Psyche

"I was really up for that meet in Chicago," Gerard said. "It's not tough to get up for the really big meets because I know I can do well."

"I worked about 100 routines in practice that week before the Midwest meet and felt strong going into it," Gerard said. "When I got a 52.55 in the compulsories, I figured I'd get a 106 total. But with the new scoring system I ended up with a 51.85 in the optionals even though I did some pretty good stuff."

The compulsories are routines that every gymnast competing must perform, and the scores for the six events are based on a 10-point scale. The optionals are routines that each gymnast develops and performs the way he likes. The scores are based on the 10-point scale but each gymnast starts with a 9.4 and must do something that involves risk and originality in order to score above the 9.4 mark. Last year, optionals were based on 9.8.

Placed Third

Gerard placed third behind Indiana State's Dave Griffith, and NU teammate Gene Mackie in Saturday's Ball State all-around invitational. Nebraska won the meet which was one of the first of its kind in the nation.

"I wasn't really psyched for the Ball State meet," Gerard said. "I am mentally ready for this week's meet, the Rocky Mountain Open, where we're the defending champions.

"The Rocky Mountain meet involves both optionals and compulsories unlike the Ball State meet where we just did optionals," he said. "I dislocated my thumb before the Midwest Open and I had a minor sprain on my other wrist. But both injuries are healing and I feel strong for this upcoming meet.

"I've still got to work on the side horse and the parallel bars to get ready, though," said Gerard. "The side horse seems to be the downfall of every all-arounder.

"And I might slip in something new. You have to get some excitement into it or your routine gets boring," Gerard said. The sophomore in the school of architecture said he was working on a double full twisting-double back flip on his dismount from the still rings, a back hand dismount from the parallel bars and a double full flip on the floor exercise.

"I really don't see these meets as competition against anybody but rather as an opportunity to show what I can do with my body," Gerard noted.

The qualification matches, against the Russians, Canadians, and the Romanians will be telecast nationwide on ABC TV.

Football Playoff Assured?

The Big Eight Conference's decision to oppose an NCAA-sponsored national football playoff just might have assured that it will be approved at the NCAA Convention in St. Louis in January.

Why? Well, just about everything the Big Eight has been pushing for has been beaten in recent NCAA meetings. At last August's special convention in Chicago, it looked like the Big Eight against the world and the world won.

The Big Eight is expected to be joined by the Pacific-8 and Big Ten in opposing the playoff, but for selfish reasons. Those two conferences will get more than $2 million as their share of the Rose Bowl game and they don't want to lose that plum.

The proposed playoff that will be voted upon has been passed by the NCAA Executive Committee, which accepted the recommendation of a feasibility study committee.

Under the plan, the 11 sanctioned bowls would be played as usual, becoming an integral part of the playoff system and giving the NCAA a ready-made round of 22 teams.

From the 11 winners, a Football Selection Committee, similar to the NCAA basketball tournament selection committee, would name four semi-finalists. Two games would be played a week after the Jan. 1 bowl games and the championship game would be played a week later.

Networks Favor Plan

The three major television networks are in favor of the plan, which could be a $15 million or more bonanza for the NCAA membership. And this is all in addition to the money currently derived from the bowls.

It is likely the bowls would assume more importance and that in itself would make them more attractive to the networks and potential sponsors. Bowl games now are meaningless.

Penn State's Joe Paterno says he hopes the other bowls are smart enough to realize that if the Rose Bowl loses some of its prestige they will gain in prestige.

"It will be a great thing for the bowls and a great thing for college football," Paterno said. "I hope we're smart enough to pass it and get started on it. Okay, somebody's gonna yell about not getting a fair shake. So what? Here's a chance to generate a lot of money for college athletics. Let's not blow it."

I have to side with the proponents of a playoff. I think the Big Eight is wrong in opposing the plan. What if it doesn't work perfectly the first year or two? There's nothing to prevent correcting the mistakes in future years.

Commissioner CHuck Neinas, who made the Big Eight's opposition announcement last Saturday, said it was the general feeling of the representatives of league schools that no feasible playoff system has yet been developed.

He added, "there was concern about extension of the season and the welfare of the athletes and the overall program."

Under the proposed plan, the extension of the season would be for just four teams and two additional weeks, both of them during the between semesters break.

Salary Hikes Proposed

Football Coach Tom Osborne's salary would be raised $5,000 to $34,000 annually under increases which will be recommended Saturday to the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

Increases suggested for Osborne and his assistants are in line with the state formula for state employes of 5 per cent plus $468, but Osborne and some of his aides would get additional merit pay money from discretionary funds.

Osborne's extraordinary merit raise would total $3,082.

Defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin's salary would go from $21,400 to $24,000 including $1,062 for extraordinary merit and Bill Myles' pay would be hiked from $18,250 to $20,000 including $370 for extraordinary merit.

Increases for the other assistants would range from $1,381 to $1,538.

They include:

Mike Corgan, from $21,400 to $22,938.
George Darlington, from $18,750 to $19,631.
Rick Duval, from $19,852 to $21,313.
Cletus Fischer, from $21,400 to $22,938.
John Melton, from $21,400 to $22,936.
Jerry Moore, from $19,852 to $21,313.
Warren Powers, from $21,400 to $22,938.
Jim Ross, from $21,400 to $22,938.

Nebraska football players, meanwhile, returned to the practice field Monday to being preparations for the Huskers' game against undefeated Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl in Dec. 26.

Most of the coaching staff still is away from the campus on recruiting missions, but they'll be back in time for the first practice in full pads on Thursday.

The first three days will be conditioning drills in sweat clothes.

Workouts will continue in Lincoln until the team departs for Tempe, Ariz., Dec. 21.

AA Baseball Sets Schedule

Hollywood, Fla. (UPI) — The AAA American Association announced Monday it has adopted a 136-game schedule for 1976.

League president Joe Ryan said opening day games will be Tulsa at Oklahoma City, Denver at Wichita, Evansvile at Omaha and Indianapolis at Des Moines.

Tulsa president A. Ray Smith was elected vice-president of the American Association.

Evans Paces Kansas State Win

From News Wires

Guard Mike Evans fueled a surge that led Kansas State to a 71-61 victory over Arizona in nonconference college basketball Monday night.

In other Big Eight games, Notre Dame held off Kansas for a 72-64 win, Missouri remained unbeaten with a 94-75 trouncing of Rice and Oklahoma edged Furman 69-67.

Arizona, 11th according to the Associated Press and ninth in the United Press International ratings, held its only lead of the game, 56-54, when Evans, a 6-1 sophomore, ran off 11 unanswered points during a two and a half minute span to put the host Wildcats into a 65-55 lead with 5:28 left. Evans had missed 11 shots in a row before the flurry of scoring.

K-State, ranked 18th by AP and 20th by UPI, led by as many as 12 points in the first half before taking 37-30 halftime lead. Arizona's Wildcats then chipped away in the second half, tying the score at 52-52 and 54-54 before forward Al Fleming's jumper with 7:55 left gave Arizona their 56-54 advantage.

Evans ended up with a game-high 25 points and Chuckie Williams added 16. Center Carl Gerlach added 12 points and 14 rebounds. Kansas State is now 3-2.

Arizona, now 4-1, was led by center Bob Elliott with 20 points and 17 rebounds.

Adrian Dantley pumped in 27 points as Notre Dame wore down outmanned Kansas.

The Irish, down by four at the half, utilized the shooting of Dantley and guard Don Williams to take a 50-48 advantage midway through the final half.

Notre Dame had a 56-50 lead with 6:27 left, but Kansas, on a lay-up by Reuben Shelton and four straight points by Norm Cook, narrowed the gap to 58-56. But then Notre Dame exploded for 14 points in the final 3:47 to put away the game.

Williams finished with 16 for Notre Dame and Martin added 11 for the eighth-ranked Irish. Cook led Kansas with 19 and Clint Johnson had 14.

Missouri remained unbeaten when guard Willie Smith scored eight straight points midway through the second half to ignite the previously sluggish Tigers.

The Tigers led only 50-47 after Elbert Darden's jump shot with 12:47 left to play brought the Owls back from a 13-point halftime deficit.

Smith, who finished with 27 points, hit four straight baskets and the Tigers dominated the boards. Missouri pulled down 50 caroms to Rice's 39.

Kim Anderson had 22 for Missouri and Stan Ray added 20 and 16 rebounds.

The Sooners used a tight defense and 58 per cent shooting in the second half to nip Furman.

Oklahoma had trailed by as much as 10 points in the first half but cut that margin to seven, 39-32, at halftime.

Led by the shooting of Cary Carrabine and Kevin Jones, OU built a 55-53 lead with nine minutes to play. The Sooners had an eight-point lead, but Furman staged a comeback to come within two points of catching up with a minute to play.

A costly Furman turnover and foul shooting by Eddie Fields and John McCullough saved the Sooners.

Oklahoma was led in scoring by forward Billy Graham with 13. Jones and Carrabine added 12 and 10, respectively, Furman was led by Ray Miller, who hit for 20.

Wesleyan Seeking First Win

Probable Lineups

Tarkio (1-2)		NWU (0-3)
Peterson (5-10)	G	Knollenberg (6-6)
Perchau (6-2)	G	Veerhusen (6-2)
Wright (6-4)	F	Abel (6-0)
Manz (6-3)	F	Simmerman (6-3)
Strimlinger (6-6)	C	Butler (6-9)

Tipoff: 7:30 p.m. Taylor Gym, NWU Campus

The Nebraska Wesleyan Plainsmen will be seeking their first win of the season Tuesday night when they host Tarkio College at 7:30 p.m. at Taylor Gym.

The Plainsmen dropped a 12-point decision to Simpson College (Ia.) Friday night and have lost two games by two points. Bellevue won on a last second shot 70-68 in the NWU opener and Jamestown withstood a late charge for a 76-74 win over Wesleyan Saturday night.

The Owls are currently 1-2 with their only win coming against Peru State last week. Bellevue also topped Tarkio, 86-73 in a game Friday night.

"We've really been hit by injuries," said Tarkio coach Lawrence Shear. "We'll be missing two of our starters and that leaves us with just two lettermen on the squad."

The two starters that will definitely play against NWU are forwards Jim Wright and Larry Manz, last year's top scorers on the Owls' 17-10 team.

Although the Plainsmen lead the series that started in 1907, 5-3, the Owls have won the last three meetings, including 83-79 and 87-61 decisions last year. Prior to those games, the two schools had not met since 1928.

"We got some good games under our belt this weekend," said NWU coach Irv Peterson. "I think that we're beginning to play together the way we should."

UPI Advances NU To Fifth

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State, a perfect 11-0 through its regular season games, came within one point of perfection Monday in the penultimate ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches, the last before the national championship is decided after the New Year's Day bowl contests.

The Buckeyes had completed their regular slate two weeks ago but saw one of their major challengers, previously undefeated Texas A&M, fall by the wayside. Woody Hayes' squad received 379 of a possible 380 points, earning all but one of the 39 first place votes cast from the 42 eligible coaches, and widened its lead to 78 points, now over Oklahoma, which was given the other No. 1 designation.

The Aggies, on their way to a perfect season and a Cotton Bowl berth, were upset by Arkansas, 31-6, Saturday and dropped from second to sixth place at 10-1. Meanwhile, the Razorbacks, now 9-2, jumped from a tie for 15th to rank 10th, the first time this season they've broken into the Top 10, and will go against 9-2 Georgia, ranked 12th, in the Cotton Bowl.

As a result of the Aggies' loss —the only action for any of the Top 20 teams — Oklahoma, Alabama, Michigan and Nebraska each moved up one notch to fill the Nos. 2 through 5 positions, respectively.

The Sooners, 10-1, are headed for the Orange Bowl against the Wolverines, 8-1-2; the Crimson Tide, 10-1, will play eighth-ranked Penn State, 9-2, in the Sugar Bowl; and the Cornhuskers, 10-1, are headed for the Fiesta Bowl against No. 7 Arizona State, at 11-0 the only other unbeaten major college team other than Ohio State. Neither the Sun Devils nor Nittany Lions changed positions since last week.

Texas, 9-2, remained ninth and will go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, where it will face 9-2 Colorado, which dropped one place to 11th.

UCLA, 8-2-1, Ohio State's Rose Bowl opponent which lost to the Buckeyes 41-20 earlier this year, dropped to 13th, followed by Florida, 9-2, Gator Bowl-bound Arizona, 9-2, and Califognia, 8-3.

Notre Dame, 8-3, and Pittsburgh, 7-4 and headed for the Sun Bowl, tied for 17th; and there was a four-way tie for 19th between Kansas, 7-4, also going to the Sun Bowl; Tulsa, 7-4; Maryland, 8-2-1 and also headed for the Gator Bowl; and Miami of Ohio, 10-1.

Indiana Rips FSU

From News Wires

It was a good night for the nation's top-ranked basketball teams.

At Indianapolis, top-ranked Indiana used a pressure defense to spark the offense Monday and crush Florida State 83-59 as Scott May scored 24 points and Kent Benson added 22 points.

The Seminoles, now 2-1, trailed 47-20 at halftime. The game was so one-sided that both teams substituted liberally.

The Hoosier defense forced 16 turnovers in the first half when FSU hit just eight of 31 shots while Indiana was connecting on 19 of 36.

At College Park, Md., Maryland, second-ranked in the Associated Press polls, awoke in the second half to crush Boston University, 122-82.

All five Maryland starters and subs Lawrence Boston and James Tillman scored in double figures with Lucas' 22 points leading the Terps, now 4-0.

At Charlotte, N.C., senior Mitch Kupchak scored 24 points to lead fourth-ranked North Carolina to a 90-77 victory over 16th-ranked Kentucky.

North Carolina, the defending ACC champion, moved to a 15-point lead before going into its famed "Four Corner" offense in the final six minutes.

The win was the fourth straight for the Tar Heels while it was Kentucky's second straight loss.

Sophomore Jack Givens paced the Wildcats with 24 points and Larry Johnson added 18 points.

At Tuscaloosa, Leon Douglas found his range in the second half and led the 10th-rated Alabama Crimson Tide to a 76-62 win over Middle Tennessee.

Douglas finished with 18 points and 13 rebounds. Forward Keith McCord came off the bench to score 17 points for Alabama, now 4-0.

At Champaign, sophomore forward Audie Matthews scored a career-high 21 points, forward Rich Adams had 20 and center Mike Washington hit for 19 to lead Illinois to a 90-73 victory over North Dakota State.

Illinois, which never trailed, hit 67 per cent of its field goal attempts and had a 78 per cent accuracy mark in the second half.

Illinois hiked its record to 5-0 while NDS slipped to 1-3.

At Peoria, Ill., senior forward Dan Frost hit 29 points and the University of Iowa scored five points in the last three seconds to edge Bradley, 100-96.

Bradley led by 11 points with 8:35 left. IU's final points came on a jump shot by center Bruce King, a technical free throw by guard Scott Thompson and Archie Mays' break-away layup. The technical was called against Bradley for taking too many time outs.

Thompson scored 17 points for Iowa and King had 15. Iowa is now 4-0 and Bradley 2-1.

NWU Women Falter, 74-34

Omaha — The College of St. Mary's downed the Nebraska Wesleyan women's basketball team, 74-34 here Monday night.

Ann Heller scored 18 points and Connie Joros added 11 points for CSM, while Melody Creighton tallied 13 and Linda Rolfsmeyer nine for Wesleyan.

College of St. Mary's led 37-19 at the half.

Hart, Banaszak Spark Raiders

OAKLAND (UPI) — Harold Hart and Pete Banaszak scored short yardage touchdowns and George Blanda added an 18yard field goal with 2:21 left Monday night and the Oakland defense sacked Denver quarterbacks 10 times in leading the Raiders to their seventh straight victory, 17-10, over the Broncos.

The Broncos, 14-point underdogs, scored their only touchdown with six minutes remaining when Fran Lynch crossed over on a five-yard run to close the deficit to four points.

But the Raiders, thanks to a pair of pass interference calls against rookie cornerback Louie Wright plus a Denver personal foul, rolled to the Broncos' one and then settled for Blanda's field goal for a seven-point victory.

The victory gave the Raiders, who clinched the AFC West a week ago, a 10-2 record with two games left before the playoffs. Pittsburgh has the best won-lost record in the AFC with an 11-1 mark, while Cincinnati also is 10-2.

An 18-yard field goal by Jim Turner accounted for the other Denver points as the Broncos suffered their seventh loss in 12 games.

Banaszak wound up a 48yard, seven-play drive in the fifth minute of the third quarter to give Oakland a 14-3 lead. Charles Phillips intercepted a pass by Hufnagel and ran it to midfield to put that drive in motion.

NU Cage Tickets Still Available

There are plenty of tickets remaining for the Nebraska home basketball game Wednesday night at the NU Coliseum, according to ticket manager Jim Pittenger.

The Huskers, now 1-3, meet St. Mary's College of Moraga, Calif., at 7:35 p.m. St. Mary's, a member of the West Coast Athletic Conference, is 0-3, losing to California at Santa Barbara, 78-71; nationally-regarded Southern California, 89-62 and to Sacramento State, 84-75.

This will be the last home Nebraska basketball game until Jan. 3 when the Huskers will host South Dakota.

The Gaels use a 2-1-2 zone defense and their offense is sparked by Ralph "The Rocket" Walker, with a 24.5 scoring average in the first two contests. Walker also led the Gaels in rebounding.

Assisting Walker is a backcourt duo of junior Rick Bernard and redshirt Dan Dion. Bernard is the second-leading scorer for St. Mary's.

The Frank LaPorte-coached Gaels finished fourth in their conference last year with a 7-7 record.

Nebraska and St. Mary's have met only once, with the Gaels beating Nebraska in Lincoln 58-54 during the 1946-47 season.

There will be no junior varsity game this Wednesday. The JV's were scheduled to play Bankers' Life, but the remaining six games have been canceled.

Readers Answer Cage Column

Readers' Turn

Since I've had my turn discussing subjects ranging from other newspapers to Big Eight basketball, today, we'll let the readers have their side.

The first comes from Pat McArdle of Crete and the geneteman takes exception to my comments regarding the Omaha World-Herald in a letter sent here and to Wally Provost, the Omaha paper's sports columnist.

"Creighton is now king of basketball in our state and should be recognized as such. However, while Mr. Gordon complained about the W-H treatment of Nebraska in Tuesday's edition, the Star was doing the same thing to Tom Apke and his team in its Tuesday edition. The North Dakota-Creighton game was equally "buried" on the bottom of the second page (just six paragraphs in length). If the "largest newspaper" was at fault for an advance story, was it equally as bad to bury a game story on Creighton?

"My point is, as the old saying goes, 'Pots should not call kettles black.' Both of the papers have distinct philosophies regarding priorities. The Star cuts down its full length coverage by publishing 'Morning Briefing' and W-H chooses to publish more on most stories (which I personally agree is better). Each paper does a good job when viewed in regard to its philosophy on how news should be presented on the sports page. I feel an apology is in order from Mr. Gordon for his unwarranted 'sniping.' How about it, Mark?"

COMMENT — It is debatable whether Creighton is king of Nebraska basketball. The Bluejays, with a much larger metropolitan population base and a modern facility with spacious parking, have not outdrawn the Huskers at the gate this year. CU is averaging 4,085 after two games while the Huskers are averaging 6,358 despite playing two games minus the NU students who were on Thanksgiving vacation.

Your observations on philosophies on the two papers are accurate and interesting. I agree that the story on Creighton probably should have been displayed better, but it's doubtful if there is statewide interest in a North Dakota-CU game played way up north.

As far as giving an apology . . . for what?? Saying what I believed then and still believe as the truth? You are certainly entitled to your opinion and I thank you for taking the time to write.

The next letter is from DeMet Harmon of Trumbull, who cites this newspaper for its lack of NU volleyball coverage.

THE PADDOCK

By Mark Gordon
Star Sports Writer

"I think it is pathetic when I as a parent of one of the volleyball players have to call her on Monday night or Tuesday to find out how the team did over the weekend. It looks to me like one of the state's larger newspapers, right in the City with the University could find some space for at least the scores."

COMMENT — Although this is a little far from my areas of horse racing and Nebraska basketball, the gentleman does have a valid point.

But the limited space with unlimited news has always been a problem. Dave Sittler had a lengthy story with a picture (your daughter was included) in the Sunday editions. Thank you for your comments.

The last letter comes from Hal Hyde of Lincoln, who discusses the South Dakota Coyotes, who invade the NU Coliseum to meet Nebraska on Jan. 3.

"I gather that in spite of North Dakota's sound whipping of Creighton and South Dakota's topping of Iowa State, you don't think much of NCC (North Central Conference) basketball.

The Coyotes would beat the Cornhuskers if they go at it with a ho-hum attitude.

Rick Nissen, brother of former NU player Al Nissen, has been a four-year starter for S.D. I've seen both play and feel Rick is at least as good as his brother was. He had 32 points against Iowa State.

Your article referred to press coverage. I never have understood why the Star will give scores of totally obscure eastern schools no one even knows about, but is very inconsistent in giving scores of the NCC teams."

COMMENT — I agree that South Dakota will defeat Nebraska if the Huskers approach the game as coach Ken Trickey's Cyclones obviously did before losing 79-75 in Ames last week.

I'm sure this newspaper will try harder to get all the NCC scores printed in the future. Thank you for your note.

NU's Gerard Eyes Olympics

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Everyone has dreamed of electrifying a capacity crowd with the winning touchdown or the last-second basket or performing feats of body control that prove one's ability beyond the average.

Nebraska gymnast Larry Gerard has been dreaming of going to the Olympics since he started gymnastics in ninth grade.

"I used to dream of doing routines and within the year I could do them," said Gerard. "And I've always dreamt of going to the Olympics and facing international competition."

Receives Invitation

Gerard may get his chance. The NU all-arounder was recently invited to attend an evaluation camp at Penn State, where seven gymnasts will be selected from 10 to 14 attending to compete against U.S.S.R., Canada and Romania in January and February.

The matches will have heavy influence in picking the U.S. Olympic team for the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

"He's got an awful good chance of making the Olympic team," said NU coach Francis Allen. "We know he has the talent and he's been working hard for this opportunity."

Gerard, a former Nebraska high school champion from Lincoln Southeast, qualified for the training camp by winning the all-around title at the prestigious Midwest Open two weeks ago, with a score of 104.4.

Allen explained that in order to qualify for the training camp, Gerard needed to score a 106 or better. But since the scoring system had changed, and the fact that Bill Meade, Southern Illinois coach, had supported Gerard's cause, he got the invitation.

Meade, who is also chairman of the U.S. Olympic Gymnastics Committee, had been watching Gerard since he was a senior in high school. "So Larry was invited despite his score," said Allen.

Easy Psyche

"I was really up for that meet in Chicago," Gerard said. "It's not tough to get up for the really big meets because I know I can do well."

"I worked about 100 routines in practice that week before the Midwest meet and felt strong going into it," Gerard said. "When I got a 52.55 in the compulsories, I figured I'd get a 106 total. But with the new scoring system I ended up with a 51.85 in the optionals even though I did some pretty good stuff."

The compulsories are routines that every gymnast competiting must perform, and the scores for the six events are based on a 10-point scale. The optionals are routines that each gymnast develops and performs the way he likes. The scores are based on the 10-point scale but each gymnast starts with a 9.4 and must do something that involves risk and originality in order to score above the 9.4 mark. Last year, optionals were based on 9.8.

Placed Third

Gerard placed third behind Indiana State's Dave Griffith, and NU teammate Gene Mackie in Saturday's Ball State all-around invitational. Nebraska won the meet which was one of the first of its kind in the nation.

"I wasn't really psyched for the Ball State meet," Gerard said. "I am mentally ready for this week's meet, the Rocky Mountain Open, where we're the defending champions.

"The Rocky Mountain meet involves both optionals and compulsories unlike the Ball State meet where we just did optionals," he said. "I dislocated my thumb before the Midwest Open and I had a minor sprain on my other wrist. But both injuries are healing and I feel strong for this upcoming meet.

"I've still got to work on the side horse and the parallel bars to get ready, though," said Gerard. "The side horse seems to be the downfall of every all-arounder.

"And I might slip in something new. You have to get some excitement into it or your routine gets boring," Gerard said. The sophomore in the school of architecture said he was working on a double full twisting-double back flip on his dismount from the still rings, a back hand dismount from the parallel bars and a double full flip on the floor exercise.

"I really don't see these meets as competition against anybody but rather as an opportunity to show what I can do with my body," Gerard noted.

The qualification matches, against the Russians, Canadians, and the Romanians will be telecast nationwide on ABC TV.

Football Playoff Assured?

The Big Eight Conference's decision to oppose an NCAA-sponsored national football playoff just might have assured that it will be approved at the NCAA Convention in St. Louis in January.

Why? Well, just about everything the Big Eight has been pushing for has been beaten in recent NCAA meetings. At last August's special convention in Chicago, it looked like the Big Eight against the world and the world won.

The Big Eight is expected to be joined by the Pacific-8 and Big Ten in opposing the playoff, but for selfish reasons. Those two conferences will get more than $2 million as their share of the Rose Bowl game and they don't want to lose that plum.

The proposed playoff that will be voted upon has been passed by the NCAA Executive Committee, which accepted the recommendation of a feasibility study committee.

Under the plan, the 11 sanctioned bowls would be played as usual, becoming an integral part of the playoff system and giving the NCAA a ready-made round of 22 teams.

From the 11 winners, a Football Selection Committee, similar to the NCAA basketball tournament selection committee, would name four semi-finalists. Two games would be played a week after the Jan. 1 bowl games and the championship game would be played a week later.

Networks Favor Plan

The three major television networks are in favor of the plan, which could be a $15 million or more bonanza for the NCAA membership. And this is all in addition to the money currently derived from the bowls.

It is likely the bowls would assume more importance and that in itself would make them more attractive to the networks and potential sponsors. Bowl games now are meaningless.

Penn State's Joe Paterno says he hopes the other bowls are smart enough to realize that if the Rose Bowl loses some of its prestige they will gain in prestige.

"It will be a great thing for the bowls and a great thing for college football," Paterno said. "I hope we're smart enough to pass it and get started on it. Okay, somebody's gonna yell about not getting a fair shake. So what? Here's a chance to generate a lot of money for college athletics. Let's not blow it."

I have to side with the proponents of a playoff. I think the Big Eight is wrong in opposing the plan. What if it doesn't work perfectly the first year or two? There's nothing to prevent correcting the mistakes in future years.

Commissioner CHuck Neinas, who made the Big Eight's opposition announcement last Saturday, said it was the general feeling of the representatives of league schools that no feasible playoff system has yet been developed.

He added, "there was concern about extension of the season and the welfare of the athletes and the overall program."

Under the proposed plan, the extension of the season would be for just four teams and two additional weeks, both of them during the between semesters break.

Salary Hikes Proposed

Football Coach Tom Osborne's salary would be raised $5,000 to $34,000 annually under increases which will be recommended Saturday to the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

Increases suggested for Osborne and his assistants are in line with the state formula for state employes of 5 per cent plus $468, but Osborne and some of his aides would get additional merit pay money from discretionary funds.

Osborne's extraordinary merit raise would total $3,082.

Defensive coordinator Monte Kiffin's salary would go from $21,400 to $24,000 including $1,062 for extraordinary merit and Bill Myles' pay would be hiked from $18,250 to $20,000 including $370 for extraordinary merit.

Increases for the other assistants would range from $1,381 to $1,538.

They include:

Mike Corgan, from $21,400 to $22,938.
George Darlington, from $18,250 to $19,631.
Rick Duval, from $19,852 to $21,313.
Cletus Fischer, from $21,400 to $22,938.
John Melton, from $21,400 to $22,938.
Jerry Moore, from $19,852 to $21,313.
Warren Powers, from $21,400 to $22,938.
Jim Ross, from $21,400 to $22,938.

Nebraska football players, meanwhile, returned to the practice field Monday to being preparations for the Huskers' game against undefeated Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl in Dec. 26.

Most of the coaching staff still is away from the campus on recruiting missions, but they'll be back in time for the first practice in full pads on Thursday.

The first three days will be conditioning drills in sweat clothes.

Workouts will continue in Lincoln until the team departs for Tempe, Ariz., Dec. 21.

Evans Paces Kansas State Win

From News Wires

Guard Mike Evans fueled a surge that led Kansas State to a 71-61 victory over Arizona in nonconference college basketball Monday night.

In other Big Eight games, Notre Dame held off Kansas for a 72-64 win, Missouri remained unbeaten with a 94-75 trouncing of Rice and Oklahoma edged Furman 69-67.

Arizona, 11th according to the Associated Press and ninth in the United Press International ratings, held its only lead of the game, 56-54, when Evans, a 6-1 sophomore, ran off 11 unanswered points during a two and a half minute span to put the host Wildcats into a 65-55 lead with 5:28 left. Evans had missed 11 shots in a row before the flurry of scoring.

K-State, ranked 18th by AP and 20th by UPI, led by as many as 12 points in the first half before taking 37-30 halftime lead. Arizona's Wildcats then chipped away in the second half, tying the score at 52-52 and 54-54 before forward Al Fleming's jumper with 7:55 left gave Arizona their 56-54 advantage.

Evans ended up with a game-high 25 points and Chuckie Williams added 16. Center Carl Gerlach added 12 points and 14 rebounds. Kansas State is now 3-2.

Arizona, now 4-1, was led by center Bob Elliott with 20 points and 17 rebounds.

Adrian Dantley pumped in 27 points as Notre Dame wore down outmanned Kansas.

The Irish, down by four at the half, utilized the shooting of Dantley and guard Don Williams to take a 50-48 advantage midway through the final half.

Notre Dame had a 56-50 lead with 6:27 left, but Kansas, on a lay-up by Reuben Shelton and four straight points by Norm Cook, narrowed the gap to 58-56. But then Notre Dame exploded for 14 points in the final 3:47 to put away the game.

Williams finished with 16 for Notre Dame and Martin added 11 for the eighth-ranked Irish. Cook led Kansas with 19 and Clint Johnson had 14.

Missouri remained unbeaten when guard Willie Smith scored eight straight points midway through the second half to ignite the previously sluggish Tigers.

The Tigers led only 50-47 after Elbert Darden's jump shot with 12:47 left to play brought the Owls back from a 13-point halftime deficit.

Smith, who finished with 27 points, hit four straight baskets and the Tigers dominated the boards. Missouri pulled down 50 caroms to Rice's 39.

Kim Anderson had 22 for Missouri and Stan Ray added 20 and 16 rebounds.

The Sooners used a tight defense and 58 per cent shooting in the second half to nip Furman.

Oklahoma had trailed by as much as 10 points in the first half but cut that margin to seven, 39-32, at halftime.

Led by the shooting of Cary Carrabine and Kevin Jones, OU built a 55-53 lead with nine minutes to play. The Sooners had an eight-point lead, but Furman staged a comeback to come within two points of catching up with a minute to play.

A costly Furman turnover and foul shooting by Eddie Fields and John McCullough saved the Sooners.

Oklahoma was led in scoring by forward Billy Graham with 13. Jones and Carrabine added 12 and 10, respectively, Furman was led by Ray Miller, who hit for 20.

Wesleyan Seeking First Win

Probable Lineups

Tarkio (1-2)		NWU (0-3)
Peterson (5-10)	G	Knollenberg (6-0)
Ferchau (6-2)	G	Veerhusen (6-2)
Wright (6-4)	F	Abel (6-0)
Manz (6-3)	F	Simmerman (6-8)
Strimlinger (6-6)	C	Butler (6-9)

Tipoff: 7:30 p.m. Taylor Gym, NWU Campus.

The Nebraska Wesleyan Plainsmen will be seeking their first win of the season Tuesday night when they host Tarkio College at 7:30 p.m. at Taylor Gym.

The Plainsmen dropped a 12-point decision to Simpson College (Ia.) Friday night and have lost two games by two points. Bellevue won on a last second shot 70-68 in the NWU opener and Jamestown withstood a late charge for a 76-74 win over Wesleyan Saturday night.

The Owls are currently 1-2 with their only win coming against Peru State last week. Bellevue also topped Tarkio, 86-73 in a game Friday night.

"We've really been hit by injuries," said Tarkio coach Lawrence Shear. "We'll be missing two of our starters and that leaves us with just two lettermen on the squad."

The two starters that will definitely play against NWU are forwards Jim Wright and Larry Manz, last year's top scorers on the Owls' 17-10 team.

Although the Plainsmen lead the series that started in 1907, 5-3, the Owls have won the last three meetings, including 83-79 and 87-61 decisions last year. Prior to those games, the two schools had not met since 1928.

"We got some good games under our belt this weekend," said NWU coach Irv Peterson. "I think that we're beginning to play together the way we should."

UPI Advances NU To Fifth

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State, a perfect 11-0 through its regular season games, came within one point of perfection Monday in the penultimate ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches, the last before the national championship is decided after the New Year's Day bowl contests.

The Buckeyes had completed their regular slate two weeks ago but saw one of their major challengers, previously undefeated Texas A&M, fall by the wayside. Woody Hayes' squad received 379 of a possible 380 points, earning all but one of the 39 first place votes cast from the 42 eligible coaches, and widened its lead to 78 points, now over Oklahoma, which was given the other No. 1 designation.

The Aggies, on their way to a perfect season and a Cotton Bowl berth, were upset by Arkansas, 31-6, Saturday and dropped from second to sixth place at 10-1. Meanwhile, the Razorbacks, now 9-2, jumped from a tie for 15th to rank 10th, the first time this season they've broken into the Top 10, and will go against 9-2 Georgia, ranked 12th, in the Cotton Bowl.

As a result of the Aggies' loss —the only action for any of the Top 20 teams — Oklahoma, Alabama, Michigan and Nebraska each moved up one notch to fill the Nos. 2 through 5 positions, respectively.

The Sooners, 10-1, are headed for the Orange Bowl against the Wolverines, 8-1-2; the Crimson Tide, 10-1, will play eighth-ranked Penn State, 9-2, in the Sugar Bowl; and the Cornhuskers, 10-1, are headed for the Fiesta Bowl against No. 7 Arizona State, at 11-0 the only other unbeaten major college team other than Ohio State. Neither the Sun Devils nor Nittany Lions changed positions since last week.

Texas, 9-2, remained ninth and will go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, where it will face 9-2 Colorado, which dropped one place to 11th.

UCLA, 8-2-1, Ohio State's Rose Bowl opponent which lost to the Buckeyes 41-20 earlier this year, dropped to 13th, followed by Florida, 9-2, Gator Bowl-bound Arizona, 9-2, and Califognia, 8-3.

Notre Dame, 8-3, and Pittsburgh, 7-4 and headed for the Sun Bowl, tied for 17th; and there was a four-way tie for 19th between Kansas, 7-4, also going to the Sun Bowl; Tulsa, 7-4; Maryland, 8-2-1 and also headed for the Gator Bowl; and Miami of Ohio, 10-1.

Indiana Rips FSU

From News Wires

It was a good night for the nation's top-ranked basketball teams.

At Indianapolis, top-ranked Indiana used a pressure defense to spark the offense Monday and crush Florida State 83-59 as Scott May scored 24 points and Kent Benson added 22 points.

The Seminoles, now 2-1, trailed 47-20 at halftime. The game was so one-sided that both teams substituted liberally.

The Hoosier defense forced 16 turnovers in the first half when FSU hit just eight of 31 shots while Indiana was connecting on 19 of 36.

At College Park, Md., Maryland, second-ranked in the Associated Press polls, awoke in the second half to crush Boston University, 122-82.

All five Maryland starters and subs Lawrence Boston and James Tillman scored in double figures with Lucas' 22 points leading the Terps, now 4-0.

At Charlotte, N.C., senior Mitch Kupchak scored 24 points to lead fourth-ranked North Carolina to a 90-77 victory over 16th-ranked Kentucky.

North Carolina, the defending ACC champion, moved to a 15-point lead before going into its famed "Four Corner" offense in the final six minutes.

The win was the fourth straight for the Tar Heels while it was Kentucky's second straight loss.

Sophomore Jack Givens paced the Wildcats with 24 points and Larry Johnson added 18 points.

At Tuscaloosa, Leon Douglas found his range in the second half and led the 10th-rated Alabama Crimson Tide to a 76-62 win over Middle Tennessee.

Douglas finished with 18 points and 13 rebounds. Forward Keith McCord came off the bench to score 17 points for Alabama, now 4-0.

At Champaign, sophomore forward Audie Matthews scored a career-high 21 points, forward Rich Adams had 20 and center Mike Washington hit for 19 to lead Illinois to a 90-73 victory over North Dakota State.

Illinois, which never trailed, hit 67 per cent of its field goal attempts and had a 78 per cent accuracy mark in the second half.

Illinois hiked its record to 5-0 while NDS slipped to 1-3.

At Peoria, Ill., senior forward Dan Frost hit 29 points and the University of Iowa scored five points in the last three seconds to edge Bradley, 100-96.

Bradley led by 11 points with 8:35 left. IU's final points came on a jump shot by center Bruce King, a technical free throw by guard Scott Thompson and Archie Mays' break-away layup. The technical was called against Bradley for taking too many time outs.

Thompson scored 17 points for Iowa and King had 15. Iowa is now 4-0 and Bradley 2-1.

Hart, Banaszak Spark Raiders

OAKLAND (UPI) — Harold Hart and Pete Banaszak scored short yardage touchdowns and George Blanda added an 18yard field goal with 2:21 left Monday night and the Oakland defense sacked Denver quarterbacks 10 times in leading the Raiders to their seventh straight victory, 17-10, over the Broncos.

The Broncos, 14-point underdogs, scored their only touchdown with six minutes remaining when Fran Lynch crossed over on a five-yard run to close the deficit to four points.

But the Raiders, thanks to a pair of pass interference calls against rookie cornerback Louie Wright plus a Denver personal foul, rolled to the Broncos' one and then settled for Blanda's field goal for a seven-point victory.

The victory gave the Raiders, who clinched the AFC West a week ago, a 10-2 record with two games left before the playoffs. Pittsburgh has the best won-lost record in the AFC with an 11-1 mark, while Cincinnati also is 10-2.

An 18-yard field goal by Jim Turner accounted for the other Denver points as the Broncos suffered their seventh loss in 12 games.

Banaszak wound up a 48yard, seven-play drive in the fifth minute of the third quarter to give Oakland a 14-3 lead. Charles Phillips intercepted a pass by Hufnagel and ran it to midfield to put that drive in motion

NWU Women Falter, 74-34

Omaha — The College of St. Mary's downed the Nebraska Wesleyan women's basketball team, 74-34 here Monday night.

Ann Heller scored 18 points and Connie Joros added 11 points for CSM, while Melody Creighton tallied 13 and Linda Rolfsmeyer nine for Wesleyan.

College of St. Mary's led 37-19 at the half.

NU Cage Tickets Still Available

There are plenty of tickets remaining for the Nebraska home basketball game Wednesday night at the NU Coliseum, according to ticket manager Jim Pittenger.

The Huskers, now 1-3, meet St. Mary's College of Moraga, Calif., at 7:35 p.m. St. Mary's, a member of the West Coast Athletic Conference, is 0-3, losing to California at Santa Barbara, 78-71; nationally-regarded Southern California, 89-62 and to Sacramento State, 84-75.

This will be the last home Nebraska basketball game until Jan. 3 when the Huskers will host South Dakota.

The Gaels use a 2-1-2 zone defense and their offense is sparked by Ralph "The Rocket" Walker, with a 24.5 scoring average in the first two contests. Walker also led the Gaels in rebounding.

Assisting Walker is a backcourt duo of junior Rick Bernard and redshirt Dan Dion. Bernard is the second-leading scorer for St. Mary's.

The Frank LaPorte-coached Gaels finished fourth in their conference last year with a 7-7 record.

Nebraska and St. Mary's have met only once, with the Gaels beating Nebraska in Lincoln 58-54 during the 1946-47 season.

There will be no junior varsity game this Wednesday. The JV's were scheduled to play Bankers' Life, but the remaining six games have been canceled.

Readers Answer Cage Column

Readers' Turn

Since I've had my turn discussing subjects ranging from other newspapers to Big Eight basketball, today, we'll let the readers have their side.

The first comes from Pat McArdle of Crete and the geneteman takes exception to my comments regarding the Omaha World-Herald in a letter sent here and to Wally Provost, the Omaha paper's sports columnist.

"Creighton is now king of basketball in our state and should be recognized as such. However, while Mr. Gordon complained about the W-H treatment of Nebraska in Tuesday's edition, the Star was doing the same thing to Tom Apke and his team in its Tuesday edition. The North Dakota-Creighton game was equally "buried" on the bottom of the second page (just six paragraphs in length). If the "largest newspaper" was at fault for an advance story, was it equally as bad to bury a game story on Creighton?

"My point is, as the old saying goes, 'Pots should not call kettles black.' Both of the papers have distinct philosophies regarding priorities. The Star cuts down its full length coverage by publishing 'Morning Briefing' and W-H chooses to publish more on most stories (which I personally agree is better). Each paper does a good job when viewed in regard to its philosophy on how news should be presented on the sports page. I feel an apology is in order from Mr. Gordon for his unwarranted 'sniping.' How about it, Mark?"

COMMENT — It is debatable whether Creighton is king of Nebraska basketball. The Bluejays, with a much larger metropolitan population base and a modern facility with spacious parking, have not outdrawn the Huskers at the gate this year. CU is averaging 4,085 after two games while the Huskers are averaging 6,358 despite playing two games minus the NU students who were on Thanksgiving vacation.

Your observations on philosophies on the two papers are accurate and interesting. I agree that the story on Creighton probably should have been displayed better, but it's doubtful if there is statewide interest in a North Dakota-CU game played way up north.

As far as giving an apology . . . for what?? Saying what I believed then and still believe as the truth? You are certainly entitled to your opinion and I thank you for taking the time to write.

The next letter is from DeMet Harmon of Trumbull, who cites this newspaper for its lack of NU volleyball coverage.

THE PADDOCK

By Mark Gordon
Star Sports Writer

"I think it is pathetic when I as a parent of one of the volleyball players have to call her on Monday night or Tuesday to find out how the team did over the weekend. It looks to me like one of the state's larger newspapers, right in the City with the University could find some space for at least the scores."

COMMENT — Although this is a little far from my areas of horse racing and Nebraska basketball, the gentleman does have a valid point.

But the limited space with unlimited news has always been a problem. Dave Sittler had a lengthy story with a picture (your daughter was included) in the Sunday editions. Thank you for your comments.

The last letter comes from Hal Hyde of Lincoln, who discusses the South Dakota Coyotes, who invade the NU Coliseum to meet Nebraska on Jan. 3.

"I gather that in spite of North Dakota's sound whipping of Creighton and South Dakota's topping of Iowa State, you don't think much of NCC (North Central Conference) basketball.

The Coyotes would beat the Cornhuskers if they go at it with a ho-hum attitude.

Rick Nissen, brother of former NU player Al Nissen, has been a four-year starter for S.D. I've seen both play and feel Rick is at least as good as his brother was. He had 32 points against Iowa State.

Your article referred to press coverage. I never have understood why the Star will give scores of totally obscure eastern schools no one even knows about, but is very inconsistent in giving scores of the NCC teams."

COMMENT — I agree that South Dakota will defeat Nebraska if the Huskers approach the game as coach Ken Trickey's Cyclones obviously did before losing 79-75 in Ames last week.

I'm sure this newspaper will try harder to get all the NCC scores printed in the future. Thank you for your note.

UNO Gains Fourth Win

Omaha (UPI) — The University of Nebraska-Omaha, despite the 21 points turned in by Bobby Bone for Missouri-St. Louis, took the lead for good with just under two minutes left in the game to hand the Missouri team its first defeat of the season, 84-80.

UNO scoring was led by Dennis Forrest with 16 while four others turned in double figures in the game that featured seven lead changes in the second half of play.

The other high scorers for Nebraska were Terry Keehan with 14, Nate McMorris, 11, Toby Johnson, 10, and Leo Grimes, 10.

The win put UNO 4-0 for the season while the Missouri team stands at 3-1.

Menefee Eyeing Bauer Rematch

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Ray Menefee has been waiting to face Garth Bauer for a long time.

And Wednesday night he'll get his chance in the featured match at the Lincoln boxing smoker sponsored by the Lincoln Association of Master Barbers at 8 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium.

Menefee, who coaches and fights for Stan's Lounge has met and lost to Bauer of Sutton the only two times the two have met.

"The first time we met I had just gotten over the flu and really hadn't had time to work out much. He took advantage of me in close and won by a split decision in his home town," Menefee said. "The second time we fought in Lincoln but I wasn't ready for the bout and lost another split decision."

"This time, I'm ready. And if the match comes off, I'm sure it will be a lot more competitive than our first matches," Menefee said.

Menefee, who has won the Southeast District Golden Gloves crown three years in a row, said he will probably give 10 to 12 pounds in meeting Bauer, "I'll be fighting uphill if he's much over 130 pounds because I'm at 121 right now."

"He's got a lot of strength and can push me or hold me anywhere in the ring," said Menefee. "But if I can stay outside I think I can pick him apart."

The other featured fights include former Southeast District champion Bruce Pearson against highly-regarded Lamont Kirkland, and heavyweight Ben Berry against defending Midwest Golden Gloves champion Chuck Anderson.

Pearson, who fights for Stan's Lounge club lost his first bout of the year to Kirkland. Pearson knocked Kirkland down in the first round but the Omaha fighter rallied for the decision.

Anderson, who has won the Midwest title two years in a row, defeated Lincolnite Ron Stutzman in the Midwest finals last year.

Other boxers expected include the Easterday club, coached by Randy Nelsen, and clubs from Macy, Sutton, Hastings and Omaha.

Dean Smith of the University of North Carolina and Marv Harshman of the University of Washington will coach in the 14th annual National Association of Basketball Coaches all-star game on April 3.

South Carolina basketball coach Frank McGuire said that suspended guard Jack Gilloon will be reinstated for the Carolina Classic tournament Dec. 22-23. The Gamecocks play at Nebraska Jan. 6.

Ball State athletic director Ray Louthen said Alabama's Bear Bryant and Indiana's Bobby Knight should quit the NCAA if they don't agree with its policies.

The Metropolitan Intercollegiate Basketball Association, which sponsors the NIT, has yet to decide how many teams will compete in the tournament and still is exploring the possibility of television coverage.

The NBA agreed at the request of a federal judge to postpone indefinitely its special draft of five ABA players.

Surgeons who operated on forward Bill Cunningham's injured left knee found "an irreparable" torn ligament and cartilage tear. He'll be out the rest of the year.

The Kansas City Kings reacquired guard Matt Guokas from the Chicago Bulls in exchange for a third-round draft pick next year and a second-round pick in 1977.

FOOTBALL

Hinky Dinky supermarkets of Nebraska have laid a Nebraska corn-fed beef on the line in the Arizona State-Nebraska Fiesta Bowl game. If NU wins, the A.J. Bayless supermarkets of Phoenix will send a beef to be auctioned with proceeds going to the Nebraska athletic department. The reverse would find the Nebraska beef going to Arizona for auction.

The Oklahoma Sooners started practice for their Orange Bowl appearance. Coaches said the practices would be shorter than regular season drills, with less contact.

Iowa State running back Jim Wingender, who rushed for 1,070 yards, was awarded the highest honor at the Cyclone recognition banquet. The award, the Reuben Miller Award, is for the football player contributing the most to the team on and off the field. He is from Omaha.

Nebraska wingback Tom Heiser was named to the Football Foundation 1975 scholar athlete team. Leroy Selmon of Oklahoma was also picked.

OTHER SPORTS

The San Francisco Giants acquired third baseman Ken Reitz from the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Pete Falcons

The World Hockey Association suspended all-time leading scorer Gordie Howe for the first time in his 29-year career and slapped him with a $1,000 fine. Both Howe and Houston Aeros goaltender Ron Grahame were suspended, Howe for two games and Grahame for one. Grahame was fined $150.

UNO Gains Fourth Win

Omaha (UPI) — The University of Nebraska-Omaha, despite the 21 points turned in by Bobby Bone for Missouri-St. Louis, took the lead for good with just under two minutes left in the game to hand the Missouri team its first defeat of the season, 84-80.

UNO scoring was led by Dennis Forrest with 16 while four others turned in double figures in the game that featured seven lead changes in the second half of play.

The other high scorers for Nebraska were Terry Keehan with 14, Nate McMorris, 11, Toby Johnson, 10, and Leo Grimes, 10.

The win put UNO 4-0 for the season while the Missouri team stands at 3-1.

Menefee Eyeing Bauer Rematch

By KEN HAMBLETON
Star Sports Writer

Ray Menefee has been waiting to face Garth Bauer for a long time.

And Wednesday night he'll get his chance in the featured match at the Lincoln boxing smoker sponsored by the Lincoln Association of Master Barbers at 8 p.m. at Pershing Auditorium.

Menefee, who coaches and fights for Stan's Lounge has met and lost to Bauer of Sutton the only two times the two have met.

"The first time we met I had just gotten over the flu and really hadn't had time to work out much. He took advantage of me in close and won by a split decision in his home town," Menefee said. "The second time we fought in Lincoln but I wasn't ready for the bout and lost another split decision."

"This time, I'm ready. And if the match comes off, I'm sure it will be a lot more competitive than our first matches," Menefee said.

Menefee, who has won the Southeast District Golden Gloves crown three years in a row, said he will probably give 10 to 12 pounds in meeting Bauer, "I'll be fighting uphill if he's much over 130 pounds because I'm at 121 right now."

"He's got a lot of strength and can push me or hold me anywhere in the ring," said Menefee. "But if I can stay outside I think I can pick him apart."

The other featured fights include former Southeast District champion Bruce Pearson against highly-regarded Lamont Kirkland, and heavyweight Ben Berry against defending Midwest Golden Gloves champion Chuck Anderson.

Pearson, who fights for Stan's Lounge club lost his first bout of the year to Kirkland. Pearson knocked Kirkland down in the first round but the Omaha fighter rallied for the decision.

Anderson, who has won the Midwest title two years in a row, defeated Lincolnite Ron Stutzman in the Midwest finals last year.

Other boxers expected include the Easterday club, coached by Randy Nelsen, and clubs from Macy, Sutton, Hastings and Omaha.

Bills' Owner Wilson Calls For Official's Job

By The Associated Press

Ralph Wilson, owner of the Buffalo Bills, said Monday the official who made a controversial call in Sunday's critical Miami-Buffalo game "should be fired from the job and never allowed to work another game."

Speaking of a call made by head linesman Jerry Bergman on an apparent Miami fumble in the Dolphins' 31-21 victory over the Bills, Wilson said, "It was a rotten call that cost our team a chance for the Super Bowl. I will not again send my team out to play a game that he's working."

The scenario was this: Buffalo had fought back from a 21-0 deficit and trailed the Dolphins 24-21 in the fourth quarter. Miami had the ball deep in its own territory. On second down, Mercury Morris appeared to fumble at the Miami 28 and Buffalo recovered.

But Bergman ruled that the whistle had blown before the fumble, and he assessed a 15-yard penalty against the Bills' Pat Toomay on the grounds that Toomay had elbowed him in rushing after the loose ball.

"The official who made that call should be barred from football," Wilson said of Bergman. "Anyone that incompetent should not be allowed to officiate."

It was the second time this season—a St. Louis-Washington game was the other—that a controversial call affected a game between National Football League playoff contenders. In the first game, the Cardinals were awarded a touchdown on a play in which replays seemed to show that the receiver had dropped the ball before both feet touched the ground.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said in an interview that neither he nor the league was opposed to using replays to settle controversial calls. And while pointing out a number of problems that would be associated with any replay system, Rozelle said he will ask the league's Competition Committee to study the feasibility of instant replay and report to the league at its annual meeting next March.

Meanwhile, the Bills were outraged. And some of them, such as Wilson, risked possible league fine because of their public attacks on officiating, something barred by the league's constitution.

Wilson said he would appeal the game, but a league official said a judgement call by an official cannot be appealed. The game will stand as it finished, he said. And if Wilson were to carry through on his threat to keep his team out of any game officiated by Bergman, the Bills would be subject to forfeit and fine.

From the press box in Miami, and on replays, it appeared that Morris had fumbled. The NFL said it would review films, talk to participants and take appropriate action, but what that would be was not known.

"It was a fumble," said Bills' Coach Lou Saban. "I've never seen anything like that called in football. My God, a call like that can change the complexion of the game. The ref said, 'He (Toomay) hit me with an elbow.' What the hell, he was standing right on the ball."

"I'm taking nothing away from Miami, but this official took away the chance of the Buffalo Bills," said Wilson of the defeat which cost his team a shot at the playoffs. Had the official ruled that Buffalo recovered the ball, the Bills would have been 28 yards away from a go-ahead touchdown.

After the controversial call in the St. Louis-Washington game, which the Cardinals won in overtime after tying the score on the disputed play, there was debate in Washington and other cities for weeks.

Rozelle was questioned about the call at a congressional hearing and two Washington attorneys unsuccessfully attempted to get a federal judge to step into the matter.

This play also seemed likely to be the center of continuing debate.

"Give them credit," Buffalo's O. J. Simpson said of the Dolphins. "They took advantage and they belong in first place. But I hate to see such a chintzy call have an effect on a game. In seven years of football, I've never seen a call like that.

"There were 129 players fighting for the playoffs who were involved in that call," said Simpson in reference to the squads of the Dolphins, Bills and Baltimore Colts.

That number is now reduced to 86, as only the Colts and Dolphins remain in contention for the playoffs.

Art McNally, supervisor of NFL officials, said Monday that Bergman had worked as a league official for 10 years, all as a head linesman, and said he performed excellently at his job.

McNally said he discussed the call with Bergman on Monday and Bergman gave this version of the play:

"Morris was hit, flipped, landed on his shoulder and at that point he had the ball. He fumbled after that. But at that point, there is no fumble.

"The official closed in to pick up the forward progress. While he was doing so, he was blowing his whistle to indicate the play is over. Two players came in his general direction, attempting to go for the ball. One of them was Toomay and the head linesman reported that he was hit with an elbow and he judged the elbow to be a deliberate act and he called an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty."

Toomay was incensed over the penalty called on him.

"What happened is that I saw the ball squirt out of Morris' grasp and I ran to recover it," he said. "The official was right in my way so I pushed him to get at the ball. He took his flag out and threw it. He said I elbowed him. . . .It happened during the flow of play and he was in my path. I never heard of such a penalty—roughing an official—in my life."

Senators Nix Fee Hike

A Game and Fish Commission proposal to hike hunting and fishing fees was rejected Monday by the Legislature's constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee.

The committee voted 6-1 to reject the bill for introduction at the next legislative session. However, Committee Chairman George Syas said that a similiar bill that was more moderate might be acceptable.

The measure would both increase hunting and fishing fees and provide for a new $7.50 habitat stamp to be used to finance the purchase of land.

"It is just too much, too fast," said Syas.

The bill proposed raising hunting fees from $4 to $6.50 and fishing fees from $4 to $7.50. It also provides for the habitat stamp to increase from $1 to $7.50.

The purpose of the bill was to allow the Game and Fish Commission to set aside land to provide for wildlife habitat. It was estimated that the measure would have raised $2 million in additional funds that could be matched with federal dollars to accelerate the state program of maintaining natural breeding grounds for wildlife.

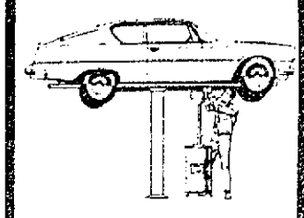

The prevailing view of the committee was that the double barrelled hikes were too much. The members recognized that if more natural land was not protected, wildlife and, therefore, hunters would eventually suffer.

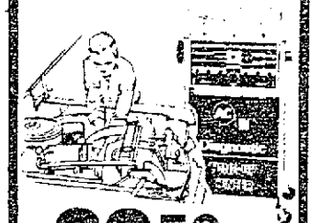

Most of the committee members said they had received calls in opposition to the bill.

Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak said he talked to several hunters who "prefer not to see the fees raised but also fear there will be no hunting 10- to 15-years from now. He said those he talked to believed the hunters should pay the costs of protecting natural habitats.

The committee action did not eliminate the possibility that the measure could be raised during the 1976 legislative session. It did show that opposition was strong to a bill that contained as many increases in fees as the one proposed by the Game and Fish Commission.

Senators Nix Fee Hike

A Game and Fish Commission proposal to hike hunting and fishing fees was rejected Monday by the Legislature's constitutional Revision and Recreation Committee.

The committee voted 6-1 to reject the bill for introduction at the next legislative session. However, Committee Chairman George Syas said that a similiar bill that was more moderate might be acceptable.

The measure would both increase hunting and fishing fees and provide for a new $7.50 habitat stamp to be used to finance the purchase of land.

"It is just too much, too fast," said Syas.

The bill proposed raising hunting fees from $4 to $6.50 and fishing fees from $4 to $7.50. It also provides for the habitat stamp to increase from $1 to $7.50.

The purpose of the bill was to allow the Game and Fish Commission to set aside land to provide for wildlife habitat. It was estimated that the measure would have raised $2 million in additional funds that could be matched with federal dollars to accelerate the state program of maintaining natural breeding grounds for wildlife.

The prevailing view of the committee was that the double barrelled hikes were too much. The members recognized that if more natural land was not protected, wildlife and, therefore, hunters would eventually suffer.

Most of the committee members said they had received calls in opposition to the bill.

Columbus Sen. Donald Dworak said he talked to several hunters who "prefer not to see the fees raised but also fear there will be no hunting 10- to 15-years from now. He said those he talked to believed the hunters should pay the costs of protecting natural habitats.

The committee action did not eliminate the possibility that the measure could be raised during the 1976 legislative session. It did show that opposition was strong to a bill that contained as many increases in fees as the one proposed by the Game and Fish Commission.

Fritz, Donohoe All-Americans

Kansas City (AP) — Two Nebraska players have been named to the first squad of the NAIA's 1975, Division II All-American Team.

Punter Duane Fritz, a junior at Chadron State, and defensive lineman Pat Donohoe, a senior at Wayne State were honored.

United Laying Off 13,000 Employes

Washington (UPI) — United Airlines, its airplanes grounded by striking machinists, said Monday it will lay off 13,000 other employes

United representatives and negotiators for the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers met for five hours at the National Mediation Board under the eye of the government's top labor troubleshooter, W J Usery and scheduled further contract talks Tuesday

There was no public indication from either side how the discussions were going "As long as we are still talking, there is room for optimism, ' said a spokesman for the airline

The spokesman said all flights by the nation's biggest airline now have been canceled at least through midnight Thursday.

Effective at midnight Monday, about 7,000 flight attendants, 5,-200 flight officers, and 800 other employes were put on "without pay ' status, the spokesman said

Those 13,000 were in addition to the 16,700 IAM members involved in the walkout The striking union members include mechanics, flight dispatchers, ramp service attendants and food service workers

Another 19,000 United employes and management personnel have not been affected by the strike so far

Travelers Scramble For Remaining Seats

United Airlines flights in and out of Lincoln have been canceled at least through midnight Thursday, leaving approximately 1,400 local passengers to find alternate transportation, an airline spokesman said Monday

United was struck Saturday by members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workes

Reservations for Friday and beyond are being 'accepted only on a tentative basis," said Harlan Franey United's customer services supervisor in Lincoln

Sunday the airline canceled flights through midnight Tuesday Franey said, affecting about 900 passengers The decision Monday afternoon to cancel reservations through Thursday affected another 500 individuals in Lincoln

Arrangements are being made to get passengers aboard other airlines, the United spokesman said

Spokesmen for the three airlines serving Lincoln — United, Frontier and Air Wisconsin — said the canceled United passengers were generally able to find alternate flights

That's because the strike fell during the "normally slack period before the storm of Christmas travel," said Ken Woods, Frontier's sales manager here

However, many people with holiday reservations aboard United flights already are trying to make alternate arrangements, said Larry Bishop, director of the Frontier s corporate communications in Denver

"Most flights are booked to capacity already" for the peak holiday season, he said

Many customers have had to reroute their flights, he noted They are going east to get west, west to get east "

One party planning a trip to Honolulu contacted Air Wisconsin said manager Paul Jamison, to arrange to fly to Minneapolis, then on to the Hawaiian vacation

Way Cleared For Vote On New York Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The way was cleared Monday for a Senate vote on $2 3 billion for New York City Wednesday, with opponents agreeing not to attempt to block or delay the measure

The bill is one of two designed to prevent New York City s default On Saturday, the Senate approved and sent to the White House a loan authorization bill for New York The bill to be voted on Wednesday contains the funds for that loan

The agreement ended the possibility that Sen James Allen, D-Ala , and others who oppose the loan and appropriations bills, might attempt a filibuster or other delaying parliamentary tactics to stall the funds for New York.

"No useful purpose could be served by extending debate against the measure. Allen told the Senate before it was to vote, on whether to block a possible filibuster

Omaha To Become 31st City?

Omaha (AP) — Omaha's population will grow to about 412,-000 by 1980, and the city will jump from the nation's 40th largest city to the 31st spot, according to population projections prepared by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. of New York

In 1970, the company listed Omaha's population at 360,000, but according to the projections, that will increase 14.4% or by 52,000, by 1980. The U S Census Bureau listed Omaha's population at 346,929. However, officials of the firm which produced the report for Metropolitan Life said their 1970 figures included the populations of various subdivisions which were annexed into the city through 1973, whereas the U S Census Bureau did not

Omaha's population increased by 9 1% from 1960 to 1970

Metropolitan Life's projections for 1980 fall on the high side of the population projection range being used by the Omaha Planning Development, which, using projections from the Nebraska Bureau of Business Research, expects the 1980 population figures to range somewhere between 378,184 and 417 244

Omaha is one of 19 cities with populations in excess of 350,000 in 1970 that will experience growth in the 1970s, according to the Metropolitan Life study, the other 22 included in the report are projected to show population declines

Falls City Man NPPD Director

Heasty Reesman, a Falls City businessman and farmer, was named to the Nebraska Public Power District board of directors Monday by Gov J James Exon.

Reesman replaces Guy Coper of Humboldt who resigned to run for the legislative seat held by Irving Wiltse of Falls City

Reesman was the Nebraska director of the Farmer's Home Administration from 1961 to 1969

Chrysler Corp. Recalls 2,884 Motor Homes

Detroit (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Monday said it is recalling 2.884 motor homes which may be equipped with improperly installed mufflers

The units involved, Chrysler said, are 1975 models and are built on Dodge M400 and M500 chassis equipped with 440 V-8 engines

Chrysler said it received four reports of fires resulting from the problem but that no personal injuries were involved.

The automaker said the proximity of the muffler to the body floor and a hanger strap creates the potential for an underbody fire.

Stock Prices Edge Higher

New York (AP) — Stock prices settled slightly higher Monday as the market slowed its downward rush in anxiety over the strength of the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed 2 83 higher at 821 63, a fraction of the 41 87 points it lost last week in a spree of selling by stockholders worried that the business recovery may have lost momentum

The New York Stock Exchange composite index edged up 0 07 to 45 91, but issues declining in price led those advancing 850 to 511 of the 1869 traded

Volume on the Big Board reached only 14 15 million shares

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 25 to 87 07

Analysts said investor attention was still fixed on the various statistics and forecasts that indicate a slackening in the pace of the recovery

"The market has given a substantial amount of ground because of the uncertainty," said analyst Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp "I don't get the same feeling of downward pressure "

He noted that recent unemployment and wholesale price figures, if not wildly optimistic, at least showed some improvement Wholesale prices held steady during November, while unemployment in the month fell from 8 6 per cent to 8 3 per cent, the government reported late last week

Lingering doubt among investors over federal loans for financially troubled New York City was apparently eased midway through the session with the announcement by Sen James B Allen, D-Ala , that he would no longer try to delay the loan bill and predicted it would pass by Thursday.

Volume leader on the NYSE Monday was Polaroid, off ¼ at 31⅝ General Motors, second among the actives, rose 1⅛ to 54⅛

Companies which handle precious metals registereed declines, including ASA Ltd.'s 2⅛ drop to 26⅞ and Dome Mines' 2-point fall to 30¼. The price of gold in London declined for the third consecutive day.

The oil service companies posted advances, with Hughes Tool rising 1⅛ to 38⅞, McDermott rising 1½ to 37 and Schlumberger advancing 1⅜ to 71⅜

Hog Prices Steady, Up

OMAHA, Neb (AP)—Hogs maintained steady ground on the Omaha livestock market Monday, in some instances making some small gains, but cattle showed some weakness, mainly because of increased marketings

The days's hog run was estimated at about 5,500 head The trade on barrows and gilts was fairly active, and earned a call of steady to 25-cents higher, with some some sales as much as 50-cents to the upside.

Sows traded fully steady, with some sales going from 25to-50-cents higher.

There were about 8,000 cattle and calves on offer, and the trade on slaughter steers and heifers was described as being only moderately active. The trend was mostly steady with last mid-week, or 50-cents lower than last Thursday's limited test. Cows moved unevenly 50cents to $1 50 lower.

There were about 700 sheep in the pens.

Soybeans Post Limit Losses

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures plunged over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday with limit losses posted in soybeans and in soy oil.

Soybean meal was down around $8 a tone while wheat futures lost nearly 15 cents a bushel, corn 8 and oats 4¼. Iced broilers were down ½ cent a pound, largely on selling that reflected weakness in red meat futures. Gold futures closed lower by nearly $2 an ounce. Spot gold in London was down almost as much but here appeared to be a lack of any kind of support in the futures market.

United Laying Off 13,000 Employes

Washington (UPI) — United Airlines, its airplanes grounded by striking machinists, said Monday it will lay off 13,000 other employes.

United representatives and negotiators for the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers met for five hours at the National Mediation Board under the eye of the government's top labor troubleshooter, W. J. Usery, and scheduled further contract talks Tuesday.

There was no public indication from either side how the discussions were going. "As long as we are still talking, there is room for optimism," said a spokesman for the airline.

The spokesman said all flights by the nation's biggest airline now have been canceled at least through midnight Thursday.

Effective at midnight Monday, about 7,000 flight attendants, 5,200 flight officers, and 800 other employes were put on "without pay" status, the spokesman said.

Those 13,000 were in addition to the 16,700 IAM members involved in the walkout. The striking union members include mechanics, flight dispatchers, ramp service attendants and food service workers.

Another 19,000 United employes and management personnel have not been affected by the strike so far.

Travelers Scramble For Remaining Seats

United Airlines flights in and out of Lincoln have been canceled at least through midnight Thursday, leaving approximately 1,400 local passengers to find alternate transportation, an airline spokesman said Monday.

United was struck Saturday by members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workes.

Reservations for Friday and beyond are being "accepted only on a tentative basis," said Harlan Franey, United's customer services supervisor in Lincoln.

Sunday the airline canceled flights through midnight Tuesday, Franey said, affecting about 900 passengers. The decision Monday afternoon to cancel reservations through Thursday affected another 500 individuals in Lincoln.

Arrangements are being made to get passengers aboard other airlines, the United spokesman said.

Spokesmen for the three airlines serving Lincoln — United, Frontier and Air Wisconsin — said the canceled United passengers were generally able to find alternate flights.

That's because the strike fell during the "normally slack period before the storm of Christmas travel," said Ken Woods, Frontier's sales manager here.

However, many people with holiday reservations aboard United flights already are trying to make alternate arrangements, said Larry Bishop, director of the Frontier's corporate communications in Denver.

"Most flights are booked to capacity already" for the peak holiday season, he said.

Many customers have had to reroute their flights, he noted. "They are going east to get west, west to get east."

One party planning a trip to Honolulu contacted Air Wisconsin, said manager Paul Jamison, to arrange to fly to Minneapolis, then on to the Hawaiian vacation.

Way Cleared For Vote On New York Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The way was cleared Monday for a Senate vote on $2.3 billion for New York City Wednesday, with opponents agreeing not to attempt to block or delay the measure.

The bill is one of two designed to prevent New York City's default. On Saturday, the Senate approved and sent to the White House a loan authorization bill for New York. The bill to be voted on Wednesday contains the funds for that loan.

The agreement ended the possibility that Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., and others who oppose the loan and appropriations bills, might attempt a filibuster or other delaying parliamentary tactics to stall the funds for New York.

"No useful purpose could be served by extending debate against the measure," Allen told the Senate before it was to vote on whether to block a possible filibuster.

Omaha To Become 31st City?

Omaha (AP) — Omaha's population will grow to about 412,000 by 1980, and the city will jump from the nation's 40th largest city to the 31st spot, according to population projections prepared by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. of New York.

In 1970, the company listed Omaha's population at 360,000, but according to the projections, that will increase 14.4% or by 52,000, by 1980. The U.S. Census Bureau listed Omaha's population at 346,929. However, officials of the firm which produced the report for Metropolitan Life said their 1970 figures included the populations of various subdivisions which were annexed into the city through 1973, whereas the U.S. Census Bureau did not.

Omaha's population increased by 9.1% from 1960 to 1970.

Metropolitan Life's projections for 1980 fall on the high side of the population projection range being used by the Omaha Planning Development, which, using projections from the Nebraska Bureau of Business Research, expects the 1980 population figures to range somewhere between 378,184 and 417,244.

Omaha is one of 19 cities with populations in excess of 350,000 in 1970 that will experience growth in the 1970s, according to the Metropolitan Life study, the other 22 included in the report are projected to show population declines.

Falls City Man NPPD Director

Heasty Reesman, a Falls City businessman and farmer, was named to the Nebraska Public Power District board of directors Monday by Gov. J. James Exon.

Reesman replaces Guy Coper of Humboldt who resigned to run for the legislative seat held by Irving Wiltse of Falls City.

Reesman was the Nebraska director of the Farmer's Home Administration from 1961 to 1969.

Chrysler Corp. Recalls 2,884 Motor Homes

Detroit (AP) — Chrysler Corp. Monday said it is recalling 2,884 motor homes which may be equipped with improperly installed mufflers.

The units involved, Chrysler said, are 1975 models and are built on Dodge M400 and M500 chassis equipped with 440 V-8 engines.

Chrysler said it received four reports of fires resulting from the problem but that no personal injuries were involved.

The automaker said the proximity of the muffler to the body floor and a hanger strap creates the potential for an underbody fire.

Canon's NP-5000. Now you can copy practically anything.

Canon's NP-5000 brings new versatility and convenience to plain paper copying.

It uses paper in standard sizes up to 11x17 ledger. Makes paper changing push-button simple with its double cassette system. And also copies onto letterhead, card stock, labels—even transparencies and offset masters—without special adjustment.

Thanks to Canon's unique NP plain paper process, copies are as good as and sometimes better than the original. And Canon's dry ATR system ensures consistently high quality from copy to copy.

Operation is simple. Single or multiple copies are preset on the automated control panel. And the NP-5000's fixed copyboard makes positioning originals fast and easy. You can make letter-size copies at a rate of 1320 per hour.

Stock Prices Edge Higher

New York (AP) — Stock prices settled slightly higher Monday as the market slowed its downward rush in anxiety over the strength of the economy.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed 2.83 higher at 821.63, a fraction of the 41.87 points it lost last week in a spree of selling by stockholders worried that the business recovery may have lost momentum.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index edged up 0.07 to 45.91, but issues declining in price led those advancing 850 to 511 of the 1869 traded.

Volume on the Big Board reached only 14.15 million shares.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained .25 to 87.07.

Analysts said investor attention was still fixed on the various statistics and forecasts that indicate a slackening in the pace of the recovery.

"The market has given a substantial amount of ground because of the uncertainty," said analyst Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. "I don't get the same feeling of downward pressure."

He noted that recent unemployment and wholesale price figures, if not widly optimistic, at least showed some improvement. Wholesale prices held steady during November, while unemployment in the month fell from 8.6 per cent to 8.3 per cent, the government reported late last week.

Lingering doubt among investors over federal loans for financially troubled New York City was apparently eased midway through the session with the announcement by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., that he would no longer try to delay the loan bill and predicted it would pass by Thursday.

Volume leader on the NYSE Monday was Polaroid, off ¼ at 31⅝. General Motors, second among the actives, rose 1⅛ to 54⅛.

Companies which handle precious metals registereed declines, including ASA Ltd.'s 2⅛ drop to 26⅞ and Dome Mines' 2-point fall to 30¼. The price of gold in London declined for the third consecutive day.

The oil service companies posted advances, with Hughes Tool rising 1⅛ to 38⅞, McDermott rising 1½ to 37 and Schlumberger advancing 1⅜ to 71⅜.

Hog Prices Steady, Up

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Hogs maintained steady ground on the Omaha livestock market Monday, in some instances making some small gains, but cattle showed some weakness, mainly because of increased marketings.

The days's hog run was estimated at about 5,500 head. The trade on barrows and gilts was fairly active, and earned a call of steady to 25-cents higher, with some some sales as much as 50-cents to the upside.

Sows traded fully steady, with some sales going from 25to-50-cents higher.

There were about 8,000 cattle and calves on offer, and the trade on slaughter steers and heifers was described as being only moderately active. The trend was mostly steady with last mid-week, or 50-cents lower than last Thursday's limited test. Cows moved unevenly 50cents to $1.50 lower.

There were about 700 sheep in the pens.

Picnics 8 lb up 51.75-52.25; skinned hams 14 lb down 117.50, 14-17 lb 108.50, 17-20 lb 100.00; bellies 14-16 lb 68.00-69.00, 16-18 lb 65.00-67.25.

Soybeans Post Limit Losses

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures plunged over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday with limit losses posted in soybeans and in soy oil.

Soybean meal was down around $8 a tone while wheat futures lost nearly 15 cents a bushel, corn 8 and oats 4¼. Iced broilers were down ½ cent a pound, largely on selling that reflected weakness in red meat futures. Gold futures closed lower by nearly $2 an ounce. Spot gold in London was down almost as much but here appeared to be a lack of any kind of support in the futures market.

Religious Order Spends $1.9 Million On Mailings

BALTIMORE (AP) — From their base in a Baltimore warehouse, the Pallottines, a Roman Catholic order, spent more than $1.9 million last year mailing 106 million computerized fund raising letters, the Baltimore Sun reported Monday.

The Sun estimated that the mass mailings, including a sweepstakes contest, produced up to $15 million for the order, which says it raises the money for overseas missionary work.

But by the order's own accounting, only $261,895 in cash and $146,148 in supplies were transferred to the Pallottine missions.

The Pallottine Order has made news recently in connection with the federal investigation which produced the indictment of Gov. Marvin Mandel and five other persons.

Saturday, the Pallottine provincial, the Very Rev. Domenick T. Graziadio, acknowledged that the order had loaned $54,000 to its real estate adviser, C. Dennis Webster, who reportedly loaned Mandel the same amount to help pay for the governor's divorce settlement in 1974.

The Pallottines also invested $280,000 in Amalgamated Modular Structures Inc. in 1974. Webster, who was the treasurer for the 1974 Mandel re-election ticket, was president of the portable classroom construction firm which surfaced in the wake of an investigation of the state school construction agency.

Graziadio defended the investment in the firm, saying: "We (Pallottines) have very grave moral obligations to our contributors, and we feel that it is our duty to invest our funds so that we can raise more money to send to our missions overseas."

The order's fund-raising is conducted from a tightly guarded, 100,000-square-foot warehouse on a 4.6-acre lot. The property was purchased by the Pallottines in 1970 for $1.4 million, the Sun said.

The Sun reported that the order spent more than $1.9 million last year in bulk rate postage, making it the second-largest bulk mailer in Baltimore.

The newspaper said a review of postal records show that in a single day, five million pieces of solicitations were mailed at a cost of $90,000 in postage.

The Pallottines, who declined comment on their fund-raising techniques, rarely solicit by mail in Maryland in order to keep a low profile in their own backyard, the newspaper reported.

Enclosed by a fence topped with barbed wire, the mailing center contains computerized mailing lists, automatic typewriters and high speed envelope stuffers, according to the Sun.

Palestinians Battle In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem militiamen led by Palestinian guerrillas overran several Jewish and Christian quarters in the heart of this Arab capital Monday, engaging the hard-pressed defenders in hand-to-hand combat under a hail of mortar and rocket fire.

They pulled back from some of the captured territory after nightfall when Lebanese army commandos intervened in a rare attempt to reassert government control around the House of Parliament and financial district.

An army spokesman said 100 commandos in tanks and armored cars moved unopposed into one combat zone occupied by the Moslems to establish a "security belt" for government buildings.

The action separated street fighters in that area, prompting Moslem charges that the army was being used to "rescue" Christian militiamen. They noted that the troops were ordered in by Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, who heads the National Liberal party allied with the right-wing Christian Phalange.

Savage fighting raged elsewhere in the capital as the Moslems attempted to push Christians out of their smaller enclaves into the Phalangists' last strongholds at Ashrafiyeh and Ein Rumanneh.

It was the biggest Moslem assault in eight months of civil war. President Suleiman Franjieh called it "The blackest day in Lebanese history."

One Moslem contingent reinforced by Kurdish mercenaries swept through the Wadi al Yahoud Jewish quarter to attack Phalangists in shops and offices of the Starco Center. Hand-to-hand fighting was reported in progress at midnight.

Only a few hundred Jews are left in the district, which was protected by Christian militiamen in previous rounds of fighting. The Jews have not been harmed by battling Moslems and Palestinians so far. Last month Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat personally arranged for food convoys to refugees trapped by fighting in a synagogue.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said no reports had been received of any Jews being wounded. There had been an estimted 400-500 Jews in Beirut, but many left because of the frequent battles.

Four Suspects Charged With Recent Robberies

Charges were filed Monday against four men, two aged 17, two 16, in connection with three recent robberies in Lincoln.

Forrest Lee Wade, 17, also known as Forrest Lee Lohmeier, was charged with three counts of robbery.

Lohmeier was allegedly involved in the Dec. 6 robbery of the Phillips 66 station at 2701 West O, the Nov. 29 robbery of the Deep Rock Station at 27th and Y and the Dec., 1, robbery of the Derby Gas Station at 17th and Washington.

Charged with one count of robbery of the Phillips 66 Station was Douglas Giebelhaus, 16.

Charged with one count of robbery of the Derby Gas Station was David Williams, 17. Williams was also charged with assaulting Sgt. Mark Merwick in the jail on Dec. 5.

Williams was being held in jail at that time on a burglary charge.

Also charged with robbery of the Phillips 66 Station was Robert Griffith, 16. Except for Williams, all were picked up during the weekend, police said.

Macy Phone Service Is Subject Of Two Hearings

Macy (UPI) — A Macy woman who is spearheading a drive to upgrade telephone service on the Omaha Indian Reservation in northeast Nebraska said a "mock" Nebraska Public Service Commission hearing will be held Tuesday night on a dispute over telephone charges and service.

Barbara May, whose husband, Art May, is director of the Inter-Tribal Development Corp. at Macy, said the commission will hold a formal hearing during the day Tuesday on an application that contends Eastern Nebraska Telephone Co. of Blair is overcharging its Macy area customers.

She said 70% of the petitioners requesting a change in telephone rates are teachers and business people who are unable to attend a daytime hearing.

"The petitioners asked for an evening hearing," Mrs. May said, "but they were denied." She said the Tuesday night "mock hearing" will be held at Walthill and will be recorded on tape, notarized and sent to the Public Service Commission.

Mrs. May said, "Much meaningful testimony will be lost by holding the hearing during the day."

She also said the commission denied the petitioers access to information on operation assistance calls and direct assistance trouble calls. "These records pertaining to all of our troubles in direct assistance dialing were denied access to us by the commission," she said.

7-Year-Old Girl Injured By Car

A 7-year-old Lincoln girl is in serious condition after a car-pedestrian accident at 68th and Havelock Ave.

Debbie Zimmerman, of 6825 Platte, was taken to St. Elizabeth Health Center with a broken leg and skull fracture after being struck by a car driven by Randy E. Wood, 25, of 272 Alexander.

Wood was not injured in the mishap.

Religious Order Spends $1.9 Million On Mailings

BALTIMORE (AP) — From their base in a Baltimore warehouse, the Pallottines, a Roman Catholic order, spent more than $1.9 million last year mailing 106 million computerized fund raising letters, the Baltimore Sun reported Monday .

The Sun estimated that the mass mailings, including a sweepstakes contest, produced up to $15 million for the order, which says it raises the money for overseas missionary work.

But by the order's own accounting, only $261,895 in cash and $146,148 in supplies were transferred to the Pallottine missions.

The Pallottine Order has made news recently in connection with the federal investigation which produced the indictment of Gov. Marvin Mandel and five other persons.

Saturday, the Pallottine provincial, the Very Rev. Domenick T. Graziadio, acknowledged that the order had loaned $54,000 to its real estate adviser, C. Dennis Webster, who reportedly loaned Mandel the same amount to help pay for the governor's divorce settlement in 1974.

The Pallottines also invested $280,000 in Amalgamated Modular Structures Inc. in 1974. Webster, who was the treasurer tor the 1974 Mandel re-election ticket, was president of the portable classroom construction firm which surfaced in the wake of an investigation of the state school construction agency.

Graziadio defended the investment in the firm, saying: "We (Pallottines) have very grave moral obligations to our contributors, and we feel that it is our duty to invest our funds so that we can raise more money to send to our missions overseas."

The order's fund-raising is conducted from a tightly guarded, 100,000-square-foot warehouse on a 4.6-acre lot. The property was purchased by the Pallottines in 1970 for $1.4 million, the Sun said.

The Sun reported that the order spent more than $1.9 million last year in bulk rate postage, making it the second-largest bulk mailer in Baltimore.

The newspaper said a review of postal records show that in a single day, five million pieces of solicitations were mailed at a cost of $90,000 in postage.

The Pallottines, who declined comment on their fund-raising techniques, rarely solicit by mail in Maryland in order to keep a low profile in their own backyard, the newspaper reported.

Enclosed by a fence topped with barbed wire, the mailing center contains computerized mailing lists, automatic typewriters and high speed envelope stuffers, according to the Sun.

Palestinians Battle In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem militiamen led by Palestinian guerrillas overran several Jewish and Christian quarters in the heart of this Arab capital Monday, engaging the hard-pressed defenders in hand-to-hand combat under a hail of mortar and rocket fire.

They pulled back from some of the captured territory after nightfall when Lebanese army commandos intervened in a rare attempt to reassert government control around the House of Parliament and financial district.

An army spokesman said 100 commandos in tanks and armored cars moved unopposed into one combat zone occupied by the Moslems to establish a "security belt" for government buildings.

The action separated street fighters in that area, prompting Moslem charges that the army was being used to "rescue" Christian militiamen. They noted that the troops were ordered in by Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, who heads the National Liberal party allied with the right-wing Christian Phalange.

Savage fighting raged elsewhere in the capital as the Moslems attempted to push Christians out of their smaller enclaves into the Phalangists' last strongholds at Ashrafiyeh and Ein Rumanneh.

It was the biggest Moslem assault in eight months of civil war. President Suleiman Franjieh called it "The blackest day in Lebanese history."

One Moslem contingent reinforced by Kurdish mercenaries swept through the Wadi al Yahoud Jewish quarter to attack Phalangists in shops and offices of the Starco Center. Hand-to-hand fighting was reported in progress at midnight.

Only a few hundred Jews are left in the district, which was protected by Christian militiamen in previous rounds of fighting. The Jews have not been harmed by battling Moslems and Palestinians so far. Last month Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat personally arranged for food convoys to refugees trapped by fighting in a synagogue.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said no reports had been received of any Jews being wounded. There had been an estimted 400-500 Jews in Beirut, but many left because of the frequent battles.

Four Suspects Charged With Recent Robberies

Charges were filed Monday against four men, two aged 17, two 16, in connection with three recent robberies in Lincoln.

Forrest Lee Wade, 17, also known as Forrest Lee Lohmeier, was charged with three counts of robbery.

Lohmeier was allegedly involved in the Dec. 6 robbery of the Phillips 66 station at 2701 West O, the Nov. 29 robbery of the Deep Rock Station at 27th and Y and the Dec., 1, robbery of the Derby Gas Station at 17th and Washington.

Charged with one count of robbery of the Phillips 66 Station was Douglas Giebelhaus, 16.

Charged with one count of robbery of the Derby Gas Station was David Williams, 17. Williams was also charged with assaulting Sgt. Mark Merwick in the jail on Dec. 5.

Williams was being held in jail at that time on a burglary charge.

Also charged with robbery of the Phillips 66 Station was Robert Griffith, 16. Except for Williams, all were picked up during the weekend, police said.

Macy Phone Service Is Subject Of Two Hearings

Macy (UPI) — A Macy woman who is spearheading a drive to upgrade telephone service on the Omaha Indian Reservation in northeast Nebraska said a "mock" Nebraska Public Service Commission hearing will be held Tuesday night on a dispute over telephone charges and service.

Barbara May, whose husband, Art May, is director of the Inter-Tribal Development Corp. at Macy, said the commission will hold a formal hearing during the day Tuesday on an application that contends Eastern Nebraska Telephone Co. of Blair is overcharging its Macy area customers.

She said 70% of the petitioners requesting a change in telephone rates are teachers and business people who are unable to attend a daytime hearing.

"The petitioners asked for an evening hearing," Mrs. May said, "but they were denied." She said the Tuesday night "mock hearing" will be held at Walthill and will be recorded on tape, notarized and sent to the Public Service Commission.

Mrs. May said, "Much meaningful testimony will be lost by holding the hearing during the day."

She also said the commission denied the petitioers access to information on operation assistance calls and direct assistance trouble calls. "These records pertaining to all of our troubles in direct assistance dialing were denied access to us by the commission," she said.

Nebraska Education Aid Exceeds National Average

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Appropriations of Nebraska tax dollars to operate higher education exceed substantially the national averages, according to the 17th annual report published by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Support to major public universities has often not kept pace with the total increase to all post-high school institutions, says the report compiled by M.M. Chambers of Illinois State University.

And for a growing number of institutions, revenue has been inadequate to allow them to keep pace with inflation. Thus the need for increased support from non-tax sources is becoming increasingly important, Chambers concludes.

In 1965-66, Nebraska awarded $21,894,000 in net state tax funds to higher education. By 1975-76, that total had increased to $100,082,000, a 357% boost. The national average was 311% for the 10-year period.

The $100 million figure also represents a 47% increase from 1973-74, when Nebraska appropriations were $68 million. The average two-year gain nationwide was 28%.

The Chambers survey shows that all 50 state legislatures appropriated this year a larger sum for all higher education tax assistance than two years earlier. While the gains are encouraging, Chambers notes they're "less than would have been desirable in the long-run public interest."

The Higher Education Price Index shows an unprecedented 8.6% jump from 1973-74 to 1974-75. The index, compiled by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, measures wage and price changes in 10 categories involving goods and services which universities and colleges buy.

"For almost half the state and land-grant universities, the gap between state appropriations and the soaring index meant that revenue was not sufficient to cover the cost of necessary goods and services," the report said.

"In addition, the majority of these institutions continued to face demands to educate more students."

The analysis of data for 94 schools shows the amount of income per student dropped from $4,138 in 1973-74 to $4,045 in 1974-75, considering inflation effects.

"This means that state and land-grant universities had an average of $93 less per student" last year than they had two years ago, the report said.

The figures show wide variations among the states and even wider among institutions.

"Almost everywhere, the local public two-year community colleges show larger increases in state support than the four-year state colleges or the large state universities, some of which are in standstill or backsliding condition," the report said.

Despite news of declines in enrollment and support, Chambers said, "It would be more accurate to perceive the most recent five years as a period of temporary slowdown (with no actual nationwide decline), from which some recovery is already in progress."

Statistics indicate legislatures "are inclined to rally to continued and increasing state tax support of higher education," even under recent economic conditions, he said.

Lawmakers' awareness of short and long-term benefits of education and public confidence in it "is due for a revival of unprecedented vitality," Chambers said. "It is a durable and leading element of the American Dream."

Chambers dismissed the plethora of "dust gathering reports" that view higher education narrowly. He cited increasing sentiment for keeping tuition in public colleges and universities "low or non-existent." And he predicted student aid systems will be increasingly developed.

In higher education policy-making, Chambers noted "perceptible signals that divisiveness is diminishing, that some of the more fatuous proposals are sinking from view, and that a reasonable consensus may be reached" to expand public services and "higher potentials for the public good."

Ron Brandt

Lincoln Kids Score Above Average

Lincoln Public Schools elementary students continue to score considerably above the national average on standardized achievement tests, according to Associate Supt. for Instruction Ron Brandt.

In a report prepared for the Lincoln Board of Education, Brandt said students at all elementary grade levels scored above national norms, although no dramatic upward or downward trend is evident since 1972.

"On the average, about 10% more students than would normally be expected earned above-average scores," Brandt wrote.

He and administrative assistant Eleanor Francke will present the reading and study skills test results to the board in an 8 a.m. meeting Tuesday at the Public Schools Administration Building, at 720 S. 22nd.

In a normal group of students, about half could be expected to score at the 50th percentile, the national average. This year, 57% of 6th-grade students scored above the 50th percentile in reading, compared with 55% of the same students in 5th grade the year before.

In grades 3, 5 and 6, the percentage of above-average scores was higher this year than last year. In grade 4, current scores were lower. Brandt said although reading scores tended to be higher this year than last, they weren't quite as high as 1973.

The tests were administered in late September. Those required systemwide include reading in all grades and study skills in grade 5. Some schools continue to give spelling, math and other tests, for which results will be reported in spring.

Because of student mobility, some imprecision and the use of several different tests, Brandt cautioned that some scores may not be directly comparable.

On the Work Study Skills test (an Iowa Basic Skills subtest), 5th-graders this year scored higher than 5th-graders last year — 57% compared to 51%. As with the reading results, a change of a few percentage points may not be significant," Brandt said.

"All the same, the increase is encouraging."

In other board business Tuesday, Supt. John Prasch will report on the opening of Hill School, progress on Lincoln High and Northeast remodeling, heating problems at Randolph School after a boiler room explosion, a Prescott School planning session, and a proposal to widen Fremont St.

Prasch will also report on the status of services for Vietnamese refugees, planning in programs for handicapped children and preliminary summer school plans.

The board will receive two letters, one requesting a board audience regarding street widening, another from parents in the Calvert School area regarding proposed school boundary changes.

Opinion Says State Should Pay Wards' Special Education Costs

The state should pay the cost of special education programs for wards of the court or state who are handicapped, the Nebraska attorney general's office said.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher issued that conclusion in an opinion requested by Nebraska Education Commissioner Anne Campbell.

State law declares when a pupil "as a ward of the state or as a ward of any court, (has) been placed in a public school district other than (his home) district . . . the cost of his education shall be paid by the state under rules and regulations prescribed by the State Board of Education."

Mosher said it's reasonable that if such a ward is handicapped, costs of his special education programs are part of "the cost of his education," and thus payable by the state board.

Citing legislative floor debate on the law in 1973, Mosher referred to testimony that when state or court wards are sent to school districts, it's only fair that the state pay for resulting additional costs; a senator said districts should not be forced to pay for educating non-residents imposed upon them.

Mosher noted that school districts "are not totally reimbursed" but should receive up to a maximum of 90% of the special education program costs that exceed regular per-pupil costs.

"Thus, if a ward is handicapped, the remaining 10% of the excess cost of his or her special education programs would have to be paid by the school district in which the ward was placed . . ."

Better Education Info Said Needed For Lawmakers

Public higher education leaders must provide state legislators better information if colleges and universities are to get needed appropriations, according to the Education Commission of the States (ECS).

While legislators insist on more complete information, ECS staffer Warren Hill said they often learn how institutions' program costs vary but not why.

Hill made the comments at an ECS-sponsored seminar in Denver.

Participants included Lincolnites Kermit McMurry, executive director of the Nebraska Coordinating Council for Postsecondary Education (1202 Commission), and John M. Stefkovich, data processing and information systems specialist with the State Department of Administrative Services. McMurry works half-time for DAS.

The seminar reviewed methods of collecting and using accurate statistical information on postsecondary education, ways to initiate state-level information systems, how to improve existing techniques for gathering and reporting information, and use of federal data for state planning purposes.

The chief concern is how information about post-high school information is used, an Illinois educator said. Budgets are in danger of being cut if legislators get cost information without knowing why differences exist among schools.

Seminar participants were urged to insure that the governor and Legislature get full background details before making judgments about appropriations. Educators were warned to be wary of unexamined cost data comparisons generated by statewide information systems.

Maryland University Man Eyed For New UNL Post

Dr. John H. Buskey, Maryland University Conferences and Institutes Division director, will be recommended Saturday for appointment to the newly created position of instructional systems assistant dean in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Division.

NU Regents will consider Buskey's appointment at an 8 a.m. meeting in Regents Hall, at 3835 Holdrege.

Continuing Studies Dean Quentin H. Gessner said Buskey has been responsible for the largest conference and institute department in the U.S.

Buskey directs a staff of 70, an annual budget of almost $2.5 million including more than half from federal grants, and more than 600 educational conferences and short courses.

Buskey would begin his duties Feb. 1, at an annual salary of $28,250.

At UNL, Buskey would oversee general operations of Extension Division instructional systems, and maintain relationships with community organizations and campus departments. Those complement the effective performance of UNL's outreach work.

Buskey earned his Ph.D. in adult education from the University of Chicago.

The 39-year-old Hanover, N.H., native is married and has three children.

Decker Named Administrator Of Tax Policy

John L. Decker has been named tax policy administrator by State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters.

Decker, a 1971 graduate of the University of Nebraska law college, is presently administrator of the department's legal division. He will succeed James D. McBride who has resigned to set up a private accounting practice in McCook. McBride's resignation is effective Dec. 12.

LaWayne Feit, a 30-year-old Vietnam veteran, will take over as head of the department's legal division. Feit graduated from the University of Nebraska Law College in 1973.

Phi Beta Kappa Slates Initiation

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa scholastic honorary society will hold its first semester initiation banquet at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday in the Nebraska Union.

State Sen. Richard Marvel will be the featured speaker on the topic "The Intellectual in Politics."

Twelve new members will be initiated into the honorary.

"Focus" is the big entertainment section in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Nebraska Education Aid Exceeds National Average

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Appropriations of Nebraska tax dollars to operate higher education exceed substantially the national averages, according to the 17th annual report published by the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges.

Support to major public universities has often not kept pace with the total increase to all post-high school institutions, says the report compiled by M.M. Chambers of Illinois State University.

And for a growing number of institutions, revenue has been inadequate to allow them to keep pace with inflation. Thus the need for increased support from non-tax sources is becoming increasingly important, Chambers concludes.

In 1965-66, Nebraska awarded $21,894,000 in net state tax funds to higher education. By 1975-76, that total had increased to $100,082,000, a 357% boost. The national average was 311% for the 10-year period.

The $100 million figure also represents a 47% increase from 1973-74, when Nebraska appropriations were $68 million. The average two-year gain nationwide was 28%.

The Chambers survey shows that all 50 state legislatures appropriated this year a larger sum for all higher education tax assistance than two years earlier. While the gains are encouraging, Chambers notes they're "less than would have been desirable in the long-run public interest."

The Higher Education Price Index shows an unprecedented 8.6% jump from 1973-74 to 1974-75. The index, compiled by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, measures wage and price changes in 10 categories involving goods and services which universities and colleges buy.

"For almost half the state and land-grant universities, the gap between state appropriations and the soaring index meant that revenue was not sufficient to cover the cost of necessary goods and services," the report said.

"In addition, the majority of these institutions continued to face demands to educate more students."

The analysis of data for 94 schools shows the amount of income per student dropped from $4,138 in 1973-74 to $4,045 in 1974-75, considering inflation effects.

"This means that state and land-grant universities had an average of $93 less per student" last year than they had two years ago, the report said.

The figures show wide variations among the states and even wider among institutions.

"Almost everywhere, the local public two-year community colleges show larger increases in state support than the four-year state colleges or the large state universities, some of which are in standstill or backsliding condition," the report said.

Despite news of declines in enrollment and support, Chambers said, "It would be more accurate to perceive the most recent five years as a period of temporary slowdown (with no actual nationwide decline), from which some recovery is already in progress."

Statistics indicate legislatures "are inclined to rally to continued and increasing state tax support of higher education," even under recent economic conditions, he said.

Lawmakers' awareness of short and long-term benefits of education and public confidence in it "is due for a revival of unprecedented vitality," Chambers said. "It is a durable and leading element of the American Dream."

Chambers dismissed the plethora of "dust gathering reports" that view higher education narrowly. He cited increasing sentiment for keeping tuition in public colleges and universities "low or non-existent." And he predicted student aid systems will be increasingly developed.

In higher education policy-making, Chambers noted "perceptible signals that divisiveness is diminishing, that some of the more fatuous proposals are sinking from view, and that a reasonable consensus may be reached" to expand public services and "higher potentials for the public good."

Decker Named Administrator Of Tax Policy

John L. Decker has been named tax policy administrator by State Tax Commissioner William E. Peters.

Decker, a 1971 graduate of the University of Nebraska law college, is presently administrator of the department's legal division. He will succeed James D. McBride who has resigned to set up a private accounting practice in McCook. McBride's resignation is effective Dec. 12.

LaWayne Feit, a 30-year-old Vietnam veteran, will take over as head of the department's legal division. Feit graduated from the University of Nebraska Law College in 1973.

Lincoln Kids Score Above Average

Lincoln Public Schools elementary students continue to score considerably above the national average on standardized achievement tests, according to Associate Supt. for Instruction Ron Brandt.

In a report prepared for the Lincoln Board of Education, Brandt said students at all elementary grade levels scored above national norms, although no dramatic upward or downward trend is evident since 1972.

"On the average, about 10% more students than would normally be expected earned above-average scores," Brandt wrote.

He and administrative assistant Eleanor Francke will present the reading and study skills test results to the board in an 8 a.m. meeting Tuesday at the Public Schools Administration Building, at 720 S. 22nd.

In a normal group of students, about half could be expected to score at the 50th percentile, the national average. This year, 57% of 6th-grade students scored above the 50th percentile in reading, compared with 55% of the same students in 5th grade the year before.

In grades 3, 5 and 6, the percentage of above-average scores was higher this year than last year. In grade 4, current scores were lower. Brandt said although reading scores tended to be higher this year than last, they weren't quite as high as 1973.

The tests were administered in late September. Those required systemwide include reading in all grades and study skills in grade 5. Some schools continue to give spelling, math and other tests, for which results will be reported in spring.

Because of student mobility, some imprecision and the use of several different tests, Brandt cautioned that some scores may not be directly comparable.

On the Work Study Skills test (an Iowa Basic Skills subtest), 5th-graders this year scored higher than 5th-graders last year — 57% compared to 51%. "As with the reading results, a change of a few percentage points may not be significant," Brandt said.

"All the same, the increase is encouraging."

In other board business Tuesday, Supt. John Prasch will report on the opening of Hill School, progress on Lincoln High and Northeast remodeling, heating problems at Randolph School after a boiler room explosion, a Prescott School planning session, and a proposal to widen Fremont St.

Prasch will also report on the status of services for Vietnamese refugees, planning in programs for handicapped children and preliminary summer school plans.

The board will receive two letters, one requesting a board audience regarding street widening, another from parents in the Calvert School area regarding proposed school boundary changes.

Opinion Says State Should Pay Wards' Special Education Costs

The state should pay the cost of special education programs for wards of the court or state who are handicapped, the Nebraska attorney general's office said.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Harold Mosher issued that conclusion in an opinion requested by Nebraska Education Commissioner Anne Campbell.

State law declares when a pupil "as a ward of the state or as a ward of any court, (has) been placed in a public school district other than (his home) district . . . the cost of his education shall be paid by the state under rules and regulations prescribed by the State Board of Education."

Mosher said it's reasonable that if such a ward is handicapped, costs of his special education programs are part of "the cost of his education," and thus payable by the state board.

Citing legislative floor debate on the law in 1973, Mosher referred to testimony that when state or court wards are sent to school districts, it's only fair that the state pay for resulting additional costs; a senator said districts should not be forced to pay for educating non-residents imposed upon them.

Mosher noted that school districts "are not totally reimbursed" but should receive up to a maximum of 90% of the special education program costs that exceed regular per-pupil costs.

"Thus, if a ward is handicapped, the remaining 10% of the excess cost of his or her special education programs would have to be paid by the school district in which the ward was placed . . ."

Better Education Info Said Needed For Lawmakers

Public higher education leaders must provide state legislators better information if colleges and universities are to get needed appropriations, according to the Education Commission of the States (ECS).

While legislators insist on more complete information, ECS staffer Warren Hill said they often learn how institutions' program costs vary but not why.

Hill made the comments at an ECS-sponsored seminar in Denver.

Participants included Lincolnites Kermit McMurry, executive director of the Nebraska Coordinating Council for Postsecondary Education (1202 Commission), and John M. Stefkovich, data processing and information systems specialist with the State Department of Administrative Services. McMurry works half-time for DAS.

The seminar reviewed methods of collecting and using accurate statistical information on postsecondary education, ways to initiate state-level information systems, how to improve existing techniques for gathering and reporting information, and use of federal data for state planning purposes.

The chief concern is how information about post-high school information is used, an Illinois educator said. Budgets are in danger of being cut if legislators get cost information without knowing why differences exist among schools.

Seminar participants were urged to insure that the governor and Legislature get full background details before making judgments about appropriations. Educators were warned to be wary of unexamined cost data comparisons generated by statewide information systems.

Phi Beta Kappa Slates Initiation

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa scholastic honorary society will hold its first semester initiation banquet at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday in the Nebraska Union.

State Sen. Richard Marvel will be the featured speaker on the topic "The Intellectual in Politics."

Twelve new members will be initiated into the honorary.

"Focus" is the big entertainment section in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Maryland University Man Eyed For New UNL Post

Dr. John H. Buskey, Maryland University Conferences and Institutes Division director, will be recommended Saturday for appointment to the newly created position of instructional systems assistant dean in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension Division.

NU Regents will consider Buskey's appointment at an 8 a.m. meeting in Regents Hall, at 3835 Holdrege.

Continuing Studies Dean Quentin H. Gessner said Buskey has been responsible for the largest conference and institute department in the U.S.

Buskey directs a staff of 70, an annual budget of almost $2.5 million including more than half from federal grants, and more than 600 educational conferences and short courses.

Buskey would begin his duties Feb. 1, at an annual salary of $28,250.

At UNL, Buskey would oversee general operations of Extension Division instructional systems, and maintain relationships with community organizations and campus departments. Those complement the effective performance of UNL's outreach work.

Buskey earned his Ph.D. in adult education from the University of Chicago.

The 39-year-old Hanover, N.H., native is married and has three children.

BY FIRESTONE
1. EXTRA:
Read all about it. Three bedrooms, large kitchen, finished basement, 3 separate baths, double garage, beautiful decorations and gorgeous yard, all this in the 40's.
2. The Now Generation:
Here is a newer home with everything to suit the buyers of this generation. It has three bedrooms, super drapes and wallpaper, and central air. Walk out of the huge country kitchen through sliding glass doors to a patio which overlooks a landscaped and chain link fenced backyard. It has a large finished rec room with built in bar. Let us tell you about this South Lincoln home priced in the thirties.
3. 3 Bedroom—Low 30's
In an ideal Southwest location. Everything in this 3 year old split foyer is better than new. Central air, fenced yard, large deck, and finished lower level are just a few of the goodies.
NEW LISTINGS
4. A Beautiful Ranch
The condition of this home must be seen to be believed. It has 3 bedrooms up, with eating area in the kitchen, and a formal dining area too. The basement is very sharp and you won't find any home nicer. Under 40.
5. Spic & Span
Three bedroom brick ranch located in Wedgewood. Fully fenced yard, central air, finished basement, and nicely decorated. Look no further.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Tuesday, December 9, 1975

"Now that you tell us that astronomers know less about astrology than most persons, I don't feel so alone. I don't know anything about astrology, either! Furthermore, there are many other things I know nothing about. For instance, it has always irked me that I do not know how to ride a bike." — Helen Habala, Ironwood, Mich. Comment: I doubt whether most astronomers can ride bikes, either!

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Much that occurs is low pitch, behind the scenes, somewhat restrained. Older, conservative persons have plenty to say — and can pull strings. Know it and make necessary adjustments. Cancer, Capricorn types dominate. Display willingness to handle added assignment, responsibility.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Finish what you start — let go of past. You have chance to shake off apparent defeat and create victorious situation. Some hopes, wishes, including those in romance area, can be fulfilled. Aries and Libra could be in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): One in position to push greenlight button is impressed, becomes ally. Highlight independence, not arrogance. Stress leadership potential. Bypass red tape; get to heart of matters. Leo could figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through on hunch. Your intuitive intellect is sharply honed. Aquarian plays key role. Accent on communication, advertising, publishing. Travel plans can be successfully formulated. Consolidate, collect and file pertinent information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Question of spending, budget and money in general dominates. Partner, mate is involved. Check credit ratings, tax obligations. Follow through on saving or investment opportunity. Gemini, Sagittarius could be in picture.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lie low. Do more listening than talking — detect subtle signals. Let others show their hands, reveal their plans. Be discreet. Accent on attention to opposition, partnership, marriage. Don't neglect public relations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Attend to basic issues. Highlight service, attention to health. Balance is required — and so is moderation. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons could be in picture. Social affair provides need change of pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emotional responses are featured. Member of opposit sex could figure prominently. Bring forth creative resources. Be ready for change, variety — and a chance for travel. Speculation, impulse tend to dominate. Maintain balance. Be cautious without being timid.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Home value, real estate, ability to obtain valid appraisal — these are emphasized. Pisces, Virgo individuals could play key roles. If you build on solid base — by doing homework — you will be in position of strength. Older, experienced individual is in your corner all the way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on short journey which involves relative or special message. You get ideas in order, organized. You are ready to assume additional responsibility. Past effort pays dividends — you are repaid and could receive acclaim, too.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are relieved of money burden. Financial picture may be brighter. You add to valuables. Be sure you are not possessed by possessions. Means avoid painting yourself into corner. Good news comes from afar. Aries, Libra persons could be involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Lunar cycle is at peak — take initiative. Get going on your own. Be confident. Emphasize personality, personal magnetism. Get to heart of matters. Someone now might confess to being "madly in love" with you. Keep sense of balance — and humor.

IF DEC. 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a humanitarian, fascinated with law, theater, medicine. You're better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself. You make great "comeback" in 1976 — September will be your most significant month. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You're grand, careless, generous, carry too much weight for your size. You also are honest, loyal, temperamental and have talent with words.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
